Vatican Ignoring Russian Proposal For 'Contacts'

VATICAN CITY—Soviet Union suggests that "contacts" be established between the Kremlin and the Vatican to promote understanding and cooperation between the two countries, but Vatican officials have not responded.

An official Vatican source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that the Vatican "is not interested in establishing contacts of any kind with the Soviet Union." The official said that the Vatican has always maintained a "hands-off" policy toward the Soviet Union, and that it has no desire to engage in any form of dialogue with that country.

The Vatican source also said that the Vatican has no intention of responding to the Soviet proposal, because it believes that such contacts would only serve to "compromise" the Vatican's position on issues such as the role of religion in society.

The Soviet proposal is seen as an attempt by the Kremlin to "gain a foothold" in the Catholic Church, and to influence its policies and actions. The Vatican source said that the Soviet proposal is "a clear attempt to undermine the Vatican's authority and influence in the world, and to gain a foothold in the Catholic Church."

Gomulka and Moscow

Pursue my present theme picture of Vladimir Gomulka, as the figure arising when the Church in an East European state and as "the spiritual leader of the workers movement," in an article appearing in the February issue of The Tablet, I stated:

"The decision to make Gomulka the State-man instead of Cardinal Wyszynski to serve as a counterweight to the Church in Poland was in effect a decision to make the Church the sacrificial lamb in the state's ideological struggle with the Soviet Union."

Gomulka, the writer goes on to say, is not just a "political" figure, but "centers the attention of the many and the hope of the few." And while it is true that Gomulka will never be able to lead a living Church in Poland, this does not mean that the Church will be "suppressed" in any moral sense.

The Church in Poland continues to be a moral and spiritual force in the life of the Polish people, and while it is true that Gomulka himself is not able to act as a counterweight to the state's ideological struggle with the Soviet Union, the Church continues to serve this role through its faithful clergy and lay members.

The Church in Poland is not a political entity, but a spiritual one, and while it may be true that Gomulka is not able to act as a political leader, he is still able to serve as a spiritual leader to those who turn to him for guidance and support.

Claims NAM Writer Takes Narrow View

By Msgr. George H. Higgins

Director, Rome Correspondence

In a recent review we praised the NAM, the American News, as a sound and moral news source to which Catholics can give their support. We have been asked to comment on the recent letter from Mrs. Edith (who is also a name) of Cambridge, which accuses the NAM of bias. We shall not comment on the specific charges in her letter, however.

Enriching Spirituality

By Bishop Fulton J. Sheen

The spiritual life of a Christian is a dynamic activity that culminates in a marriage of the soul with the spirit. This is a relationship that allows the soul to participate in the divine mystery of God's actions. The soul is a living being that must be nurtured through prayer and meditation.

Fr. Coogan Replies To Msgr. Higgins

In the Catholic citizen's opinion of the labor union, there is a growing concern about corruption and greed being used to exploit workers. Msgr. George C. Higgins, in his Christmas column, has raised concerns about the labor movement and its relationship with the Church. We would like to comment on this issue.

Why Should We Have Contraction?

Three questions and answers are taken from Luke 1:57-59:

Jesus: "What do you see?"

Mary: "I see a little child in my arms."

Jesus: "Does this child belong to me?"

Mary: "Yes, it belongs to me."

Jesus: "What should I do for him?"

Mary: "I will do as you command."

We should strive to answer these questions with our actions, as Jesus did with his. We should seek to make a difference in the world, to help those in need, and to follow the teachings of Christ.

Paulist Seminarians Provide Features For 500 Papers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Started 15 years ago by a group of Jesuit seminarians, a Catholic feature service now appears in nearly 150 general newspapers throughout the United States, with a circulation of approximately 5,900,000.

This is the Paulist Feature Service, operated by seminarians at St. Paul's College in the nation's capital.

When the service first started in 1947, only 33 newspapers were mailed out. In 1950, however, they expanded the service to 347 names. At the same time they mailed the service to a number of large daily newspapers in the Washington area.

This service supplies newspapers with the latest information on the life and work of the Paulist Fathers — ministers of spiritual and cultural services to Catholic parishes, missions and other institutions.

