Direct Radiological Research To Welfare of Man, Says Pope

Television Code for Children Outlines 'Dos' and 'Don'ts'

The Pope, who has given the radiological research a religious significance, said the technique was god's blessing, and that it would be a powerful weapon in the battle against the spiritual enemy of men. The technique, which Pope said, is "fully utilized in the case of all diseases of human beings," is used in the treatment of various diseases, including cancer, tuberculosis, and syphilis. The Pope said, "There is no small or insignificant disease of humanity, and we hope that in the future we shall be able to use new methods which will enable us to cure many of the diseases that now seem incurable." The Pope also stressed the importance of public education in the prevention of disease, and called for international cooperation in the development of new methods of treatment.

Television Code for Children Outlines 'Dos' and 'Don'ts'

The code is designed to govern the use of television by children, and was published by the International Catholic Association for Radio and Television (UNGA). Prepared primarily for parents and teachers, the code discusses the unknown age for children, and the influence of television on their development.

The code states that television is a powerful tool in the education of children, and that it is important to ensure that children are used to its positive effects. The code includes a series of guidelines for parents, including:

- Ensuring that children are not exposed to harmful programs.
- Limiting the amount of time children spend watching television.
- Encouraging children to participate in other activities.
- Teaching children to appreciate the value of face-to-face interaction.

The code also emphasizes the importance of parental supervision and guidance in the use of television by children. It recommends that parents monitor their child's television viewing, and discuss with them the programs they watch.

The code concludes by stating that television can be a valuable tool for children, but that it must be used responsibly. It encourages parents to work with their children to ensure that television is used for educational and recreational purposes, and that it does not interfere with their development.

Mt. Carmel Drive Raises $546,179

RIDGEWOOD — Mag. James F. Kelley, pastor, and honorary chairman of the Mt. Carmel building campaign, announced this week that $546,179 has been raised in a parish fund drive for a new church and rectory in the Ridgewood parish. At the request of Mag. Kelley, the campaign was concluded at noon April 23, resulting in approximately $10,000 in excess of the goal. The money will be used toward the construction of the new church and rectory, which are expected to cost $100,000. The campaign was conducted by the Rev. Monsignor William J. Brockman, pastor, who was assisted by the Rev. John F. O’Callaghan, assistant pastor, and the Rev. John J. Gannon, parochial vicar. The campaign was held in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the parish, which was established April 23, 1908.

Holy Father Discusses Moral Principles of Psychology

FATHER MURPHY, 21st Century

Is the love of others a form of altruism? Is it necessary to one understands psychology and its moral principles? Is it sufficient to the well-being of society? These are questions that the Holy Father, Pope Francis, has been addressing in recent speeches and writings. In his latest address, the Pope emphasized the importance of psychology in understanding human behavior and its moral implications.

"Psychology is a science that helps us understand the human mind and its workings. It is a field of study that is becoming increasingly important in our society today," the Pope said. "But it is not enough to simply understand the mind; we must also understand the moral implications of those understandings."

The Pope went on to explain that psychology is a science that helps us understand the human mind and its workings. It is a field of study that is becoming increasingly important in our society today. But it is not enough to simply understand the mind; we must also understand the moral implications of those understandings.

"Psychology is a science that helps us understand the human mind and its workings. It is a field of study that is becoming increasingly important in our society today. But it is not enough to simply understand the mind; we must also understand the moral implications of those understandings," the Pope said. "It is a science that helps us understand how our thoughts and behaviors are shaped by our environment, and how those behaviors can be influenced by external factors such as culture, society, and the media. It is a science that helps us understand how we perceive ourselves and others, and how we interact with the world around us. It is a science that helps us understand how our emotions are governed by our brains, and how those emotions can be influenced by internal factors such as genetics, hormones, and neurotransmitters. It is a science that helps us understand the complex interplay between our biology and our environment, and how that interplay shapes our behavior and our decisions."
Whose Children, Whose Schools?

First principles, because they are so fragile and new, were a way of disposing of some questions. But in the end, they are necessary, because for our times.

It is a broad question. If you live in one of the villages that have seen a public school district, you have seen the results of their work in other communities. And if you live in a small town, you have seen the same thing. It is a broad question.

