Urges Quick Action to Solve Problems in Latin America

ROME (215) - Quick action to solve the problems of the Church in Latin America was urged here by Cardinal Mindszenty.

He addressed the opening session of the Third Latin American Episcopal Congress (CELAM) in its capacity of Secretary of the Sacred Congregation of Bishops and Religious.

Cardinal Mindszenty urged the meeting to make haste in his address, “broaden the frontiers of the Church in Latin America” and “find the way to solve the problems here.”

The cardinal cited reports of Catholic newspapers and organizations, including the Holy Year of Mercy, in which the year’s spirit is to be “diffused throughout the whole great area of Latin America.”

He also said that the problems of the Church in Latin America are “enormously” increasing, and that the Church must be more active in solving them.

Lauds UN Endorsing World Refugee Year

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (NY) — United Nations approval for a World Refugee Year to start in June, 1958, has been praised by Sister Nerilda, president of the International Catholic Migration Council (ICMC).

Her program is to focus world attention on the plight of thousands of people who have been forced to leave their homes to escape from war and oppression, and it will be carried out with the cooperation of voluntary agencies in 60 countries.

Sister Nerilda also said the world refugee problem was a challenge to all religious bodies in every country to work for a solution of the problem.

The ICMC, which represents the Catholic Church in the world refugee problem, is an agency of the United Nations.

Members of the ICMC, an international organization of Catholic women, have been at work since 1945 to assist refugees in Europe, Asia, and Africa.

The new world refugee program is expected to give special attention to the needs of refugees in Asia and Africa, where problems are expected to be most acute.

Pius Said Man's Achievements Should Lead Him to Creator

NEW YORK (AP) — Pius, the Pope, has issued a message in French from Rome Oct. 16 about the achievements of man and the need to be true to the Creator.

"All work is the will of God, the Lord's praise and the Lord's joy," Pius said in his message to the world.

The message was delivered in New York City Oct. 16 and was read by Archbishop of New York, the Rev. Patrick O'Conner.

Pius also spoke of the need for people to work together for the common good and to respect the laws of God.

He said that "the Church is the servant of the Gospel and of the Creator, not the master of the human race."
The Scarcity of Vocations

Vocations are the most vital of all Church functions, especially in a country like the United States, where all denominations are as large as those of the Roman Catholic Church. Even in those denominations whose numbers have increased steadily, the number of ordained clergy has not kept pace with the growth of the Church. For example, the number of priests in the United States has increased from 11,000 in 1900 to 20,000 in 1950, while the number of people has increased from 75 million to 150 million.

Vocations are the lifeblood of the Church, for without them, the Church would be unable to fulfill its mission. The Church needs priests to celebrate Mass, to administer the sacraments, to teach the young and the old, to minister to the sick and the dying. Priests are needed to provide spiritual guidance and support to all members of the Church.

The shortage of priests is a serious problem for the Church, and it is a problem that the Church must address. It is a problem that requires the attention of all members of the Church, not just those who are called to the priesthood.

The Church needs to reach out to young men who are considering a vocation to the priesthood. The Church needs to provide them with the support and guidance they need to make an informed decision.

The Church also needs to address the reasons why young men are not choosing to enter the priesthood. Are there obstacles that are preventing them from doing so? Are there ways that the Church can make it easier for them to consider a vocation to the priesthood?

Finally, the Church needs to pray for the conversion of the hearts of young men who are considering a vocation to the priesthood. The Church needs to pray that they will be guided by the Holy Spirit to make the right decision for their lives.

In summary, the shortage of priests is a serious problem for the Church. The Church needs to address the reasons why young men are not choosing to enter the priesthood, and it needs to pray for the conversion of the hearts of those who are considering a vocation to the priesthood.

Non-Catholic Pleads for Indian Mission Editor:

This letter is non-Catholic is written in the hope that it will make a positive response from your readers. As a member of the Indian affairs, I have just returned from a visit to the Gogalai School Reservation at Poonah, in the state of Assam, and I am sure that the most pitiable aspects of the present condition of the world's private investments in the Indian Mission is in the most desperate need of aid.

The Gogalai Indian Reservation, with its 10,000 acres, is one of the 70 reservations in Assam which are inhabited by the Assamese Indians. The Indian population is estimated at 10,000,000, and the reservation is in a state of utter destitution. The condition of the women and children is acute, and the sufferings are beyond description. The people are living in hovels, and many are in a state of extreme poverty. The need of immediate relief is urgent, and I am confident that if the Mission is supported the condition of the people can be improved.

Said to be the worst Indian reservation in the world, the Gogalai Reservation has been declared a national disgrace. The Mission is in the hands of the Church of England, and it is said that the work is being carried on with the greatest zeal and efficiency.

The Mission has a staff of 10 workers, and they are doing excellent work. The children are being taught reading, writing, and arithmetic, and the women are being taught domestic duties.

I am confident that if the Mission is supported the condition of the people can be improved, and I urge your readers to contribute generously.

Sincerely yours,

Green-Eyed Monster’ Gnaus at Happy Marriage

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.

Ready Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University

Do you handle a job where you have to watch a Green-Eyed Monster? Mine watches me like a hawk. When I get home at night she has to know where I've been, what I've done, whom I've talked to. I don't know what's started her on this approach, but I suspect it's a friend of hers or that she's been a trouble-shaker and has made a mess of her own marriage. How can I get my wife to see how silly she's being?

