Msgr. Burke, Bloomfield Pastor, Dies at 70

By William F. Jenkins

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. - The Advocate learned this week that Msgr. Francis J. Burke, 87, a former pastor of St. John's Church in Bloomfield, died Aug. 3 in Mt. Saint Mary's Hospital, Newburgh, N. Y.

Msgr. Burke was born in New York City on July 13, 1873, the son of Francis J. and Mary Burke. He received his education at the Diocesan Seminary at St. Mary's, Newark, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1900 by Bishop John H. McCarthy, D.D., of Newark.

He was appointed pastor of St. John's Church in Bloomfield in 1925 by Bishop James J. McFadden, D.D. He served in that capacity until 1941.

In the Advocate, Msgr. Burke might well have had a part of a proverb "A father is the reflection of his son." He served his parish with the same honesty, integrity and zealous, loving care that his father, Fr. James J. Burke, O.P., had done in the same parish.

The diocese of Paterson was established in 1941. Fr. Burke was appointed pastor of St. John's Church in Bloomfield in 1941 by Bishop John J. McFadden, D.D.

In SACRED HEART parish there is an army "Appassionati." This army of devoted hearts serves the church with the selfless service of the Eucharistic Adoration and the Rosary meetings.

Msgr. Burke will be buried in Calvary Cemetery, Brooklyn.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NC) - Pope John XXIII is "deeply worried" by the situation in Lebanon and hopes for a quick return to peace.

The Pope's thoughts were expressed in a public statement read by Archbishop Antonino Napolitano at the general audience in St. Peter's Square.

"We must pray for Lebanon," the Pope said, "and for all the peoples of the Middle East."

The statement was issued by the Vatican Press Office on behalf of the Pope and the Holy See.

The Vatican said that the Pope is "deeply concerned" about the situation in Lebanon and hopes that a peaceful solution can be found.

Catholic Press
Circulation Up

NEW YORK (NC) - Total Catholic Press circulation in the U.S. during 1959 was 10.7 million copies, an increase of 2.7 million or 33.8% over the circulation in 1958.

This figure is based on figures compiled by the U.S. Postal Service and is an estimated total for all newspapers and magazines published in the United States.

The increase in circulation is attributed to an increase in the number of subscribers, an increase in the number of copies sold at newsstands, and an increase in the number of copies distributed through special mailings.

Marriage Principles Stressed in Malaya

SINGAPORE — Seeing an opportunity presented by Indian and Muslim craftsmen and women to promote the marriage unions, the Bishops of Malaya issued a pastoral letter reviewing the principles of Christian marriage.

The pastoral was issued after an offer of the British Catholic Conference of Bishops to develop marriage unions in the British Empire.

"For the great majority of men and women marriage is the institution to which they must turn just after their baptism," the pastoral observed, "for only in marriage can the happy and successful marriage of their dreams be realized."

Grade Students to Match Wits With Russian Language, Plato

WASHINGTON — Don't talk to grade-school children about the evils of communism. Instead, introduce them to the language.

Two years ago, a grammar school in Ohio became the first in the United States to introduce Russian as part of the curriculum.

Since then, several other schools have followed suit, with encouraging results.

This year, a new project is underway in a Boston school, where students are learning Russian through a series of interactive games and quizzes.

In addition to the games, students are encouraged to read Russian literature and to watch Russian films.

The New "Forty-Niners"
Ramon Hama, Jr.

The New "Forty-Niners" in Alaska were the first to pursue the discovery of gold in the territory. In 1849, when the Klondike Gold Rush began, thousands of prospectors flocked to the area, hoping to strike it rich. Among these early settlers were many Catholics who sought refuge from persecution in their homeland.

Catholic Victory Over Reds

From the early days of exploration and settlement, the Church has been a source of guidance and support for those in need. In recent years, the Church has continued to play a vital role in the community, providing education, healthcare, and other services.

The Faith in Focus

By Msgr. George W. Shea, S.T.D.

Although Christ lived for all, he was born from his parent Earth, and so were none but those who believe. He taught us to believe in the presence of Redemption and to believe in the power of Redemption. The Faith of the Church is its faith in Christ's power to forgive sins and to save sinners.

The Flawed Verdian

By Adj. Dr. W. C. Curtis

What the Roman Catholic Church stands for is the redemption of man. It is the belief that man can be saved through the grace of God. The Church is not interested in the personal opinions of individuals, but in the teachings of Christ.

Defends Criticism Of Paar TV Show

Editor:

Relates to the front page article on the Paar TV show which appeared in the Advocate on June 14, 1958. The Newark Archdiocese's celluloid Pictures has received verbal and written encouragement.

At the same time, there are some comments and observations from others which are not in accord with the teachings of the church. The advocate wishes to clear up some misunderstandings in its own editorial department.

1. Why is the Paar show offensive to the church?

2. What is the church's position on television in general?

3. Why just be negative, isn't television useless anyway?

4. It's a free country; you can program your television as you please, why can't we do the same thing with our mind?

WE SHOULD like to make a few points in connection with the above.

In the United States, we have no objection to television in principle. In fact, the church has always been in favor of television, believing that it could be a positive force for good. However, the church has certain standards and expectations for what it believes television should be. These standards include:

- A commitment to truth and accuracy in the portrayal of the Catholic faith and the Catholic Church.
- A commitment to the moral and ethical teachings of the Catholic Church.
- A commitment to the educational and spiritual benefits that television can provide.

The church's position on television is not a blanket endorsement of all programs that are aired. The church believes that television can be a powerful force for good, but it must be used responsibly and with caution.

In conclusion, the church does not oppose television in general. However, it is concerned about the content and quality of the programs that are aired and believes that these programs should be in line with the church's teachings and values. The church encourages responsible and ethical programming and is committed to working with the television industry to ensure that it meets these expectations.

