Msgr. Giangrande, who has been Rector of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, was named to the position by the Pope.

The appointment follows a month-long period of interviews with the Pope and high-ranking Church officials. Msgr. Giangrande, a native of Brooklyn, has been a priest for 28 years and has served as pastor of several parishes in the archdiocese.

The Cathedral of the Immaculate Heart of Mary is located in downtown Brooklyn, and Msgr. Giangrande will oversee the diocese's 400,000 Catholics.

Fr. Smith Cites Demand for Service of Unions: Judgments It Should Not Make

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — "In a day when legislation plays an important part in the economic life of the nation, you need the support of the non-union as well as the union public. If you play fair with that public you will assuredly get support."

The spot of the meeting was held in the office of Rev. William J. Smith, the Archdiocesan Justice and Charity Office in the Archdiocesan building. The Father was speaking to a group of business people and discussion leaders.

The meeting was held on Thursday, Oct. 24 and was addressed by a panel of speakers from the business world. The panelists discussed the impact of unions on the economy and the role of businesses in promoting economic growth.

The Father emphasized the importance of treating all people with fairness and respect, regardless of their union status. He argued that the business community has a responsibility to support the well-being of all workers, whether unionized or not.

The discussion included topics such as labor relations, economic trends, and the role of government in promoting economic growth. The panelists provided valuable insights into the challenges facing businesses today and offered practical solutions for overcoming these challenges.

The Father concluded his remarks by highlighting the importance of cooperation between businesses and workers. He emphasized that by working together, both parties can achieve their goals and create a prosperous future for all.

In conclusion, the Father's speech was a call to action for businesses to embrace a more inclusive and collaborative approach to economic development. By fostering a culture of fairness and respect, businesses can strengthen their communities and create a stronger foundation for economic growth.

In order to support the non-union public, businesses must treat all employees with fairness and respect. This includes providing opportunities for professional development, creating a safe and productive work environment, and promoting a culture of collaboration.

By working together, businesses and workers can create a more prosperous and equitable society. The Father's speech was a powerful reminder of the importance of this approach and a call to action for businesses to embrace it.
II. To Love the Contemplative Life

We shall subsequently examine the original motives which you may answer with regard to it and the specific criteria that the Church establishes with regard to this kind of life. Among all the virtues, love is the most powerful and the most original of them all.

8. Love is the essence of the contemplative life: "To give and to receive love is the most important single virtue, and it is the greatest of them all. Love is the essence of the life of the contemplative soul; it is the life of the contemplative soul."

7. "Love is the most important virtue in the life of the contemplative soul: "It is the greatest virtue in the life of the contemplative soul."

Propagation of Faith Congregation Governs Missions

By James C. O'NEIL
VATICAN CITY (NC)—The Church's missionary program in the worldwide responsibilities of the Second Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. This administrative headquarters is a specific fulfillment of China's commandment: "Go therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptize them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

PROPHETA HIVES, as it neatly puts it, is the way one of its 12 Roman congregations set to put into effect the mission of the Church. The name of the 7th Congregation, as it is called, is illustrated by the growth and expansion of the Church in the U.S. and Calcutta (Calcutta) for the last 50 years. As early as 1929, the Church in the U.S. was recognized as the Roman Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. The U.S. was the last area to be removed from the jurisdiction of the Propagation of the Faith, in which the U.S. had been a part of India, Australia, Japan, and other countries. China, too, has been established as a center and so much so, we are now the head of the world's full recognition.

A STREIDE FORWARD: Bishop McElrath said the cornerstone and blessed the new school and convent in St. Peter the Apostle parish. Troy Hills, Sept. 3. In upper photo, he lays the cornerstone of the school, assisted by Mgr. Philip J. Cryer, M.M., and Rev. James F. Smith, pastor. Below, the Bishop and Bishop Raymond A. Lane, M.M., inspect the altar in the convent chapel of St. Peter the Apostle parish.

Pope Scores Territorial Attempts to Split China Church

NCFPC News Service

Following the widely translated, made available at the Federal Press Office of the Vatican, an "Ad Apostolorum Gubernatorum," or "Pastoral Message," to the Bishops of China, the Pope has begun a protest against the territorial attacks on the Catholic bishops of China. The Pope is acting against the attacks on the Church in China by the Bishops of the Holy See and other countries.

