Knights Told Anti-Religious Minority Noisy and Effective

CLEVELAND — Auxiliary Bishop John J. Krol of Cleveland warned delegates to the Knights of Columbus Convention here that the "wail of separation" song is being used in an effort "to bar all public influence and to restrict us from our influence and action in the community and the political body of the state and the nation."

"We are a Catholic minority, but we are not a small and insignificant minority," Bishop Krol said in his address to the convention. "We are a minority with a conscience and a heart and a head."

He warned that efforts are being made to "separate the Holy Church from the state and from the temporal powers." Bishop Krol said the Knights of Columbus are the only national organization representing American Catholics.

"This is a minority of historical fact, and we are not alone but we are and we are not isolated in this world," he said.

KROL Drama of Martyrs

In his address to the convention, Bishop Krol told of the heroic action of the Holy Martyrs of Rome, who were killed in 1928.

"They died for the Catholic faith," he said. "They have given their lives and their property for the Catholic faith." He said the Knights of Columbus are the only national organization representing American Catholics.

No Conscious Difference in Christians and Non-Christians

CINCINNATI (AP) — Christian doctors, lawyers, clerks, bankers, students, diplomats and actors are for the most part not consciously different from those who are not Christians, Bishop John H. Wright of Wellington declared.

BISHOP Wright, who earlier this week identified himself as a Catholic, said in an interview that he believes the influence of Christ's teachings on those who are not Christians is not as significant as that on those who are.

He said that while the teachings of Christ are important for Christians, they are not as important for non-Christians.

"I believe that the teachings of Christ are for the most part not conscious differences in the way people live," Wright said. "I believe that the influence of Christ's teachings on those who are not Christians is not as significant as that on those who are."

Labor Day

Trade solution today faces its most ominous challenge in years. More than ever before, the workers who were targeted by their employers in the past are now being struck by the new challenges they face. This year, the workers' strike may be more widespread as the economy continues to stagnate. The working class, the national in-} ing society of the Michigan Conference, Public Union, pulled in 17,000 members to the State of the Union, a call for workers to stand together to fight for their rights. The AFL-CIO was set to deliver a speech to the nation's labor leaders, warning them that the time for action is now.

Many workers are feeling the pressure to act as soon as possible. The new challenges that face the workers today are not only economic but also social and political. The workers are faced with a choice: either to give in to the demands of their employers or to stand firm and fight for their rights.

Sword of the Spirit

False ‘Liberalism’

By Louis Francis Budens

Certified Speaker’s voice resounded in the church, asking the question, “Is there any such thing as ‘liberalism’?” The question was met with a chorus of “no’s” from the congregation. The speaker continued, “This question is the cornerstone of the true church’s foundation. We must”...

Use Sword Of Sacrifice

By Bishop Fulton J. Sheen

To these words, which usually are addressed to a fighting man, the Bishop has added a new meaning: the sword of sacrifice! It is a sword removed from the sheath in which it has been Dựver and which, even when worn, may be concealed from the eyes of others. We can, however, as Christians, wear a sword of sacrifice, which we can conceal, not only from the eyes of others, but also from our own eyes. The sword of sacrifice is not only a weapon, but also a symbol of sacrifice. It is a weapon that can be used against the enemy, but also a symbol of sacrifice that can be used to inspire others. In this way, we can use the sword of sacrifice to fight against the enemies of our faith, and to inspire others to do the same. The sword of sacrifice is not only a weapon, but also a symbol of our faith. It is a weapon that can be used to fight against the enemies of our faith, and a symbol of our faith that can be used to inspire others to do the same. The sword of sacrifice is not only a weapon, but also a symbol of our faith. It is a weapon that can be used to fight against the enemies of our faith, and a symbol of our faith that can be used to inspire others to do the same. The sword of sacrifice is not only a weapon, but also a symbol of our faith. It is a weapon that can be used to fight against the enemies of our faith, and a symbol of our faith that can be used to inspire others to do the same.
School Problems Multiply In Areas Such as Alaska

In the isolation that the lack of school problems imposes on communities, the people of Alaska in St. Mary's Mission are finding that their problems are becoming acute. The usual routine of going to school every day is making them aware of the need for education and the importance of having a good education. The children are learning that they must study hard in order to succeed in life. The parents are realizing that they must help their children to learn by providing them with books and other study materials. The teachers are working hard to prepare their students for future success.

