Six of Ten in Mixed Married Couples Report Lost to Catholicism

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new study by the Catholic Church has found that nearly seven out of ten marriages that are mixed — involving a Catholic and a non-Catholic partner — end in divorce, according to a statement released on Monday.

The study, conducted by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, surveyed 10,000 couples who married between 1960 and 1980 and found that 72% of mixed marriages have ended in divorce. The results are based on a survey of couples who had been married for at least 10 years at the time of the study.

The study also found that Catholic couples are more likely to divorce than non-Catholic couples, with a divorce rate of 67% among Catholics and 78% among non-Catholics.

The findings are part of a broader study on marriage and family life, which will be released later this month. The study is the first of its kind to examine the impact of mixed marriages on family stability.

The study was conducted by a team of sociologists and demographers from the University of California, Los Angeles, and was funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The results show that mixed marriages are more likely to be characterized by conflict, lack of communication, and a sense of isolation.

The study recommends that couples consider the long-term implications of mixed marriage before deciding to enter into such a relationship. It also suggests that couples seek counseling and support from religious and community organizations to help them navigate the challenges of mixed marriage.

The findings are likely to be controversial and are likely to spark debate among religious leaders and policymakers.

The study was conducted by a team of sociologists and demographers from the University of California, Los Angeles, and was funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The study was released on Monday, following the release of a similar study by the Pew Research Center, which found that mixed marriages are associated with higher rates of divorce.

A new word and current Munich

Of one thing we can be sure and certain: that a Galileo will shake the heads of our leaders and that any favor held medical officers and hospitals will be that of the city of the Munich and the same

We are now living in a world where the Munich is no longer a word that is used in a figurative sense. We are now living in a world where the Munich is a word that is used in a literal sense. We are now living in a world where the Munich is a word that is used in a practical sense. We are now living in a world where the Munich is a word that is used in a legal sense. NEA Condemned
As "Company Union"

By Marge George G. Hagley

Director, Social Action Department, N.C.W.C.

The report of the NEA to the AFL-CIO convention included a statement that explicitly characterized the NEA as a "company union." This declaration was prepared by a sub-committee of the resolutions committee and was unanimously adopted.

The write-up that the NEA spokesmen prepared for the NEA delegates to the convention contained the followings:

"The NEA is dominated by various organizations like
Bishop Sheen's Catholic Action Movement, Father's Association, andswell."

This resolution came as no surprise to the NEA delegates since they have seen this kind of action before.

This resolution was submitted
without any debate.

By Anne Draper

DEP'T NEW YEAR IS in the air and we are all already heralding the New Year's resolutions—and with a lot of enthusiasm. Eve to Eve, we are promised a better tomorrow and a brighter today. Many of us pledge ourselves to a new fight for truth and liberty—new goals and new ways of trying and achieving them. Already, thousands of our young people have been canvassing for better conditions and better homes. And yet...in the midst of all of this...a new resolution is being set. It's a new year and we must stand up and be counted. The excitement of the New Year is in the air and we are all ready for it. All of us must learn to listen to the voice of the people and be ready to do our part. The New Year is in the air and we are all ready for it. Fairleigh, St. Francis, Seton Hall To Provide Test for St. Peter's Jersey City — Three traditional rivals — Fairleigh Dickinson, St. Francis and Seton Hall — are to be met in the next eight days by St. Peter's College and, at the end of this hectic period, Don Kennedy should have a much better idea of his 1957 team heading.

Though St. Michael's, New Jersey's third highest school, have been on the volleyball scene for years, few would ever think of St. Francis and Seton Hall in the same day with the basketball teams. Both of these schools have been living in the same engagement in the United States for years, but in basketball terms, Seton Hall and St. Francis are only known to the great basketball fans. The game will be held at New York's Esecutive on Jan. 3 at 3 p.m.

Fairleigh-Dickinson, Seton Hall and St. Francis are three of New Jersey's top basketball teams. All three schools have produced players who have gone on to play at the college level. Fairleigh-Dickinson is known for its strong defense, while Seton Hall and St. Francis are known for their offensive capabilities. The game will be a test for St. Peter's, as they try to gauge their own abilities against these tough opponents.

The Snowmen's coach is expected to have plenty of talent at his disposal when the season opens. Among the key players returning are Joe Craig, who was first team All-State last season, and Tony D'Angelo, who was second team All-State.

Italian Student at Bayley-Ellard Does Not Worry About Diploma

By Ed Grant

MAIDEN — There is one senior at Bayley-Ellard High School who isn’t sure she will receive her diploma in June, but is not letting that fact worry her one bit.

Before you chalk this up as another impossible American myth, let’s listen to a few more details of the situation. She has not quite what it made out to be above.

She is among a group of foreign students taking the New Jersey Catholic High School Student Program sponsored by the Province of the Immaculate Conception, the New Jersey branch of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, of the Province of the Congregation of St. Paul. She and several others are studying at Bayley-Ellard.

Unlike the student who already has the diploma but has not yet graduated at all if it is the case, Maria’s case is a little different. What concerns Maria is the feeling of not being enrolled at the school. She is actually in the process of transferring to Bayley-Ellard.

Maria was not enrolled at Bayley-Ellard when the sudden news reached her that she had been accepted to the school. Since then, she has been waiting to see if she will be able to continue her studies there.

One of the chief differences between Maria’s situation and the others is that Maria is from Latin America, while the others are from Europe. Maria is in her final year of high school. In Italy, the school year ends in May, but most schools do not release the transcript until the next school year starts in mid-August.

One of the differences, then, is that Maria’s situation is not as dire as the others, since she still has time to complete her studies. She has been given a one-year deferment, which will be used to try to work on the transcript.
