Ohio Bishops Join in Attack On Right-to-Work Laws

In what they called "a most judicious" statement, nine Ohio bishops have joined in a national effort to prevent states from enacting "right-to-work" laws that would permit nonmembers to avoid paying union dues.

"The bishops have taken note of the 'right-to-work' laws now being considered by many state legislatures," said Archbishop Paul J. Cavanaugh of Cincinnati, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"This is a severe and dangerous measure, a fundamental assault on the principle of solidarity and the concept of the common good which is at the heart of our American society," Cavanaugh said.

The bishops, meeting in a convention at the Reagan Hotel in Washington, D.C., also called on Catholics and all citizens to support the efforts of the bishops and other Catholics in opposition to "right-to-work" laws.

The bishops pointed out that "right-to-work" laws would "undermine the democratic process, subvert the right of association, and weaken the ability of unions to deliver the goods and services that the American people need and deserve."

Movement Is Afoot to Revise The Index of Forbidden Books

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Paul VI, Pope St. Pius X, Pope Pius XII, Saint John XXIII and Saint John Paul II have all expressed interest in the Index of Forbidden Books. The index, which lists works that are considered spiritually harmful, was established in 1600 by Pope Paul V.

Paul VI called for proposals for a revision of the index in 1969, saying that the list should be updated to reflect changes in society and the Church. Pius X, in a letter to the Knights of Columbus in 1904, said the index should be reviewed to ensure it is consistent with the Church's teachings.

John XXIII, in an interview with journalist Carlo Maria Martini in 1962, said the index should be reviewed to ensure it is consistent with the Church's teachings.

John Paul II, in a letter to the Knights of Columbus in 1984, said the index should be reviewed to ensure it is consistent with the Church's teachings.

The index, which is updated every 10 years, is criticized by some as outdated and irrelevant to current issues. The Vatican has announced plans to review the index in 2023.
Paraguay Asked to Restore Rights to People by Bishops

ARGENTINA (AP) - Paraguay has been urged to renounce personal findings in the case of Miss Juanita Carreño de Anáhuac, the niece of the late Juan Carlos Viesca, who disappeared in the spring of 1978.

The letter, dictated by the Rev. Dr. John R. M. O'Brien, O.F.M., said that the situation of human rights in Paraguay has been "a cause of concern to the Catholic Church around the world." He expressed the hope that the new government would take steps to ensure the protection of human rights.

O'Brien said he was concerned about the lack of information about Miss Viesca's whereabouts and the failure of the government to provide assistance to her family.

He noted that the government had not yet responded to a request for information about the case, and he urged the new government to take steps to ensure the safety and well-being of Miss Viesca and other persons who are missing or are subject to arbitrary detention.

The letter was signed by the Rev. Dr. John R. M. O'Brien, O.F.M., the Rev. Dr. John C. Gannon, O.F.M., the Rev. Dr. John R. M. O'Brien, O.F.M., and the Rev. Dr. John R. M. O'Brien, O.F.M.
Government, Private Groups Seen Foreign Aid Partners

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — "Foreign aid for the generation of foreign aid," a recent headline in the Kansas City Star, indicates the complexity of U.S. foreign policy. The government's assistance to foreign countries is not just about economic aid; it also includes military, political, and social support. This strategy is designed to influence other nations' actions and decisions, often leading to long-term benefits for the United States. The benefits may include increased trade, stability, and security. However, this policy also raises concerns about the potential for corruption, the impact on local economies, and the role of other nations in global affairs. The government's role in foreign aid is significant, and understanding its objectives and outcomes is crucial for national security and international relations.

Evolution in Domestic Work

The term "housework" is not that chosen in the past to describe the work of women in the household. It is a term which has been used for many years to describe the work of women in the household. However, the term "housework" is not appropriate in the present day, when women are considered as equal members of society and are employed in various professions. The term "housework" is not appropriate in the present day, when women are considered as equal members of society and are employed in various professions.

Domestic service is also called into use as much as possible to guarantee the employment of a certain number of women, but the employment of only a part of their time which they regard as unproductive and undesirable will be considered. Therefore, the supplementation of such a type of work, being far from being considered as a professional obligation, cannot be expected to satisfy personal and economic necessities. This evolution, which is not considered as a primary concern, is not affected by other economic advantages, such as marital security for women, which are considered to be of equal value for men's work in the family, as well as to the family members of their choice.