Maternal Help

By Rev. Gabriel W. Hallett

In taking stock of the papers and magazines that I have been reading during the summer, I find that much of my attention has been directed toward one topic: the problem of maternity help. Several books and articles have appeared on the subject, and I cannot help feeling that there is a real need for more work in this field. The problem is complex, but at the same time it is one that we can and should face.

The need for maternal help is evident in many ways. First, there is the physical aspect. Maternal health is essential to the well-being of the family. Second, there is the emotional aspect. Mothers need support and understanding as they care for young children. Third, there is the economic aspect. Maternal help can provide a source of income for mothers who are unable to work outside the home.

There are many ways in which we can help mothers. One way is through educational programs. By providing information about maternal health, we can help mothers take care of themselves and their children. Another way is through counseling services. Mothers need someone to talk to about their concerns and problems. Finally, we can provide financial assistance to mothers who are in need.

In conclusion, I believe that we should all be working to address the problem of maternal help. It is a problem that affects all of us, and it is one that we can all help to solve.

DeLisa Pitches Saint's into Hudson Junior Playoff

JERSEY CITY — St. Paul's wrapped up the second City division of the Hudson County Junior CBOA season yesterday with a 2-1 victory over Caldwell in a playoff game. The Cougars had previously lost 1-0 to Caldwell's No. 1 squad, and this time around couldn't be denied.

With Pete DeLisa pitching for Saint's, Arroyo's in the cleanup, and Guarino in the middle infield, the Cougars put 4 hits and 2 errors against the Bulldogs' 2 hits and 3 errors.

Meanwhile, St. Andrew's downed Union Catholic, 7-1, to clinch first place in the City division. Arroyo belted a bases-loaded infield single that scored 2 runs, and Guarino and Arroyo combined for 9 no-hit innings.

As for Union Catholic,镁 was at the plate for 7 innings before trying to score in the ninth. He was caught out on the mound, and the game ended 7-1 in favor of the Cougars.

U.S. Must Lead in World Mission Field, Bishop Pulse Says

Santa Clara — President of the National Catholic College Congress in San Francisco, Bishop John J. Purcell, tells CEGC members here that the United States should lead the world in mission work.

"We must be the leaders in this field," Bishop Pulse said yesterday at the banquet. "The United States must take the lead in the world in mission work and give the rest of the world an example to follow.

Bishop Pulse spoke of the need for unity among Catholic educators and highlighted the importance of faith and education in the mission work. He emphasized the role of the United States in providing leadership and resources to support mission work worldwide.

The speech was well received by the audience, who gave the bishop a standing ovation at the conclusion.

School Problem Is Compounded By Segregation in South Africa

By Joe Thomas

NEWARK — Where United States is concerned, it is South Africa which has made a start toward solving its problem. South Africa has not, despite pleading from the hierarchy and other groups.

Archbishop Hamberg, in物 about the proposal that the Catholic Church and its hierarchy have drawn up for the church's position, said it would aim at the eradication of the law of race to South Africa. This coupled with the poverty of the masses have played a rôle in the church's problems in South Africa. The new proposals are, as a matter of fact, a response to an appeal by the South African government to the Catholic Church to assist in the solution of the racial problem.

The Archbishop said that the government is concerned about the matter of segregation and discrimination in the country and is willing to give the Catholic Church assistance if the church will take steps to assist in the solution of the problem.

The Archbishop said that he believes that the Catholic Church and its hierarchy should work closely with the government in order to find a solution to the race problem in South Africa.

The Archbishop said that the Catholic Church and its hierarchy should also work closely with other religious groups in the country in order to find a solution to the race problem.
