NOTES AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Holy Scripture is generally quoted in accordance with the Confraternity version of the Bible. In the case of the books of the Old Testament still to appear in that version, quotations are taken from the manuscript of an as yet unpublished translation by Catholic scholars. Occasionally the divine Name, "Yahweh," is given where the Confraternity version uses "Lord" instead. In Barry Ulanov’s essay, "Job and His Comforters," the book of Job is quoted according to Dr. Edward J. Kissane’s translation (New York: Sheed and Ward, 1946). In quotations from Jewish authors, rabbinical texts, or the Jewish prayer book, their wording is retained.

No matter which translation of Scripture is used, chapter and verse are cited in accordance with the Confraternity version. Wherever a psalm is given two numerals, the first refers to the numbering of psalms in the Vulgate, the second to the current Hebrew text. The abbreviations of the titles of biblical books are those used by A Catholic Commentary on Holy Scripture, ed. B. Orchard, O.S.B. (London: Nelson, 1953). In transliterations of Hebrew and Greek, no attempt has been made to render all the complexities of the original. The system followed for Hebrew is, in general, that of the Jewish Encyclopedia; the system followed for Greek is, with minor modifications, that used by Webster’s New International Dictionary. Biblical names are given in that English form most closely approximating the Hebrew.

Father Hessler’s “Social Thought in the Old Testament” was translated by Miss Annелиse Véctor.

We are indebted to Mr. Zvi Kolitz for his generous permission to reprint his “Yossel Rackover Speaks to God.”
