JFK Memorial Week Highlighted at SHU

Seton Hall University is currently presenting the John F. Kennedy Memorial Exhibit, depicting in dramatic fashion the life, the message and the ideals of the late President. The exhibit began Monday, February 15, in the Student Center lounge. It will conclude on Saturday, February 27.

Complementing the exhibit will be a lecture by Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., a former advisor to President Kennedy, entitled, "The Kennedy Legacy." Mr. Schlesinger will appear at the Seton Hall Student Center on Saturday, February 20, at 8:30 p.m.

The Kennedy Memorial Exhibit features film slides and several portraits of the President, as well as tape of his speeches. The exhibit is on loan to the University from the Student Center Board of New York University's Loeb Student Center. The exhibit, prepared by the NYU Student Center Board, is currently on tour; after being shown at Seton Hall it will proceed to other universities throughout the country.

One attraction of the exhibit is certain to be a clay bust of the President which has achieved a measure of fame in the fifteen months since the assassination. It was created in clay by the Jewish artist Cantor Kous-Wittek.

Three tape recorders located in the exhibit area play continuously while the exhibit is open. Equipped with ear phones, each recorder plays famous quotes and sections of the President's more notable speeches. JFK's inspiring Inaugural Address can also be heard.

Magr. Edward J. Fleming, Executive Vice-President congratulates William Dowd and James Speath (l to r), members of the Brownson Society, who captured first place at the Columbia Debate Tournament this past weekend. The victory was their fifth of the season and second consecutively.

Debaters Take First Place At Columbia Tournament

Seton Hall captured the First Place Championship Award at the Sixth Annual Columbia College International Debate Tournament last weekend, one of the nation's largest college debate tournaments.

Seton Hall's Brownson debaters James Speath and William Dowd were undefeated throughout the tournament, in which seventy-three teams from the United States and Canada competed.

Seton Hall qualified for the semi-final rounds along with Dartmouth, Brigham Young University and Randolph-Macon College, after each school compiled an undefeated record during the preliminary rounds on Friday and Saturday. Seton Hall defeated Brigham Young in the semi-final round, and then defeated Randolph-Macon in the final.

The Columbia tournament victory marked the second in as many weeks for the Brownson Debate Society. Last week Speath and Dowd captured First Place at the King's College debate tournament.

Seton Hall will compete in several debate tournaments during the remainder of the school year. Speath and Dowd will travel to Dartmouth this weekend, and plans call for the society to attend the Navy, Pennsylvania, Richmond, and Brooklyn College tournaments.

Brownson debaters have considered an impressive winning record since the debate season began in October. Seton Hall won First Place at La Salle and Rosemont debate tournaments, was a Fifth at Tufts, and was a semi-finalist at Princeton.

The national debate tournament for 1964-65 was held in New York City. Seton Hall's undefeated record of public works has been played. Debaters are urged to support the school's efforts to win both schools the first in the nation.

Phi Kappa Theta Agrees To Return Hazard Trophy

Phi Kappa Theta has agreed to return the Hazard Trophy to the IFC.

On Monday morning the University Fraternity Committee, comprised of seven administrators including Executive Vice-President Magr. Edward Fleming and Director of Student Affairs Rev. Robert Fennell, convened in an attempt to help resolve the controversy. The Committee met with four members of the IFC and David Pearsall, President of Phi Kappa Theta.

IFC President Steve Leonardis produced a copy of the Hazard Competition rules, available prior to this time because it had been on loan to a fraternity, which he used as evidence to support the IFC's claim that Phi Kappa Theta, the only winner of the Hazard

Competition, was holding the trophy illegally. The rules stated in part that "The winner of the trophy for one year shall return the trophy to the IFC after one year. Presentation of the trophy shall be by the Interfraternity Council, not the previous year's winner."

The competition had been suspended after the first year and Phi Kappa Theta had held the trophy ever since.

In view of this new evidence, Pearsall agreed to return the trophy.

Both Leonardis and Magr. Fleming commented after the meeting that settlement of the controversy was reached by the students themselves. The students should be self-authoritative in this matter, commented Magr. Fleming.

Professor Duff To Participate In 'Irish' Panel

Seton Hall Professor of history Dr. John B. Duff will participate in a special panel discussion to be conducted by the Mississippi Valley Historical Society at its annual convention in April.

The panel's theme is "Irish American and American Diplomacy." Dr. Duff will present for discussion a paper titled "Irish Opposition to the Versailles Treaty."