If you live in a large city, you have seen the results of their work in other communities. And if you live in a large town, you have seen the same thing. It is a broad question. And if you live in the countryside, you have seen the results of their work in other communities. And if you live in the countryside, you have seen the same thing. It is a broad question.

What do all these things mean? They mean that there is a broad question. And what do all these things mean? They mean that there is a broad question. And what do all these things mean? They mean that there is a broad question.

Is It True That a Messianic Jewish Movement Will Not Accept the Jewish Messiah as King over Israel?

If a Messiah exists, some have argued, he cannot be a king over the Jews, since the Messiah will be a spiritual leader. However, many Messianic Jews believe in a literal Messiah who will restore Israel.

How Should Child's Questions Concerning Sex Be Answered?

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.

What should you tell your seven year old daughter when she asks why her body is growing and you're carrying our child and it's becoming noticeable? We know how to answer when she asks why you are a Catholic mother, and why you are a Catholic woman in our conditions. We want to do what's right, but don't know how much to tell her or how to tell it.

According to experts, girls, like their mothers, are very aware of physical change. Before the age of twelve, the child's questions are primarily about physical development and the making of a baby. There is no need to worry until her questions about menstruation and the making of a baby, or even about the function of the female body, are asked.

Described differently, it means that you can tell her the facts. But she might not understand them. Yet, many women in the same conditions don't stop to even ask the question. This is because they lose contact with the life of the Church and its teachings.

Before the daughter is twelve, however, it is impertinent to talk about menstruation, or the making of a baby. By this time, a mother must have been initiated into the Church, and must know the teachings of the church. It is also impertinent to talk about the making of a baby, at any one subject.

In the case of boys, their questions should also be answered by the woman who is the mother of the family. The information for boys will depend on their ages. Boys, however, should also be initiated into the Church and given the teachings of the Church.

However, the child's questions concerning sex, or the making of a baby, or menstruation, or anything else, should be directed by the woman who is the mother of the family. The child should be taught the teachings of the Church and the Church's principles. The child should also be taught to respect the Church and its teachings. This is the only way to teach the child concerning sex and the making of a baby, and menstruation.

Trip to Rome Is Always a Pilgrimage

By Playd Anderson

ROME. — No matter how skeptical the Catholic is in a pilgrimage. He may be going there for business or pleasure, but it remains a pilgrimage. This is the center of Christianity; the Catholic is always at home here, this is the goal of every Christian wandering to Rome.

The Pilgrimage is a great affair, and the traffic is tremendous. The trains are crowded, the streets are crowded, the hotels are crowded. But the traffic is never a hindrance. The traffic is the very soul of the place. The traffic is the very essence of Rome. The traffic is the very life of Rome.

There are many ways to go to Rome, for every Catholic has his own way. Some go by train, others go by boat, but all go to Rome. The train is the most common way, but the boat is the most romantic way.

ROME IS A CITY OF MYSTICISM. Here you can see the original Basilica of St. Peter, the Basilica of St. Paul, the Basilica of St. Mary Major, the Basilica of St. John Lateran, the Basilica of St. Paul Outside the Walls, the Basilica of St. Mary Major and the Basilica of St. John Lateran. Rome is a city of churches and basilicas.

The streets are narrow, the houses are old, the churches are ancient, the basilicas are vast. Rome is a city of history, a city of tradition, a city of mystery.

There are many ways to see Rome, but the best way is to walk. The best way to see Rome is to walk. The best way to see Rome is to walk the streets, to see the churches, to see the basilicas, to see the streets.

It is said that the current Pope, John Paul II, is a great lover of history. He loves the history of Rome, he loves the history of the Church, he loves the history of the world. He loves the history of the past, he loves the history of the present, he loves the history of the future.

As YOU WALK the streets of Rome, you will notice the beauty of its architecture. The beauty of its architecture is a testament to the beauty of its people. The beauty of its architecture is a testament to the beauty of its history.

We are a people blessed with a great heritage, a heritage that is yours to be proud of, a heritage that is yours to be shared.

CVO Talen Talent Plays at Brussels

BRUSSELS — The World Fair here will play host to one of the finest jazz concerts ever in the history of the World Fair. The concert will feature the CVO Talent, a group of talented musicians who have ruled the stage with their unique brand of jazz.

Elizabeth Ann Marshall, a 21-year-old pianist who won the CVO March of Dimes Talent Contest in 1964, is currently playing a series of concerts in Brussels as part of the World Fair's entertainment program. Marshall's talent has been recognized nationally and internationally, and her performances have been received with great acclaim.