Obituary

It is a rule and a wholesome practice among the faithful of the Church to make offerings in funerals and during the time of bereavement to the Missionary Seminary of St. Charles, Pictou, N.S., Canada, in order to help support the students there enrolled. We are always glad to accept such offerings.

The deceased, whose name is Michael J. W. Smith, was a native of Ireland and was a member of the faculty of St. Charles Seminary for many years, and after his death he was buried in the Seminary Cemetery. He was a man of great piety and charity, and his pupils will long remember him as a kind and helpful friend.

For a contribution in his memory, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be glad to accept such an offering.

Missioner Adapts Pagan Rite for Catholic Use in Japan

ADAPTED JAPAN—An American missionary, in his efforts to adapt himself to the needs of the Japanese people, has introduced a pagan rite into the Catholic Church.

The missionary, a native of the United States, has spent many years in Japan, and has become thoroughly acquainted with the customs and traditions of the country. He has been successful in adapting the rite to the needs of the Japanese people, and has thus been able to introduce it into the Catholic Church.

The rite, which is known as the "Oriental Rite," is a strange and unfamiliar one, and has been received with much interest by the Japanese people. It is said to be a summary of the principles of the Christian religion, and to be adapted to the needs of the Japanese people.

Tugboats That Pushed the Queen

By June Dever

If Adgie could take all of the things with her to the World Fair that the senior members of The Young Advocate Club suggested, there wouldn’t be room for anything.

But we must quickly add that if Adgie could bring all of the things with her, it would certainly be a wonderful job. The young advocates from around the country have been given a chance to make the tour of the queen of the ships. The first stop was at the shipyard, where they were to be able to work alongside men who have been working there all their lives. It was here that Adgie got her first real idea of what it would be like to work on the Great Lakes. The work was hard, but Adgie was determined to make the most of her opportunity.

Adgie spent most of her time in the engine room, where she learned how the engines that power the ship work. She asked many questions and was curious about everything. She was especially interested in the huge water tanks and the huge pipes that connect them. She asked how the water was pumped into the tanks and how the pipes were made so strong. The workers showed her how the pipes were made, and Adgie was amazed at the skill and care that went into the construction of each piece.

Adgie also had the chance to meet some of the other children who were working on the ship. She made friends with a boy named Tom, who showed her around the ship and helped her understand the work that was being done. They talked about their families and their dreams for the future. Adgie was inspired by their stories and knew that she, too, wanted to make a difference in the world.

Adgie spent the rest of her time touring the ship, taking in the sights and sounds of the Great Lakes. She stood on the deck, feeling the wind in her hair and the water under her feet. She saw the beauty of the lakes and the majestic ships that sail on them. She knew that she had been given a special opportunity and that she would treasure the memories of her time on the Great Lakes.

As Adgie stood on the deck, she thought about the future and what she wanted to do with her life. She knew that she wanted to help others and make a difference in the world. She was inspired by the work of the men who had been working on the ship for so long. She knew that she had a lot of learning to do, but she was ready to take on the challenge.

Adgie knew that she would return to her old life, but she also knew that she would never forget the experience she had on the Great Lakes. She was grateful for the chance to work alongside the men who had been working on the ship for so long, and she was determined to make a difference in the world in her own way.

Leadoff after all, his cultured, mellow, full voice, and the way he was able to hold his own in the presence of better actors. The audience was spellbound — and the audience was a tough one, too. They had been waiting a long time for something of this nature, and they were not disappointed.

The first time I met Don, I was quite taken with his charm. He was tall and graceful, with a warm smile and a twinkle in his eye. I knew right away that he was the kind of man who would make a great impression on the audience.

He spoke about his latest movie, which was a huge success. He said that the story was a personal one for him, and that he had put a lot of himself into the role. I could see the truth in his words. He looked at me with a certain sadness, and I knew he was telling me something important.

He told me about his life, and how he had become an actor. He had started out as a child actor, and had worked his way up to the top. He had been nominated for an Oscar several times, and had won it once. I could see the pride in his eyes. He was truly a man of talent.

I asked him about his future. He said that he was planning to retire from acting after his latest movie. He had been around for a long time, and he was ready to take it easy. I asked him if he would miss it. He said that he would miss the thrill of the theater, but that he was ready to move on to something new.

As we said goodbye, I knew that I had met a true superstar. I felt privileged to have been in his presence. I will always remember that day.
Increase in Students Matched By Growth in Teaching Ranks

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The percentage of students increased in Catholic schools between 1965 and 1968, according to a recent survey, conducted by the Independent Education Research Foundation, and reported by the director of the social science department of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, L. F. W. Walsh, in a recent presentation to the American Catholic Education Association, in Chicago.

The survey, conducted by the Independent Education Research Foundation, showed that the number of students in Catholic schools increased from 233,000 in 1965 to 251,000 in 1968, while the number of Catholic schools decreased from 2,587 to 2,487 in the same period.

According to the survey, the increase in student enrollment was due to several factors, including an increase in the number of students enrolled in grades K-12, an increase in the number of students enrolled in grades K-8, and an increase in the number of students enrolled in grades K-12.

The survey also showed that the increase in student enrollment was more pronounced in urban areas than in rural areas.

Additionally, the survey showed that the increase in student enrollment was more pronounced in the Northeastern United States than in other regions of the country.

Finally, the survey showed that the increase in student enrollment was more pronounced in Catholic schools that were located in areas with higher population densities than in schools located in areas with lower population densities.

The survey was conducted by the Independent Education Research Foundation and was reported by the director of the social science department of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, L. F. W. Walsh, in a recent presentation to the American Catholic Education Association, in Chicago.