Another paper, "Irish American Coercion, 1860 to 1883," will be delivered by Professor (Aven Dudley) Edwards of Oregon University.

Chairmanship of the panel will be shared by Dr. Duff to University and David W. Pletcher of Hamilton, N. J. Joseph O'Grady of La Salle will be the panel chairman.

Col. Schmidt Named PMS

Colonel James K. Schmidt has been assigned as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Seton Hall University, succeeding Lt. Col. Ralph Pope who has assumed a new station at the Pentagon.

The new director of the 1000-man Seton Hall ROTC program comes to the position from Syracuse, New York, where he was commander of the New York State of the U.S. Army Corps.

A native of Chicago, the colonel graduated from West Point in 1938 and during World War II he commanded an infantry battalion in the European Theater. Following the war he was military governor of the city and county of Berlin, Germany. In 1947 he was responsible for the G-5 force, 2nd Air Division of the Army's Security Agency School. In 1952 he was assigned to the National Chinese Military Academy to assist in the reform of its educational program, similar to that of West Point. He subsequently served in the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence at Washington, D.C.

From 1954 to 1962 he was the Army Attaché in Stockholm, Sweden. He has also participated with at Columbia and Georgetown, D.C.

Seton Hall's Marking Process - Unique and Fast

STEP 1: Professor fills out duplicate class cards for each student and enters the marks on official grade sheet.

Have you ever wondered what happens to your marks after class and before you get them? Well, Seton Hall's marking process is unique and fast. It involves a computer, a large number of students, and a lot of work. The process begins with the professor filling out a duplicate class card for each student and entering the marks on an official grade sheet. This is the first step in a process that involves a computer, a large number of students, and a lot of work. ## Remove The Ban -- 1

Last week, the sports editor of THE SETONIAN, Jim Ogle, Jr., attempted to explain the reasons for the decline of Seton Hall University as a major basketball power. He placed the responsibility for this decline on the shoulders of the members of the University's Athletic Council who have established the ban on post-season tournaments, playing in public arenas and scheduling inter-sectional games.

The future of Seton Hall basketball will be determined by the Council's attitude on the role of athletics in the University. It is obvious that the present ban manifests a de-emphasis of athletics. The University (represented by the Athletic Council) has decided that athletics do not have to play an integral role in the life of the University.

But we believe the problem is much more deeply seeded than merely concerning the quality of a particular athletic team. The significance of the ban far exceeds the realm of athletics.

The Council's ban is nothing else but the proverbial ostrich "burying his head in the sand." It shows a complete lack of confidence in the Catholic educational process involving ethics and morality. For the Council, the best way to prevent future scandals is to remove the athlete from any situation which would require him to demonstrate personal responsibility regarding ethical conduct. In other words, give a man Catholic training but don't dare give him the opportunity to practice what he has learned.

The ban also demonstrates a complete lack of confidence in Seton Hall University. Of the 30 or more colleges involved in the scandal, only Seton Hall has resorted to this form of masochism.

Perhaps we're being naive when we say that we believe in Seton Hall and the Seton Hall athlete. Perhaps we're being immature if we believe that Seton Hall can participate in a normal, unrestricted athletic program without being fearful of dire results. Perhaps we're only being idealists by holding that Catholic morality and ethics are adequate to prepare one to live in modern society. But if the ban continues, and we begin to convince ourselves that we are really only naive, immature, and idealists, then our image of Seton Hall and Catholic education in general, must suffer.

We say - REMOVE THE BAN - not to give Seton Hall a national champion but to maintain our confidence in Catholic education and in our University. To sustain the ban is to infer, not that Seton Hall has failed in the past, but that it is failing now.

California Institute of Technology (CPS).

Cal Tech has abolished grades for freshmen for a two-year experimental period.

At the end of each semester, freshmen will be notified only of whether they have passed or failed their courses. The new policy was adopted to ease competition for grades among its entering students.

University of Pittsburgh: Pittsburgh, Penn.

At a mid-day address to the student body, Dr. Ashley Montagu, chairman of the department of anthropology at Rutgers University, claimed that women are superior to men constitutionally, emotionally, and intellectually, in fact, in all respects except muscular power, weight, and bone size. "Men have a higher metabolism rate than women," and they go up in smoke quicker and die sooner. "Women, on the other hand, are the more valuable of the species because they bear children and must be strong enough to do so. If men had to give birth, there would be no human species."