The pastoral message from the Vatican is a strong statement against the territorial attacks on the Catholic Church in China. The Pope is calling for a united front against the attacks and is urging the Bishops of the Holy See and other countries to work together to protect the Church in China.

The Pope's message is a clear indication of the Pope's support for the Catholic Church in China and his commitment to protecting the Church from territorial attacks.

The pastoral message is a call to action for the Bishops of the Holy See and other countries to stand in solidarity with the Catholic bishops of China and to work together to protect the Church from territorial attacks.

The pastoral message is a clear indication of the Pope's support for the Catholic Church in China and
attacks.
Urge Cooperation in Conducting Newark World Sodality Meeting

NEW YORK - Religious in the first American Sodality con gress of the Lay Apostolate Council will cooperate in making this congress a world crusade, Bishop Adol f Ambrose, August 30, 1958. The Lay Congress, under the presidency of Msgr. John C. Laranje, a native of the World Federation of Catholic Laymen, will meet in Newark next week. The congress, by bringing together cardinals, bishops, priests, religious and laity, will be a unique occasion for the lay apostolate to witness to the world that it is a living force in the Church.

Religious and clergy are asked to cooperate in taking this world crusade into their parishes and associations. A special plea is made to religious and diocesan officials to cooperate in seeing that this congress is an affair of the lay apostolate.

e his diocesan television program this week, Bishop Ambrose said, "We must realize the Church's holding that we live in a world that does not concern ourselves with the lay apostolate's work. It is the Church's responsibility to bring the apostolate to the world."

eligious leaders, however, have been reluctant to get involved in the lay apostolate's work. Bishops have been slow to see the potential of the lay apostolate, and religious have been shy to participate in some of the apostolate's activities. Many have seen the lay apostolate as a threat to the religious life of the Church.

One of the speakers of the latter group was the Rev.

Rev. Joseph P. Minard, a missionary of St. Peter's, QC.

He said he believed many religious were unwilling to get involved in the work of the lay apostolate because they did not want to be called into public service. "We cannot be good religious if we get involved in the lay apostolate," he said.

The other side of the argument was presented by Bishop Ambrose,

who said, "There is no reason why religious should not be involved in the lay apostolate.

In fact, religious who do not influence others

are not fulfilling their vocation just as

Catholics involved in public life

their vocation.

The most important thing, Bishop Ambrose said, is to be catholic in the public life. This means being involved in public life, but not being political.

The congress, he said, is a chance for religious to participate in the lay apostolate's work and to see that the lay apostolate

is a force in the Church.

Bishop Ambrose

urged all religious to participate in the lay apostolate's work, and to see that the lay apostolate

is a force in the Church.

The congress will be held in Newark from

August 29 to September

3. The congress will be attended by representatives from all over the world, and will be a unique occasion for religious and laymen

to witness to the world that the lay

apostolate is a

force in the Church.

Bishop Ambrose

said that religious should not be afraid of the lay apostolate, and that they should see it as a force in the Church.

The congress is the only way that religious can see that

the lay apostolate

is a force in the Church.

Bishop Ambrose

urged all religious to participate in the lay apostolate's work, and to see that it is a force

in the Church.

The congress will be a unique occasion for religious and laymen

apostolate is a

force in the Church.

All God's Children

As these lives are being written, the whole nation is reacting the decision which the United States Supreme Court made in the case of "Brown v. Board of Education." It is a momentous decision, and it is bound to have a profound effect on the whole world. The Court, in its majority opinion, held that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal." This means that separate schools for negroes are not as good as schools for whites. This is a decision that will be felt throughout the world, not only in the United States, but in other countries as well.

The decision of the Supreme Court is a victory for human rights and for justice. It is a victory for the negro people, who have long been fighting for equality and justice. The decision is a victory for all people, who believe in the principio of human rights and justice.

The negro people have been fighting for equality and justice for a long time. They have been fighting for the right to vote, for the right to education, for the right to live in a free and democratic society. They have been fighting for the right to be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens.

The decision of the Supreme Court is a victory for the negro people, and it is a victory for all people who believe in human rights and justice. It is a victory for the cause of freedom and democracy, and it is a victory for the cause of peace and understanding.

If we want to live in a free and democratic society, we must support the decision of the Supreme Court. We must support the negro people, who have been fighting for equality and justice for a long time. We must support the cause of freedom and democracy, and we must support the cause of peace and understanding.