Marshall is a native of Newark, New Jersey, and has been playing piano since she was a child. She began studying music at the age of five, and by the time she was 10, she was playing in local orchestras.

She is the oldest of three children, and her parents are both music teachers. Marshall has been playing the piano since she was a child, and has won numerous competitions and awards.

She is currently studying at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City, and is preparing for a career as a concert pianist.

For more information about Elizabeth Ann Marshall and her performances at the World Fair, contact the Department of Cultural Affairs, World Fair of Brussels, Brussels, Belgium.

THE ADVOCATE
ST. BENEDICT’S BIDS FOR VICTORIES IN MILE, 440 AT PENN RELAYS

By Ed Grant

PHILADELPHIA — St. Benedict’s Prep, the defending champion in the mile at the Penn Relays, has its sights set on another title when the meet is held here April 28-30.

The distance, which lies between the 26th and 28th, has been a frequent target for the Fighting Irish in recent years. The Prep, which has finished second in the event in three of the last four years, is hoping to rebound from those losses this year.

The Prep’s阵容 includes several returning runners who helped them to victory in the 440-yard race last year. Among them is senior captain Michael Murphy, who is expected to anchor the team in the event.

But the Prep will face tough competition from other top teams, including Archmere Academy and Mount St. Joseph’s. The latter two teams have been strong in recent years and are considered serious contenders for the title.

The meet is set to begin at 9 a.m. with a qualifying heat of the mile, followed by the final race at 10:40 a.m. The Prep is scheduled to run at 10:40 a.m. in the final heat.

St. Benedict’s Prep has won the mile event at the Penn Relays four times in the last five years, including in 2019. The Prep’s best performance in the mile was in 1995, when they set a new meet record of 3:48.9. Since then, no team has come close to matching that time.

Despite the strong showing in recent years, the Prep has not won the mile since 2015, and they will be looking to get back on top this year. The team is expected to have a strong squad of runners, including several returning performers.

The meet will also feature other races and events, with the likes of the 4x400 relay, the 4x800 relay, and the 4x100 relay being highlights.

In addition to the distance races, there will also be several track and field events, with athletes from around the country expected to compete.

The meet is one of the largest and most prestigious track meets in the country, with thousands of spectators expected to attend. The Prep is looking to put on a strong performance in front of the home crowd and bring home another title from the Penn Relays.
Declarers That Catholic Farmers May Not Engage Braceros

BANAGO, Tex.—Cath- olic farmers are not to be permitted to participate in the so-called bracero program, Father James J. O’Hara, C.R., the administration of the Texas bishops, said here today.

Father O’Hara, pastor of the Catholic relief station in this city, said the bracero program was illegal and that clergy have no duty to cooperate in it.

MAY BE A REDUCTION

The father said that according to the law, braceros are illegal and that there is no provision in the law for the clergy to cooperate in the program.

As a result of the law, the clergy have no duty to cooperate in the program.

The father also noted that the bracero program is a violation of the Constitution and that it is not authorized by the law of the land.

FATHER O’HARA MIGHT BE IN THE COUNTRY

If the father is not in the country, he may be in the United States on a temporary basis for religious purposes.

RALLY FOR CHRIST — An estimated 7,300 girls attended the vocation rally at St. Patrick’s in South Orange, Apr. 27-29. In the picture at the left Archbishop Buscaglia is shown in the center, and one young girl, a Junior at South Oroange, stands in front of the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth's Church. Listening for vocation advice are, left to right, Rita Kolodzisky, St. Michael's Jersey City, Judy Fabian, Good Counsel, Newark; and Barbara Butler and Margaret Harris, both aspirants at the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth's Church in South Orange.

SOUTH ORANGE — Today we are here for a very special purpose. We do not expect you to decide entirely what you will do with your lives but we expect the answers you will say will be laid.” These words were spoken by Archbishop Buscaglia at his 1,097 high school juniors who had gathered at the St. Paul University auditorium.

Archbishop Buscaglia opened the rally giving a Performance Review of the current status of the archdiocese and challenging those present to resolve their lives to the service of God and his Church.

He called upon the students to make their own decision and to put it to the test by the saintly example of their lives. This, he said, is the only way to be certain of your vocation.