He continued to prove his point by showing that women are more intelligent than men. He showed this by quoting statistics of recent intelligence tests taken throughout the country. Dr. Montagu concluded his talk with this statement: "Women are more insightful and quicker on the intake and to this they have always been burned at the stake. Even so they have always had to stay by the hearth and care for and feed the children and the technical adult who is called a husband."

Loyola College: Montreal, Canada.

At a debate between professors and students before the incoming freshman class, Professor Wareham of the English department declared: "The primary aim of the professor is to flunk the student." He went on to say that "knowledge is not the primary purpose of a college education."

Long Island University: Long Island, New York.

The dean of men handed down two decisions last month as a direct result of student senate proposals. The first, and by far the most important, concerned the subject of unlimited cuts. The senate passed a resolution calling for "the abolition of compulsory class attendance." The dean, considering the subject, asked the faculty for their views. The faculty feared a consistent absence of all students from their classes. A compromise decision was made by the dean. It allowed for unlimited cuts for all dean's list students. The second decision dealt with the placing of the instructor's name next to the course name in all listings.

This will allow the student select a course, to get the teacher he prefers.

University of Kansas: (ACP).

The 23 girls who have their living quarters in the laundry rooms because of temporary overcrowding are adjusting. But one of them, Bonnie Ward, a senior, has this complaint: "The girls keep coming into my room to wash their feet in my big sink."

Newark State College: Union, New Jersey.

Parking is always a big problem at college. At this college, the situation has gotten completely out of hand. For each parking violation, and tickets are given out very liberally, the offending student is charged $5.00. To make matters worse, there is no way a student may appeal his fine. If campus police feel like giving any car a parking ticket, they do, and there is nothing the victim can do.

DePaul University: Chicago, Illinois.

Members of the Associated Women, better known as coeds, picketed the Liberal Arts Building last month over the fate of the women's lounge, a haven for sleepy studios, or otherwise reclusive coeds. It seems that Jack Anderson, director of the audio-visual department turned the room into a permanent projection room. The following Friday was a day of picketing by the Associated Women. They carried signs reading "Rally Round the Lounge, Girls" and "Dog IS Man's Best Friend, Not Jack Anderson", and climaxed their demonstration by the hanging of Jack Anderson in effigy. Finally the dean awarded the victory to the coeds and reinstated the status of the lounge.

Justice Under the Law

By David L. Ziegler

There are two types of civil disobedience advocated in this country today. Violent civil disobedience, also called revolution, is advocated by the "Black Muslims" and certain other black nationalists. Non-violent civil disobedience, or passive resistance, is the policy of various groups like the NAACP and CORE. These groups seek to use non-violent demonstration as means to rectify what they feel are injustices.

Many feel that non-violence is not only preferable to violence, but also justified. This could be a dangerous policy because both philosophies seek to undermine the law; they differ only in their choice of means. The staunchest supporter of civil rights in America today is the Supreme Court. However, in a recent decision on Jan. 13, 1965, the court as a whole went out of its way to warn militant civil rights demonstrators against infringing the rights of others in their demonstrations.

Justice Goldberg, speaking for the majority, in a case reversing the conviction of Rev. H. E. Cox, a field director of CORE, for leading a group of demonstrators in Baton Rouge, La., stated in warning: "The Right of Free Speech and Assembly... still does not mean that everyone with opinions or beliefs may address a group at any public place at any time. The constitutional guarantee of liberty, implies the existence of an organized society maintaining public order, without which liberty itself would be lost in the excesses of anarchy."

Liberal Justice Hugo Black, in a strong dissent, went even further to warn advocates of civil disobedience. Black pointed out: "Justice cannot be rightly administered... where throngs of people clamor against the processes of justice right outside the courthouse doors. The streets are not now and never have been the proper place to administer justice. Use of the street for such purposes has always proved disastrous to individual liberty in the long run... And minority groups... are the ones who have always suffered and always will suffer when street multitudes are allowed to substitute their pressures for the less glamorous but more dependable and temperate processes of law. Experience demonstrates that it is not a far step from what to many seems the earnest, honest, patriotic kind spirit multitude of today to the fanatical, threatening, lawless mob of tomorrow."