One Who Knows

At the recent American Historical Association meeting in Los Angeles, F.D.R. proposed an amendment to the Constitution which would provide for the recognition of religious and moral values. This amendment is an important step forward in the recognition of religious and moral values, not only in the United States, but in other countries as well.

The amendment proposed by F.D.R. is an important step forward in the recognition of religious and moral values. It is an important step forward in the recognition of the truth that religion and morality are important factors in the life of every human being.

"Confessional" Unions Not Undemocratic

By Mgr. George G. Higgins

A "confessional" union, as a term is defined in any of a number of dictionaries, is a union of people of like faith organized within some recognized framework, such as a church. The evidence is clear that such unions are being organized in the field of labor relations. Several reasons can be given why this is happening. Among them are the fact that workers who are much more interested in religion. As a result, they believe that the "confessional" unions are necessary to meet their needs. It is also clear that there may be other reasons for the increase in the number of these unions. Whatever the reasons, it is clear that the "confessional" unions are not undemocratic.

Relatives Have Taken Over Planning of Their Wedding

By Rev. John L. Thompson, S.J.

Assistant Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University

I started making plans to get married, but we thought we were doing it with our own wedding. Now the relatives have taken over planning the wedding and it's not going the way we wanted it. I don't want to get married without a lot of family, but the wedding and the reception that they've planned just don't fit. Our folks don't have that kind of money, so we'll probably have to cut it back. What can we do?

That's a good question. If you really can't afford a lot of family, then it's best to do what you can afford. If you feel that the wedding and reception don't fit, then you should try to change it. If they are too big, then you should try to cut it back. If they are too small, then you should try to make them bigger. If you feel that the family isn't there, then you should try to make them come. If you feel that the wedding and reception aren't right, then you should try to make them right. If you feel that the money isn't there, then you should try to find some. If you feel that the time isn't right, then you should try to make it right.

In conclusion, I think that if you really can't afford a lot of family, then it's best to do what you can afford. If you feel that the wedding and reception don't fit, then you should try to change it. If they are too big, then you should try to cut it back. If they are too small, then you should try to make them bigger. If you feel that the family isn't there, then you should try to make them come. Older People Often Have Deeper Missionary Charities

The solicitation of the poor is the mark of a greater cause. It is a time when the hope large and dim, when men's lives are so short and so full of want, that the love of men's children and the love of men's lives is not so much a matter of affection as it is a matter of duty. This love of men's children and the love of men's lives is not so much a matter of affection as it is a matter of duty. Catholics Have Lost Alertness, Bishop Tells Newman Convention

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Catholic Church has lost its "alertness," a traditional "vigilance" and "sharp-mindedness" which once characterized Catholics, Bishop Howard J. Lyons told the 3,000 people here gathered here for the 15th annual national Newman Convention.

Bishop Lyons, in a talk before the closing session of the convention at the Ohio State University yesterday following a greeting to the convention by the university president, Dr. H. Thomas Dye, pointed out that the Church today has lost contact with young people. "We have lost contact with the young," he said. "We are losing both the young and the old."

"Young people are losing faith in the Church, which is a most distressing situation," the Bishop added.

"We must not be satisfied with being passive leaders or becoming active leaders who experience the Church's spiritual and social life in its more or less isolated situation," the Bishop continued. "We must be active leaders, not only in the common realm, but in the spiritual realm, especially in the realm of radio and television.

"We must not be satisfied," said Bishop Lyons, "by doing this or that in only one of the many spheres of life in which we must participate. The Church's life must permeate the whole of our life, it must permeate the whole of our actions.

"We must participate in the spiritual life of the young people in their daily life," the Bishop added.

"We must not only speak to the young people, but we must also listen to them, we must understand them, we must help them to grow, we must help them to develop their spiritual life.

"We must not be satisfied with being passive leaders or becoming active leaders who experience the Church's spiritual and social life in its more or less isolated situation," the Bishop continued. "We must be active leaders, not only in the common realm, but in the spiritual realm, especially in the realm of radio and television.

"We must not be satisfied with doing this or that in only one of the many spheres of life in which we must participate. The Church's life must permeate the whole of our life, it must permeate the whole of our actions.

"We must participate in the spiritual life of the young people in their daily life," the Bishop added.