A STAFF of three missionaries in the work, under the guidance of Father Kenneth Brown, J.C. Postal, working with them, is a layman who has been assigned to the work. They also send out periodical and other religious material.

The paper that they publish is called "The Advocate" and it is distributed to the newspapers through the Paulist Press, Inc., New York City.

The seminarians are planning to expand the service to include other religious material.

FEATURES of the new service include the latest information on the life and work of the Paulist Fathers — ministers of spiritual and cultural services to Catholic parishes, missions and other institutions.

THE ADVOCATE is published monthly by the Paulist Press, Inc., New York City, and distributed to the newspapers through the Paulist Feature Service.

Getting to Know the Bible Is Montclair Priest's New Book

By Anne Mac Kenzie

MONTCLAIR — "If Catholics really tried to understand Their Faith, they would have no trouble learning," says Rev. Joseph F. X. Cushing, S.T.D., this week's guest speaker at the Montclair Catholic Church. "They would have no trouble discovering the answer to the most difficult question, 'What is God?'"

Father Cushing's new book, "Getting to Know the Bible," designed to help Catholics learn more about the Faith, can be bought at bookstores for 50 cents.

Father Cushing, shown in his study at St. Carmel Parish, Montclair, is the author of a new book, "Getting to Know the Bible," designed to help Catholics learn more about the Faith.

"Our parishes, to be effective in spreading the gospel, must teach the people what it means to be Catholic," he said. "We have to teach them how to live a Catholic life."
Thoughts on 'River Kwai' and on 'Heaven Knows...'

The New York critics would lead you to believe that the year's best movie, with perhaps 'River Kwai,' behind it, was either 'The African Queen' or 'The Bells of St. Mary's.' I've seen both of these, and 'River Kwai' has the edge.

Both films are based on stories by Jack London, and 'River Kwai' is a more straightforward adaptation. The story is of a group of POWs who are forced to build a railway for the Japanese during World War II. The film is directed by David Lean and stars Alec Guinness, William Holden, and Jack Hawkins.

On the other hand, 'Heaven Knows...Mr. Allison' is a more personal film, with a much smaller cast. The story is of a pilot who crashes on a deserted island and is befriended by a group of native children. The film is directed by Delbert Mann and stars Spencer Tracy and Elizabeth MacRae.

In my opinion, 'River Kwai' is the better film. It's more cinematic, with a better score and more impressive special effects. 'Heaven Knows...Mr. Allison' is more of a character study, and while it's a good film, it's not as exciting as 'River Kwai.'

Women's Motivation and Enthusiasm Made 1957 a Banner Year

By Anna Mae Buckley

"IF A WOMAN is properly motivated and exhorted, she can be a better teacher than a whole band of apostles pouring from the pulpit.

This cannot be understated. In this age of specialization, when achievement in almost every field is measured by the degree of an individual, it is easy to lose sight of the fact that women are essentially women. And yet, when a woman is properly motivated and exhorted, she can achieve as much as any man.

The key to motivation is found in the recognition of the potential that lies within every woman. This potential is not limited to any one field, but is universal. It is the potential of creativity, of leadership, of service, of teaching. It is the potential of the individual, no matter what her background or her circumstances.

The key to enthusiasm is found in the spirit of adventure. This spirit is not limited to any one age or any one generation. It is the spirit of the individual, no matter what her age or her circumstances.

The combination of motivation and enthusiasm is the key to success. It is the key to the achievement of the individual.

The banner year of 1957 was filled with examples of women who were motivated and enthusiastic. They were women who recognized their potential and were willing to work to achieve it. They were women who were not afraid to take risks and who were willing to try new things.

The banner year of 1957 was a year of achievement for women. It was a year of recognition for women. It was a year of hope for women. It was a year of promise for women.

Women who were motivated and enthusiastic in 1957 are the women of today. They are the women who are making the world a better place for all of us. They are the women who are shaping the future.

Let us all be motivated and enthusiastic, like the women of 1957, and let us all work together to make the world a better place for all of us.