The court also pointed out that the right of free speech also includes the companion right not to listen and that free speech and assembly are protected only "where the people have a right to be for such purposes." Indeed, civil disobedience as a whole, is a dangerous doctrine because it leaves the decision on the legitimacy of each law up to the individual. The result of this doctrine, if carried to its logical conclusion, would be anarchy. The militant minorities of this country would do well to remember the second half of their favorite quotation, "Equal Justice Under the Law."

Lyndon Johnson's 'Great Society' -- Should It Be An American Monopoly?

By Robert J. Wilhelm

The Great Society has finally arrived. Most Americans are enjoying the highest standards of living that man has ever known while those who are not yet sharing the fruits of our society can hopefully look forward to President Johnson's programs on civil rights, education, medicare, and urban renewal to come to their aid within the next few years. Yet, The Great Society that we speak about so optimistically is improbable — indeed, impossible — to the mass of men in Africa, Asia, and Latin America. With every passing year, the gap between ourselves and the underdeveloped world is actually widening so that the rich are indeed becoming richer while the poor become poorer.

The root of the problem is the unchecked population growth that is wiping out most of the economic gains that the underdeveloped nations are making, as Eugene Black, the President of the World Bank, has noted. We must face the facts and admit that we are responsible for this; we have brought the miracles of modern science into disease-filled lands, wiping out one disease after another and thereby removing the check on population that disease provided while failing to increase food production and to meet population growth. In India alone, there are 11 million babies born each year; 11 million more mouths to feed.

To further aggravate the problem, we have generally failed to industrialize these nations, leaving them with the job of producing the raw materials (like coffee, cocoa, rubber, minerals, sugar, and bananas). Unfortunately, prices on these goods have declined nearly 5 per cent since 1957. Result: more people and less money.

In face of the pressing problems that these countries face, we do practically nothing. President Johnson has done nothing but propose the lowest foreign aid budget in the last two decades, and of the 3 billion dollar budget, approximately 1 million dollars is being poured down the drain of military assistance.

In view of the Administration's indifference to the plight of two billion people, it must be asked whether the Great Society is to be an exclusive possession of Americans.

The Great Society will not be realized in countries like Brazil, India, and Malaysia until we decide to act for these people who are caught in a system that they themselves cannot escape. They need help.

First, is it not time that we wholeheartedly support a drive to check the number of births in these countries? Secondly, should we not concentrate on developing the industries of the underdeveloped countries instead of exhausting these countries of irreplaceable minerals and petroleum deposits. (It is interesting to note that only 22 per cent of American investments in Latin America is in manufacturing. Except for a few per cent invested in communications and utilities, the rest of the American companies are involved in stripping these countries of their irreplaceable mineral and petroleum deposits. Are we actually developing their economies or just lining our own pockets?) Thirdly, shouldn't we engage ourselves in a meaningful foreign aid program? Is it too much to expect a wealthy country with a Gross National Product of about 850 billion dollars to contribute a mere one and a half per cent of its GNP to the underdeveloped nations? How much could be done with 10 billion dollars in economic aid, and President Johnson asks for 2 billion instead. Who, we might ask the president, is the Great Society for? Is it to be an American Monopoly?

Joe Seton Says---

I have returned home this week and am prepared to loaf until exam time rolls around again. In my travels to other camps I have gotten a new insight on S.H.U. In looking around the school I have noticed some strange things. While trying to sneak into the Galleon Room to get a free meal I noticed a good number of patrons eating all they could for the dollar and a quarter and then rushing outside to have their chauffeurs drive them home. Nowadays even students eat down there, especially since some sharp-eyed student noticed a Merkel Meat truck parked behind Corrigan Hall.

In my opinion, even the intellectual aspect of campus life at Seton Hall has risen. Go into the Snack Bar and you will find students watching such scholarly programs as "Squid Sales" and "Chillers" from Science Fiction. If you can't find the students there you will find them in the lounge betting on what the things on the wall are.

Aside from the intellectual life of our scholars, their social lives were broadened this week. Everyone was feigning interest in every fraternity possible so that he could go to their beer parties. Ah! the joys of rush week (Hiccup).

Before I forget, HAPPY ANNIVERSARY. Yes, it's our anniversary. Just one year ago we started a fad at S.H.U. — rioting! Now everybody's doing it — California students, Viet Nam students, and even Beate fans. If the paper isn't banned this year we'll really be mad, because we won't have any excuse for cutting class. The only ones on campus who are really mad are the W.S.O.U. workers. Some despondent student who flunked Mush Appreciation tried to hang himself from their power line and only succeeded in breaking it. That eliminates one more "vast wasteland".

