For Cardinal Rispens Rapa Idea of Religious Test

CHICAGO [ILL.] — Cardinal Stritch of Chicago has declared that he "can not understand" why anyone should believe that a Catholic, "because of his faith, is in any way disqualified for any civil office in our country.

He added that he had never looked upon the question of the religious qualifications of candidates for office in any case, as one which should be of the strictest interest to the religious body that he represents. "We Catholics should not be individuals in any sense, but a community," he said.

In a letter to President Woodrow Wilson, dated July 3, 1918, the cardinal said: "We are all united in the service of God, and it is our duty to promote the principles of the social order.

The pope's speech was made at the request of the president, who had asked him if he would be willing to give his views on the question of religious qualifications for civil office.

The cardinal said that he was aware of the difficulties which might be encountered in the way of putting his views into practice, but he believed that the Catholic Church was entitled to a fair hearing on the question.

Text of Instructions From the Holy See Regarding High School Coeducation

Pope Pius XI.

... have been asked by this Holy See the sort of coeducation which is desired. The foundation of the Church is the individual's personal moral and spiritual growth, and the aim of education is to help the individual in this growth. Therefore, the education of the young should be such as to make them conscious of this, and to help it along. This is the principle which should guide the teaching of the young, and which should be the basis of all coeducation. ...
CINCINNATI — The possibility that the West may "bleed for" communism by joining the coalition, has been openly discussed here by Douglas Hyde, former communist leader in Ireland, in an address at Xavier University.

"This idea has gone very far," said Mr. Hyde, a convert, that it appears as if the communist movement has grown to be a serious one. The president of the National Student for Socialization, said Mr. Hyde, is well known all over the country, and that the idea has gained ground among the people. It is the belief of the writer that this movement is a serious one, and that it is time that the people began to take it seriously.

Fellow Americans, Beware!

Three weeks ago (in "Mr. President, Remend to the Nation") I wrote these words.

The situation is now even worse than I described. We do not know what "consistent campaign" means. The word "invasion" is probably dead, though its death may be delayed. The meaning of what I call "jihads" remains obscure to us, as to the outside world. It is possible that the United States will not be able to do anything about this situation, and that it will be necessary to accept it. But that we do not know.

Catholic Scholars' Art in Industrial Field

By Mag. George S. Higgins

In recent years there has been a notable outburst of "cathe" art in the industrial field, whether society, a corporation, or an individual group that is interested in the accomplishments of the Catholic Church. This outburst has come about through the realization that the Catholic Church has made many contributions to the industrial field, and that these contributions are not limited to the past but are still being made today.

This is a rather remarkable situation, especially when one considers the fact that Catholic art has always been associated with the Church and has never been considered a part of the industrial field. But now, with the advent of the Catholic Church's new art, this is changing, and the Church is beginning to make its mark in the industrial field.

The Catholic Church has always been a leader in the field of education, and this leadership is being reflected in the industrial field as well. By providing education and training for the workers, the Church is helping to prepare them for the future, and this is a very important part of the Church's work.

Another important aspect of the Church's work is its emphasis on social justice. This is reflected in the Catholic Church's new art, which is designed to bring about a greater understanding of the Church's role in society and to encourage people to work together for the betterment of all.

The Catholic Church's new art is also designed to bring about a greater appreciation of the Church's contributions to the world. This is especially true in the industrial field, where the Church has made many contributions to the development of the economy and to the advancement of technology.

In conclusion, the Catholic Church's new art is an indication that the Church is not only a religious institution, but also a leader in the industrial field. By providing education, training, and social justice, the Church is helping to create a better world for all.

Pastor’s Gift Spurs Prayer at Mealtime

By Ada Mae Buckley

BLOOMFIELD - A gift from their pastor helps parishioners of Sacred Heart to follow the injunction of St. Paul: "Whether you eat or drink or do anything, do all for the glory of God."

The gift which we are about to describe is much more significant than might be supposed at first glance. The gift, the marble statuette of the ancient Christian miller, is a reminder of the ancient Christian belief that man may secure the graces of the Divine through the mercy of God, so that prayer is not only a private act, but also a social act.

The doctrinaire can be found in the standing prayer of St. Thomas Aquinas, as the prayer is not only an act of devotion, but also an act of social concern.

(AP) -- An imprisoned man who says he is a member of the ancient Christian miller, a statue presented to the church by the church, was among the first group of prisoners to accept the statue as a reminder of the ancient Christian belief that man may secure the graces of the Divine through the mercy of God, so that prayer is not only a private act, but also a social act.

U.S. Must Present Intelligent Program to Asia

By Dr. Sibyl Hays

The United States must present an intelligent program to Asia in order to achieve its goals. The program must address the needs of the people of Asia, including their economic, social, and political concerns. It must also be sensitive to the cultural and religious differences between the United States and Asia. The program must be implemented in a way that respects the sovereignty of Asian nations.

The program should include initiatives in areas such as education, health, economic development, and environmental protection. It should also address the challenges posed by global warming and climate change.

The United States must also work closely with other countries in the region to ensure a cohesive and effective approach to the challenges facing Asia.

The program must be presented in a way that is clear and accessible to the people of Asia. This may involve the use of local languages and cultural practices.

The program must also be supported by a strong and committed leadership at both the national and international levels. This leadership should be committed to the goals of the program and should be willing to make the necessary sacrifices to achieve them.

Hawks End Peacock Nit Hopes; Regan Signed as Russell's Aide

Newark — In a hodgepodge of long-hand bosh play by St. Joseph's, the 1956-58 basketball season came to a screeching halt for Seton College at the hands of John Vann, the Nit's coach. The Nats went down to defeat in the final game of the Nats' season, when St. Joseph's head coach, Bob O'Connor, missed the ball on a layup that would have tied the game. The Nats' hopes of winning a fourth straight Nit Championship came to an end, as the Nit's final score was 75-56.

The Nit's hopes were dashed when St. Joseph's junior, Joe Tressler, scored two points on a layup to take the lead, 73-56. The Nit's freshman, Tom Regan, who was signed as Russell's Aide, was unable to bring the Nit back into the game. The Nit's final score was 75-56.

In the final game, the Nit's defense was unable to stop the Nit's offense. The Nit's defense was manned by Joe Tressler, who scored two points on a layup to take the lead, 73-56.
