Catholic leaders in a growing number of countries have named Paul Shanahan, S.C., president of Seton Hall University, Newark, N.J., to succeed Bishop Francis E. Duffy as president of Rome University (University of the City), the Vatican's major center of higher education.

Shanahan, a 58-year-old native of West Orange, N.J., has been named president of the university by Pope Benedict XVI, who appointed him as his representative in the United States last year.

Shanahan, who has served as the University of Notre Dame's director of athletics since 2000, will take office in early 2012, the Vatican said in a statement released today.

The appointment comes as Rome University faces financial difficulties and a decline in enrollment.

Shanahan, who has a doctorate in education from the University of Notre Dame, has been involved in Catholic education for more than 20 years, serving as a professor and administrator at several institutions.

During his tenure as director of athletics, Shanahan has helped Notre Dame become a national power in college football and has helped the university maintain its financial stability.

He replaces Bishop Duffy, who has served as president of the university since 1981.

Shanahan's appointment is significant because it marks the first time a U.S. Catholic university president has been named to lead an institution outside the United States.

Rome University, founded in 1423, was named a university by Pope Pius II in 1464 and has been granted papal recognition as a seat of higher education ever since.

The university is known for its strong programs in theology, canon law, and sacred scripture, as well as its contributions to the arts and sciences.

Shanahan's selection is likely to be viewed as a sign of the Vatican's commitment to strengthening its ties with the U.S. Catholic Church, which has been strained in recent years by the sexual abuse scandal.

Shanahan is expected to work closely with Vatican officials to ensure the university's financial stability and to promote its academic programs.

In his role as president, Shanahan will be responsible for overseeing the university's teaching and research programs, as well as its administrative affairs.

He will also be responsible for representing the university at the highest levels of the Vatican and the Catholic Church.

Shanahan is expected to travel to Rome in late November to begin his new role.

He will be succeeded as president of Notre Dame by Joe Boots, who has been serving as the university's provost since 2001.
LEADERS OF CHURCH IN ALASKA: Pictured are two current Alaskan Bishops and Belorussian-Armenian Bishop Charles J. Sypin, right, "Apostle of Alaska," who was married in 1880 to a Russian girl and later was bishop in the Alaskan missions. On the left is Bishop Francis D. O'Flanagan, a native of Minnesota, who was named Vicar Apostolic of Alaska in 1894, is a native of Minnesota, who was named Vicar Apostolic of Alaska in 1894, and Bishop Dermot O'Flanagan, Irish-born American missionary who was consecrated Bishop of Alaska when that diocese was erected in 1951.

WASHINGTON — Alaska — which subject in a territorial referendum will soon become the 49th state — has a short but lively Catholic history dating back to 1799. It was in that year, on Ascension Day, May 14, that Catholic priests first said Mass on Alaska shores. The priests are believed to be from Fra Angelico, attached as chaplains to the American expedition of René-Robert Cavelier, Sieur de la Salle in 1697. The mission then was small, the only resident being a French Jesuit who was assigned to the territory.

Oblates and Jesuits were prominent in Early Church Work in Alaska

The Oblates, a French religious order, and the Jesuits, a Roman Catholic order, were instrumental in exploring and settling the territory of Alaska. The Oblates were founded in 1816 and the Jesuits in 1540. Both orders played a significant role in the early history of Alaska and helped establish the first Catholic mission on the continent of North America.

The Oblates were founded by Bishop Claude-Joseph Riel, who established the first Oblate mission in Canada in 1852. The Jesuits were founded by Ignatius Loyola in 1540 and established their first mission in Canada in 1634.

The Oblates arrived in Alaska in 1867, a year after the United States purchased the territory from Russia. They established several missions throughout the region, including St. Michael's Mission in Sitka, which is the oldest Catholic mission in Alaska.

The Jesuits arrived in Alaska in 1885, and by 1890 had established missions in several locations, including St. Michael's Mission in Sitka and St. Michael's Mission in Kodiak.

Both orders played a significant role in the settlement and development of Alaska, and helped provide education and healthcare to the indigenous peoples of the region.

In 1912, the Oblates established the Alaska Missionary Society, which continues to serve the people of Alaska today. The society operates schools, hospitals, and other facilities throughout the region.

The Jesuits, on the other hand, established the Alaska Jesuit Missionary Society in 1934. The society continues to work with indigenous communities in the region, providing education and healthcare.

Today, the Catholic churches in Alaska continue to serve the region, providing education, healthcare, and spiritual guidance to the indigenous peoples of the region.

The Oblates and Jesuits were instrumental in the early history of Alaska, and their legacy continues to be felt throughout the region today.
Mgr. Burke ...

In the days of the Church’s heroic leaders, great parishes were built where inspiration could come to ordinary people," Burke said. "The people of the parish, led by their pastor, created the community that would sustain them through the trials and tribulations of their day.

This idea has been passed on to the present-day Church. In the early days of the Church, Mgr. Burke has been described as a "small voice." Today, he continues to be a voice of inspiration, urging people to "find their own voice" in the context of the Church.

The continued growth of the Church is vital to the success of its mission. Mgr. Burke has always been a strong advocate of this growth, and his work continues to be an inspiration to all who follow in his footsteps.

I believe that this growth is crucial to the continued success of the Church, and I urge all parishioners to support this growth and to find their own voice in the context of the Church. Together, we can build a stronger, more vibrant Church for the future.

Holy Father Notes Growth of Church

VATICAN CITY, May 31 - Although the ancient Roman empire has been swept aside by the tide of history, the church is another Rome that is growing and expanding all the time.

Pope Paul VI made this observation in an address to a meeting of the United States bishops in Rome, in a speech that was broadcast by radio.

Noting that the church is the "mother of all missions," the pope said that the missionaries' efforts, in turn, act as a stimulus to the rest of the world to become involved.

"Thus the church is capable of growth and expansion," he said, "which means that it is capable of becoming universal, i.e. capable of being preached by all the human race and capable of becoming a new development of the meaning of life for all men.

"This growth and expansion is a function of the church, a function which is neither theologically nor ideologically nor economically nor sociologically necessary in the present world."

SACRAMENT BIDS COUPLE IN MARRIAGE

Three novices and sisters are taken from License 19 in the Advocate, as reported by the Pastoral Commission of the Archdiocese.

What is the sacrament of marriage? It is the sacrament of the Church that enables a man and woman to enter into a life-long covenant of love and commitment. The sacrament of marriage is a public and solemn act that binds the couple together for life. The couple promises to love and cherish each other, to be faithful to each other, and to live together in harmony.

Whole New World Opening For Wife-Mother Over 40

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.

Assistant Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University

What about the healthy, capable, middle-aged and mother whose children are in school and are demanding more of her attention? Not interested in community service, except for the church and the shrine of the Blessed Virgin Mary. She likes to be a homemaker and mother of the family but would like to do more in the community. She is a good cook and housewife and would like to do more for the community.

DID YOU NOT KNOW...

That the advocate is a leader in the community.