Now that weariness is overtaking me I would like to leave you with one HANGING thought. "There's nothing like the real thing."

'Golden Boy' - Sammy Davis at His Best

This review is being printed in conjunction with Sammy Davis' scheduled appearance at the end of this month).

By Leonard Kessler

One of the unfortunate realities with a majority of Broadway shows which boasts a big star is that the vehicle becomes just a showcase for the famous personality. Happily, this is not the case with the musical, "Golden Boy," which opened in October at the Majestic theatre. Even with Sammy Davis, this up-dated adaptation of the Clifford Odets' play of the same name, still retains an excitement all its own. Without hesitation, one can say that it is worthy of the remarkable talents that its headliner displays and this is a high compliment indeed.

It has a timely and dramatically-charged story, a distinctively melodic score, unusually vital choreography, and finally (but far from least) a performance which makes the show really go-go-go. Considering all the trouble that the "Boy" has met, he is in terrifically good shape.

Producer Hillard Elkins was fortunate in securing the gifted "Miracle Workers" writer, William Gibson and director Arthur Penn. They were called in after Mr. Odets' original script was found to be wanting, and Gibson had to write an entirely new scenario. His colleague was able to follow through with a novel approach to the musical, which details the rather tragic tale of a Negro trying to emulate the white man by boxing his way to fame.

A favorite theme of twentieth-century literature is search for personal identity. In this decade, it is the black man who looks for a meaning to his life, and during the quest fails in attempts to find himself. Joe Wellington (Sammy Davis) love with his manager's mistress, a female member of the Caucasian race. Needless to say, this stirs up some provocative moments for all concerned.

There has been some complaint that this affair is distasteful and dramatically unsound. To this viewer, it was hardly so. It had the ring of truth because this is what one would expect from characters who were thrust into these circumstances. True, the other areas of the story were technically more trenchant, but this does not mean that the romance was unbelievable.

Using the protagonist's neighbors, the creators are able to introduce an appeal for the civil rights cause. There is an episode where these disadvantaged folk tell the hero not to forget his "happy Harlem home" while he is on a cross-country boxing tour. With this satirical, tuneful choreographic sketch, "Golden Boy" enjoys one of its few light moments. In the second act, they sing and dance about how the other race has taken away all their dignity—for the last time. This chorus, called "No More," is as thrilling a number as can be seen anywhere on the "big White Way." And it makes sense, too.

Following its unconventional manner, "Golden Boy" disregards the adage that a strong libretto means just another score will do. Tunemasters Charles Strouse and Lee Adams, writers of the delightful "Bye Bye Birdie" melodies, have not settled for the mediocre in their change-of-pace music here. All of it is not brilliant, but does, nonetheless, serve its purpose admirably. "I Want to be with You" and "Night Song" can be heard on the air-waves.

Credit must definitely be given to Donald McKayle for his evocative musical staging. The opening number showing pugilists in training is a masterpiece, as is the startling finale fight. Tony Walton has devised a new type of scenery using photographic projections instead of the conventional settings. It is marvelously effective, for it provides an authenticity which lends itself to the starkness of the unfolding drama. Tharon Musser's lighting is excellent and never loses touch with scenery or plot. It is extraordinarily accurate and pleasant to the eye.

In support of Sammy Davis is Paula Wayne, his partner and Billy Daniels, his promoter. Miss Wayne has a sultry singing voice that needs more depth to reach the emotions.

However, she presents a good characterization. Daniels has a vibrant cameo part as the villain. He is, naturally, a night club entertainer but feels everyone by feeling the scenes in which he appears. And Sammy Davis, what more can be said about him, except that he has not lost his special magic. He paints a touching, pitiable, and very real portrait as a boxer. He has many emotional moments and puts them over like the professional he is.

No, Mr. Davis, you need not have worried. All the work you have invested has paid off in more than money. Anyone going to see just you alone will be surprised to find that "Golden Boy" itself is pure gold, mainly due to its perseverance to keep away from the golden-mean. You, however, have enriched it so that it is a luminous work for Broadway.

We get pretty concerned about the way life insurance is often sold.