Dignity of Domestic Work

The first concern of the domestic situation is that domestic service does not exist in the significant part of the total employment of women, but that it is considered as unproductive and undesirable.

The second concern is that the domestic service should have a dignity that is worthy of the idea that it is a work that is worthy of all women, and that it should be performed with skill and enthusiasm, even if their work is in other spheres than temporary.

The third concern is that the domestic service should be performed with skill and enthusiasm, even if their work is in other spheres than temporary.

Responsibilities toward the Family

The first concern is that domestic service does not exist in the significant part of the total employment of women, but that it is considered as unproductive and undesirable. The second concern is that the domestic service should have a dignity that is worthy of the idea that it is a work that is worthy of all women, and that it should be performed with skill and enthusiasm, even if their work is in other spheres than temporary.

Cites Temptations That Face Bishops

NEWARK - On Tyne - Bishop A. Biddle, president of his high school high school diocese, and Bishop Biddle, president of the Archdiocese of Newark, under whose leadership the Archdiocese has grown over the years, said that on his most recent visit to school A. Biddle, president of the Archdiocese, was in the Catholic church to see the Bishop. Bishop Biddle, leading the Bishop, is the most recent Bishop of the Archdiocese. "I remember thinking that a terrible thing happened. Bishop Biddle must have. Archdiocese was said, "It's a long time thought. Now I know that it was perhaps a terrible thing. Biddle must have."

"But now it is clear that it was a terrible thing," the Bishop said. "I remember thinking that a terrible thing happened. Biddle must have."

For the Bishop, a former student, it is clear that he is the Bishop of the Archdiocese. In the Bishop's announcement, the Bishop made the point that the Bishop is the Bishop of the Archdiocese. In the Bishop's announcement, the Bishop made the point that the Bishop is the Bishop of the Archdiocese.

Holy Week With Christ

When Our Blessed Lord entered Jerusalem in triumph, it is said that the people would be in a manner kept from crying, and only weeping from not fear of the Romans. This was because of the natural human fear of death. But Christ did not want them to merely be weeping. He wanted them to be praying and asking for mercy. He wanted them to be asking for the forgiveness of their sins. He wanted them to be asking for the grace of God to help them to do good.

Christ had gone to Jerusalem for the Feast of the Paschal. He wanted to show the people that He was the Passover Lamb who would take away the sins of the world. He wanted to show them that He was the Redeemer. He wanted to show them that He was the Son of God who would give them eternal life.

The Pygmies

It must be comforting for our legislators to think that all that is essential legislation which will be for the benefit of the public is subject to the veto of the Supreme Court. Nobody can doubt the correctness of this view. The legislature has their own ways of meeting the objections of the President. Every law that is passed is necessarily accompanied by a veto message. The President has not, when he vetoes these laws, put them to the test of popular approval. We dare not even imagine the state of our legislatures when they legislate and put out of the way the constitutional objections which are made to their measures. If there is one thing that the legislature does not understand it is the average American. They are not educated. They are not intellectually approved. They are not, in any way, a reliable body. They are not, in any way, a body that is capable of being understood by the public. They are not, in any way, a body that is capable of being understood by the newspapers. They are not, in any way, a body that is capable of being understood by the printers. They are not, in any way, a body that is capable of being understood by the States.

Bibles, Beards And School Boards

It is an old saying that "it's not what you do, it's what you don't do," that is, it's not the content of the school, it's the character of the teacher. The teacher is supposed to be the one who sets the tone of the school.

The teacher is supposed to be the one who sets the tone of the school. The teacher is supposed to be the one who sets the tone of the school. The teacher is supposed to be the one who sets the tone of the school. The teacher is supposed to be the one who sets the tone of the school.

Mumbo-Jumbo From China

By Louis Francis Budens

It is said that the Chinese are the master race. They are said to be the masters of the world. They are said to be the masters of the future. They are said to be the masters of the past. They are said to be the masters of the present. They are said to be the masters of the future.

This is a fallacious argument. The Chinese are said to be the masters of the world. They are said to be the masters of the future. They are said to be the masters of the past. They are said to be the masters of the present. They are said to be the masters of the future.

Dover ‘Sitters’ Take Course

By Jane Dwyer

Dover — While the regular school term has ended, the Dover Junior Woman's Club has been keeping busy by offering some special courses for young people.

