I. Course Introduction and Objectives¹

This course is an introduction to the field of International Relations –its basic concepts, theories and central concerns such as war and peace, conflict and cooperation, poverty and prosperity. The course will provide you with an understanding of the basic concepts in the field, including power, interdependence, sovereignty and globalization. We will examine different levels of analysis that structure this inquiry, and learn the different ways in which scholars of global politics explain evolution and functioning of the international system. The course will focus on the nation-state, historically the primary actor in IR, as well as examine the growing role of non-state actors, including non-governmental and international organizations as well as social movements. Students will develop a basic understanding of different theoretical approaches and utilize these lenses to explain international events, applying this knowledge to explain and understand the relations of different actors in the international system. As a course designed to meet the Oral Communication Proficiency, students will also be expected to demonstrate and hone oral and written communications skills.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Familiarity with the basic concepts, theories and perspectives of IR to understand and analyze world events of your time
2. A foundation from which to critically think about, analyze and relate current issues to contemporary IR
3. Application of theoretical concepts and theories in analyzing real-life cases.

II. Course Requirements

Required Texts:

1. Jackson, Robert H, and Georg Sørensen. 2010. Introduction to International Relations: Theories and Approaches. New York: Oxford University Press.
2. Nye, Joseph S. 2009. Understanding International Conflicts: An Introduction to Theory and History. New York: Pearson Longman.
3. Other readings may be assigned throughout the semester and they will be made available on blackboard so you avoid incurring the additional expense of purchasing a reader.

- Attendance and Participation: (10 points) Attendance is extremely important because the course will be interactive in nature. Participation in the class discussions is critical to student learning and to exhibit that the required material is being read. Students should read and reflect on the readings ahead of time in order for class sessions to have the most value. Students can also participate by asking questions, circulating emails, organizing study groups, exchanging writing or introducing new ideas and resources. Excessive absences may result in a failing grade.

- Student debates (10 points): During debates, you will have the opportunity to discuss and debate controversial issues in international relations, that is, issues on which there is disagreement, and reasonable, strong arguments can be made on both sides. The topics of debates will be distributed in class.

The debates will be run using a panel format, with two or three class members adopting the pro (yes) side of an issue and two or three others, the con (no) side. Panel members on both sides will present arguments on their respective sides. Following the arguments, the discussion will be opened up for questions, comments, and criticisms from the general class. Each student will participate on a panel for one issue, selected at random at the beginning of the term. Each student on the pro and con side will present his/her arguments for 10 minutes (30 min for each team) followed by the Q & A from the class. To prepare your debate, you can use readings provided on the Blackboard or in textbooks, but you are also encouraged to conduct a research and find additional sources that can support your arguments.

- Debate paper (5 points): on the day of the debate, each panelist must also provide the instructor with a short paper (maximum two pages, 12 point font, Times New Roman, double spaced) on your preparation and research for the debate. The paper will be collected at the beginning of class. The paper should address the following:
 1. A summation of your position stand in the debate and the reasons for your stance
 2. A description of the distribution of work within the group (who did what).
 3. What you liked about the assignment and what difficulties you had with the assignment
 4. A list of references consulted in the preparation for the debate (any reference style can be used, but be consistent). The reference list is not included in the page limit.
- Group presentation (25 points): Students in this class will be divided into groups of 4 to 5 people. Each group will conduct a research project to explore the deep sources of a current international conflict of their choice and suggest ways of addressing it. In this project, you should apply concepts and theories from the readings on the case that you have chosen. Each group will submit an outline on the group's findings prior to the presentation (as bullet points or notes, 2- 5 pages, double-spaced) to the instructor and through an oral presentation to the class.
- Midterm and final exams (50 points): There will be a midterm exam worth 25 points and a final exam worth 25 points. Midterm exam should be 3-6 pages long and the final exam should be 5-7 pages long (double-spaced, font 12, Times New Roman font, 1'-margin). You will do the exams at home and you will have a limited time to finish them (e.g. you will receive the questions via email at 9 am and you will have to submit the exam by 4 pm that day via email). For each paper, you will be asked to choose one out of three questions and reflect critically on it using materials covered in the class. You will submit the exams to the instructor via email.

- Delays, deferrals, or a grade of “incomplete” for the course will be given only in cases of personal or immediate family crisis. Late papers will receive penalized points.

III. Academic Integrity

All students are required to abide by Seton Hall's rules concerning academic integrity, which are discussed in detail in the college catalog. Students are expected to submit their own work, and to give credit when and where credit is due. Any form of cheating -- fraud, copying, submitting another's work, submitting internet papers, plagiarism, etc. -- will result in an "F" for the course.

Plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty will be reported to the administration, and may result in a lowered or failing grade for the course and up to possible dismissal from the School of Diplomacy. See University and School standards for academic conduct here:

IV. Disabilities

It is the policy and practice of Seton Hall University to promote inclusive learning environments. If you have a documented disability you may be eligible for reasonable accommodations in compliance with University policy, the Americans with Disabilities Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and/or the New Jersey Law against Discrimination. Please note, students are not permitted to negotiate accommodations directly with professors. To request accommodations or assistance, please self-identify with the Office for Disability Support Services (DSS), Duffy Hall, Room 67 at the beginning of the semester. For more information or to register for services, contact DSS at (973) 313-6003 or by e-mail at DSS@shu.edu.

IV. Policy on Incompletes

Incompletes will be given only in exceptional cases for emergencies. Students wishing to request a grade of Incomplete must provide documentation to support the request accompanied by a Course Adjustment Form (available from the Diplomacy Main Office) to the professor before the date of the final examination. If the incomplete request is approved, the professor reserves the right to specify the new submission date for all missing coursework. Students who fail to submit the missing course work within this time period will receive a failing grade for all missing coursework and a final grade based on all coursework assigned. Any Incomplete not resolved within one calendar year of receiving the Incomplete or by the time of graduation (whichever comes first) automatically becomes an “FI” (which is equivalent to an F). It is the responsibility of the student to make sure they have completed all course requirements within the timeframe allotted. Please be aware that Incompletes on your transcript will impact financial aid and academic standing.