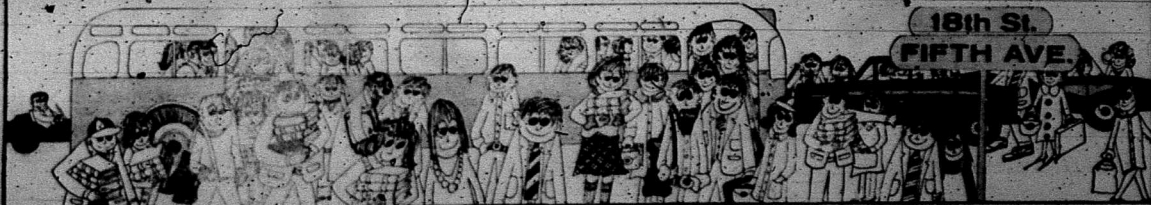

We're not in favor of a client just buying a policy and getting it over with. We want him to understand what it's all about, how his policy can be made to serve a variety of future needs, how it will fit into an overall financial program tailored to his own requirements.

It's this approach that separates the professional from the ordinary salesman. And if you feel you'd be more satisfied dealing with a professional, we're at your service.

Mermen Hand Blackbirds First Loss; Crooks Wind 2

The Seton Hall Swimming team led by two victories by co-captain Bob Crooks, handed Long Island University its first defeat of the season Saturday, 55-40, in Brooklyn.

Crooks came up with victories in the 200 meter individual medley, winning with a time of 2:23.1, and in the 200 yard breaststroke. His time for the breaststroke was 2:33.3.

There were no other double winners for the Pirates, but their depth proved too much for the Black Birds. A triumph in the 400 yard medley relay opened the meet for the Hall.

and gave them a lead they never lost.

Frosh Five Notches Two. Down NYU, Jersey City

Like the varsity, Seton Hall's freshman basketball team got back on the winning trail last week, downing New York University, 68-63, and Jersey City State, 70-68. The victories left coach John Gibson's quintet with a 4-13 mark.

In the NYU game, which was also all the way, Garry Mackey, once again led all scorers with 29 points. It was the fourth time this season that the Long Island standout reached the 29 point mark. Brian Blake and Don Gregory followed Mackey in the scoring.

The Jersey City State team was a rout from the opening whistle. With the frosh playing one of their best games of the season, Mackey was the leading scorer with 20 points, followed by 19 each from Blake, Gregory and Pete Meola.

Blake, the 6-9 center has been showing a strong improvement in the last few games, boosting his points per game average close to the 12 point level. Mackey is currently leading the team in that department with a 19.4 norm followed by Gregory at 18.

The froshes play Princeton at Princeton tonight and Seton Hall also away on Friday. They then will close out the season at home with games against St. Peter's, Villanova and Iona. In their last few games they will be trying to bring their record up to a point where it would be considered respectable, and they deserve your support.

Baseball Drills Begin

The Seton Hall baseball team, seventh ranked in the nation last year, will open spring practice on March 1. Coach Owen Carroll, entering his 19 season at the Hall, will be trying to fill spots vacated via graduation last year and will be hoping for another trip to the College World Series.

The first official meeting of the team will be held this afternoon in the "little" gym at 3:45.

Intramural Action Curtailed

Intramural play took a week off and a few extra nights because of the power failure. Mike Lilloa leads everybody in all leagues, with 37, 36 and 34 points in his three games with the Dragons.

Pateron Catholic's Plaza and the Bombers, Hayes each had a 4 point individual performance.

The fraternity leagues have learned how to play defense and Turncoats are 8-0 in the United the high score is Omega Pi's O'Brien with 27 points. Omega Pi and the Turncoats have the two highest scoring teams in the leagues.

There are four undefeated teams left, one for each league. Delta Sigma Delta is leading the National League with an 8-0 mark, with Omega Pi tops in the American League, with a 7-0 record. OPAC is 9-0 in the Federal League and the Turncoats are 8-0 in the United

Dec, Cucculo... Consistent Pair

By Bob Widren

Consistency is the trade mark of an experienced athlete. It is the quality that distinguishes him from the run of the mill variety. In basketball, consistency is more important than in most sports.

A player who scores twenty points in each of two games is more important to a team than one who scores thirty-eight in one and two in the next. It is a steady influence on a team to know that a player will be "at" every game, rather than have to worry about his daily changes.

On the Pirates' squad, where consistency is consistently lacking, two players stand out in every game. No matter who the opposition is, SHU fans usually can expect good well-rounded efforts from 6-4 Tony Cucculo and 6-5 Richie Dec.

Cucculo, a junior from West Orange, has shone all season long with his deadly jump shot and good rebounding. These two facts along with a developing drive have helped Tony achieve his 17 point average, the Pirates' best.