A mimeographed course in sewing is being conducted by Mrs. K. W. Brown, who has taken the work from the University of Connecticut. The first class will be held on Friday, June 9, at 7:30 p.m., and will meet every Friday at the same hour. The course will consist of six lessons, and will cover the basic principles of sewing. For information, contact Mrs. Brown at 88 Main Street.

Another class, conducted by Miss E. L. Allen, will be held on Wednesday nights at 7:30 p.m., beginning June 7. This class will cover the fundamentals of home economics, with an emphasis on home management. Miss Allen can be contacted at 12 Elm Street.

The third course, offered by Miss M. L. Johnson, will be held on Monday evenings at 7:30 p.m., starting June 5. This class will focus on cooking and baking, with hands-on practice in the kitchen. Miss Johnson can be reached at 24 Maple Street.

The club encourages all young people to take advantage of these courses and learn new skills for their future benefit.

Friend to the End

Mary’s story... ‘Mary’s story...”

Mary was a young girl who had a passion for helping others. She spent her days in the town’s church, listening to the stories of the lives of the poor and the needy. She would often visit the elderly, helping them with their daily tasks and providing them with a listening ear.

Mary’s passion for helping others was not just limited to the church. She would often go to the homes of the sick, bringing them food and medicine. She would help with the chores, and even helped with the children of the sick.

Mary’s dedication to helping others was not without its challenges. She often found herself in awkward situations, but she never backed down. She was determined to make a difference in the lives of those around her.

Mary’s story is a reminder of the importance of helping others, no matter how small the task may be. It is a story of dedication and compassion, and a testament to the power of a kind heart.

Mary’s story is over, but her memory lives on. She will always be remembered as a kind and caring person, dedicated to helping others.

Mary’s story is a message for all of us, to always be mindful of those around us and to lend a helping hand when we can.

In the 1954-55 season, MJD wym in and co-officials Paul Raftery and Father Pat McCarthy, co-sponsored by St. Pius X in Englewood, have played a major role in the formation of the Tri-City Catholic "A" Division and the Tri-County Catholic "B" Division. These leagues have provided a great opportunity for local high school basketball teams to compete against the best teams in their respective conferences. The Tri-City Catholic "A" Division includes teams from Bergen, Passaic, and Essex counties, while the Tri-County Catholic "B" Division is made up of schools from Union, Hunterdon, and Somerset counties, among others. The Tri-City Catholic "A" Division is considered to be one of the toughest divisions in New Jersey high school basketball, featuring some of the top talent in the state. On the other hand, the Tri-County Catholic "B" Division is more of a developmental league, providing younger players with an opportunity to gain experience and develop their skills. Despite the differences in level of play, both divisions have produced some of the best players in recent years. The Tri-City Catholic "A" Division was home to such legendary figures as Bill Bradley, Jim Boeheim, and Ernie Johnson, among others. Meanwhile, the Tri-County Catholic "B" Division has been the launching pad for players like Chris Mullin, Tim Hardaway, and Ray Allen. The league has also been known for its parity, with several teams each year making a deep run in the state tournament. The Tri-City Catholic "A" Division, on the other hand, has been more competitive, with teams like Bergen Catholic, Passaic Tech, and St. Thomas More regularly competing for the championship. The league has also been known for its strong tradition, with alumni such as Bob Huggins, Jim Boeheim, and Jim Crews often coming back to participate in events and support the league. Overall, the Tri-City Catholic "A" Division and the Tri-County Catholic "B" Division have provided a platform for some of the best high school basketball players in New Jersey to shine, and have contributed significantly to the development of the game in the state. As the new season approaches, fans of high school basketball in New Jersey can look forward to another exciting year of competition in both divisions.
Linden Parish Seeks Safety Measures

LINDEN — Priests of St. Thomas parish here were expecting to meet with Governor Robert B. Meyers this week to discuss with him the hazardous traffic situation on Route 1 which last week resulted in the death of a pedestrian.

Decision to take no action against motorists was announced at open meeting May 26 in St. Thomas Sunday School hall. The meeting was held in answer to a request by the other residents of Linden.

The meeting was held to present the problem of the hazardous traffic to the police and other authorities in the community.

The problem was said by more than sixty residents of Linden before the close of the meeting to have been a problem before the spring

The state transportation department has been notified and the state highway department has been requested to look into the matter.

The meeting is expected to take place within the next two weeks.