Along with this, the hard-core young athlete has handled his weight well on his defense assignments. Last year things were a bit different.

Tony had come on from the frosh with a 25.8 average, the second highest in that history. But the first half of the season he had trouble breaking into the starting lineup, despite a twenty-two point performance against Baltimore Loyola.

His big break came after the team had a bad one, the loss of 8-7 Harrison. Shaon through a knee injury. Tony handled himself well throughout those games, posting in key jumpers and pulling down important rebounds. His average for the season hovered around seven a game despite thirty-nine percent field goal average, an average that has soared this season.

Tony's best effort so far

TONY CUCCULO

This season was against St. Francis. In the Wagner game Tony scored twenty-four points and along the way with a few seconds left in regulation time, scored the game-winning basket. His efforts the Pirates gained a 60-55 victory over the Cougars. (That's all we need.)

Richie Dec came on at half court with some pretty "hot" shooting. In a game against Pateron Catholic, he hit an A-1 shot, a 3-point shot, and a 10-foot shot. He was known for his "hot" shooting in the game.

However, the Seton Hall Pirates front court is not a "hot" team and usually the defense wins. Richie moves quite fast and is a powerful ball handler. It wasn't his fault either.

For all that, the team has had to play a tough game at Nick We Know, SHU's All-American and national scoring champ.

The Pirates' defense has made a big season from the front court. The team has lost and although the defense has been effective, it has not stopped the game. There is no doubt of his talent, but he has to be better.

What Cucculo and Dec have done is to show that the team is not a "hot" team and usually the defense wins. Richie moves quite fast and is a powerful ball handler. It wasn't his fault either.

No one could fault the team's defense. The team has lost and although the defense has been effective, it has not stopped the game. There is no doubt of his talent, but he has to be better.

Non - 'Contact' Sport

No, this isn't the start of a dice game, it's just the search for the missing contact lens. Niagara forward, Larry Coleman, lost it for the second time in the game, and called for help to find it. The game was delayed about 10 minutes, before it was discovered.

Two-Mile Relay Team Wins Easily, Defends National Title Saturday

By Pete Kolie

Seton Hall's two mile relay team registered their second major triumph of the indoor season Thursday night in the New York Athletic Club Annual indoor meet at Madison Square Garden.

The team of Vadim Schaldenko, Benji Andrews, George Germann, and Herb Germann posted the fastest two mile time in the nation this season. They missed the Madison Square Garden record for the event by only two tenths of a second as they hit 7:31.8. The world record for this event for an eleven lap to the mile track is 7:27.

Competing in the "George E. Ruppert" Metropolitan College 2 Mile Relay, the Pirates team ran away from the rest of the competition and lapped a team from Rutgers. Their opposition included teams from Fordham, Iona, Manhattan, and Rutgers. Vadim Schaldenko, the only sophomore on the team, marked his first varsity two mile relay appearance in the Garden with the fastest time for the half in his career. Running a time of 1:56.6, he handed the baton to team-mate Bruce Andrews in a very close third place.

Bruce ran a good time of 1:53.3 as he handed off to George Germann in second place. George ran 1:51.7 as he broke the race wide open, moving away from the Fordham men with two laps to go.

With the victory in the bag Herb Germann steadily increased the margin over second place Manhattan to 60 yards as he ran the fastest time on the team, 1:50.2.

Villanova, Seton Hall's chief rival in the two mile relay this season, was disqualified from another two mile relay. The track judges ruled that Villanova's first runner, Jim Orr, did not retrieve the baton he dropped, but had it handed to him by another competitor.

The second Seton Hall win of the night was turned in by the Pirates' mile relay. Mike Barrett, Frank Hagan, Tom Tushingham, and Ben Doyle registered a time of 3:24.2 as they defeated teams from LaSalle, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, and Fairleigh Dickinson.

Mike Barrett led off, and, although he was hampered by a sore ankle, brought the baton in even with St. Joe's as he handed to Frank Hagan. Frank ran his best race of the season as he hit 51.7, staying right with St. Joe's second man.

Tom Tushingham ran a 50.7 as he passed off to Ben Doyle in second place. Doyle passed the St. Joe's anchor man with a little over a lap left and posted a fast 48.5 clocking as the Seton-Hall team turned in their first victory of the 1965 season.

The mile relay team has been steadily improving and should be able to better their time even more as the season progresses. They show great promise for the future since three of them, Mike Barrett, Frank Hagan, and Ben Doyle, are only Sophomores.

Two "mile relay" teams competed for the Frosh, one running in a handicap race and the other in the Metropolitan College Freshman Relay. Running with a handicap of 35 yards Keith Reester, Ken Perry, John Martin and Donato Lamonica ran 3:28.0 as they placed fourth in their section. Bob Thomson, Charlie Ortiz, Bob Sweeney, and Joe Law also placed fourth in their race running 3:29.

This Saturday night the Two mile relay team will be defending their National AAU two mile relay title for the third year in succession. They will also be attempting to better their own National AAU Indoor Championship record of 7:33 which they set last year.

Eagles, Frankies Fall; Dec Hits 1000 Mark

By Jim Ogle Jr.
Sports Editor

As the Seton Hall basketball fortunes are concerned, last week was the week that was. They enjoyed a four game losing streak with victories over Niagara and St. Francis. Richie Dec became the sixth player in history to pass the 1000 point plateau and Charley Mitchell played the greatest game of the year, scoring 33 points and tying the school record for assists in one game.

Saturday night's game was no easier against the six game neither team holding too much of a lead. Richie Dec, Reggie Kiser, and the Pirates' leading scorer with 23 points, led off and, after another missed shot, finally made it.

It was lucky that the Pirates, sitting from the foul line, connecting on 28 of 36, because the Frankies, who fell from the floor, equalling the Pirates total of 44 field goals. The difference in the game, 21 points, was all from the foul line. Had Reggie Kiser decided to leave to visit team in all the way, however, the National All-star scoring record would have been in jeopardy.

The Hall started off quickly and built up a 12 margin with only 3:05 gone of the game. The team stayed around the 10 point mark until there were about 11 minutes to go. The Pirates then went on a spree which quickly added the lead to 43-27, with Cha Dec Mitchell supplying most of the firepower.

The Frankies closed the gap slightly in the last 12, scoring six points on baskets by Del Coyle and Pete Kowalewski. This made the Pirates hold a three margin, 63-57, which allowed the school to score from the NBA.

The game continued into the second stanza with Mitchell and Cha Dec leading the scoring. With 12:29 to play, they brought baskets by Cha Dec put the game out of reach.

Dec scored fifth time in getting the eight points he needed, making the 1000th on a free throw with 3:30 gone in the first half. Overall, Richie played his usual good, steady game collecting 25 to move him into fifth place in the scoring race ahead of "Pop" Saul.

Cuccolo, really turning into a fine ballplayer the second half of the season, also added to boosting his average over the 17 point mark. He, if he can improve as much next year as he has this season, he could be another member in the 1000-point club.

Mitchell played the type of basketball that a coach dreams about. He did everything, scored, passed, rebounded and hustled throughout the entire game. His 12 assists put his name in the Hall record book along with Reggie Kiser and Randy Chave. Harry Slaton and Hoot Evers, also had good games, with Harry clearing the boards and Evers contributing his usual steady play. Evers, one of the most underated players of the squad, has started last three games and has given in the offense a boost. He may not be flashy but always gets the job done, scoring when needed.

and forget about the zone, could spring a few upsets.

sary and not hurting any on defense.

The Niagara clash was more of a ball game, with the outcome not being assured until late in the game. With 5:01 to go the Bucs held a precarious 67-66 lead and quickly called time out for a conference with Regan.

Immediately following that, the Pirates went on a 10-3 spurt to wrap it up at 77-69 with a 2-41 to go. Two three-point plays by Dec was the key to that surge.

The Purple Eagles (3-14) gave the Pirates a rough time in the first half, with the score staying close all the way. The Eagles had the biggest lead of the half, 27-19 with 7:57 to go. Two layups by Cuccolo and a jumper by Mitchell, however, quickly brought the Bucs back into contention. Play continued on an even keel with the score being knotted 39 all at the half.

Cuccolo led all scorers with 24 points, followed by Dec with 24 and Mitchell with 20. Dec also pulled down 19 rebounds. Slaton netted six points and grabbed 18 rebounds. Tom Lemney paced the Eagles with 21 points.

The Pirates now go on a three game road trip through Pennsylvania playing LaSalle, Scranton and Duquesne, before returning home for the big game with St. Peter's on Feb. 24. These games will take top efforts, and if the Bucs can continue their hot shooting and forget about the zone, could spring a few upsets.