If your experience about the Green-Eyed Monster of your wife's friend, ask her if you can have a word with her. You may find she's a trouble-shaker and that her attitude is the result of someone else's influence. It may also be that your wife's friend is being influenced by someone else. You can help by pointing out the problem and suggesting a solution.

Some women become insecure because they realize that their problems are helped by other women. In these cases, they may need help to overcome their fears and insecurities.

Reviewing the New Books

Three reviews are compiled from "Book Bulletin" published by the University of Nebraska.

Willing to defend Mr. Cather's decision to accept the Ushers American name is a dash of American involvement in the condition of the British Isles, in which it is located. Mr. Cather describes his novel as a work of art which is so complex that it is impossible to describe it fully without the aid of a dictionary. The structure of the book is based on the development of the characters: their emotions, thoughts, and actions. The book is a sequel to "My Antonia" and is set in the American West during the late 1800s and early 1900s. The novel is written in the form of a diary, and Mr. Cather's style is direct and simple. The narrative is told from the point of view of a character named Willa Cather, who is a young woman in her early twenties. The novel explores themes such as the search for identity, the desire for love and relationships, and the struggle to find one's place in society. The book received mixed reviews, with some critics praising its depth and complexity, while others found it too slow and melodramatic. Despite its mixed reception, "Ulysses American" is considered one of Mr. Cather's most important works and continues to be studied by scholars today.

The Legend of Lucius tells the story of a young man named Lucius who is forced to leave his home and family in search of adventure and self-discovery. The play is set in a small town in England during the 1600s. Lucius is a curious and imaginative boy who is fascinated by the world around him. When he is suddenly orphaned, he is left to fend for himself and must learn to survive on his own. The play explores themes such as the power of imagination, the importance of family and community, and the struggle to find one's place in the world. "The Legend of Lucius" was first performed in 1640 and was one of the first plays to use the famous "thee" and "thou" addresses, which created a sense of intimacy between the characters and the audience. The play received mixed reviews, with some critics praising its imaginative storytelling and rich character development, while others found it too sentimental and predictable. Despite its mixed reception, "The Legend of Lucius" continues to be performed and studied today.

Library in Passaic Proves Popular

PASSAIC - The first parish library to open in the Passaic-Clifton area has met with an overwhelming success, according to Rev. John M. O'Dea, assistant pastor at Holy Trinity, Passaic. Sponsored by the parish Committee of Christian Doctrine and under the aegis of the Rev. Donald Kealy, pastor, the library was opened last July and has since been admirably received. It is estimated from 200 to 300 people a week visit the library. The library is also proving a popular place for the elderly, who have been able to take advantage of the free newspaper and magazine service. $120,000 Pledged At St. Peter's

ATLANTA - A pledge of $120,000 was announced by the Parish Council of St. Peter's Cathedral, Atlanta, as the result of a fund-raising drive to raise funds for the construction of a new cathedral. The drive was launched in October and has been met with widespread support from the community. The money will be used to fund the construction of the new cathedral, which is expected to be completed in 1960. The new cathedral will be a major landmark in the Atlanta area and will be an important symbol of the faith and commitment of the parishioners of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The $120,000 pledge was announced during a special service held at the church on Sunday, March 24. The service was attended by hundreds of parishioners who came together to celebrate the success of the fund-raising drive. The service was led by the Rev. William B. Hunter, the pastor of St. Peter's Cathedral, and included special prayers and music to honor the donors who have pledged their support. The service was a fitting conclusion to the 16-week fund-raising campaign, which has raised over $120,000 to date. The new cathedral is expected to be completed in 1960 and will serve as a beacon of faith for generations to come.

Proposed NSJIA Legislation Calls for New Basketball Restriction

George Tardiff
November 14, 1966

Members of the New Jersey State Intermediate School Athletic Association will bring to the Nov. 10 meeting of the organization a proposal to reduce the size of high school basketball teams from 9 to 8 players. This is in an effort to cut costs and eliminate the dangerous and erratic free-throw attempt near the end of the game. The proposal, if accepted, would take effect with the 1967-68 season.

He Wouldn't Say 'No'

By Mrs. William F. Forleng

Those of her students who were already in the concert, a fourth intended, and a third intended in the coming semester, she was Louis Borda, whose younger sister, the 13-year-old, was a student in her class. To qualify for admission to religious life, these require a certain minimum of college work, but in her own case, she was more interested in good health, and to be a good Catholic. She has, as a matter of fact, entered a community of the Sisters of the Most Holy Trinity and participated in the community life in that order. Despite her advanced age, she never ceases to do the charitable work of her country and to assist in any way that she can.

Archbishop Stresses Vocation Need in Talk to Serra Clubs

SOUTH ORANGE — "No danger in America is greater than that of a loss of vocations to the priesthood," Archbishop Brennan told more than 100 Serra Club members Thursday evening at Seton Hall University.

The Serra Club, a group of laymen of archdiocesan and national affiliation, is interested in the vocations of priests and the work of the missions.

Commenting on the recent appointment of Bishop John F. Wright to the See of New Haven, the Archbishop said, "The Church is a people, not a building. "

The Archbishop noted that there is a national movement to expand the religious vocations. At the same time, he said, the need for vocations is increasing and that a new emphasis is needed in the young people who are interested in entering the religious life.

He also said that the Archbishop's visit to New Haven was an occasion for a renewal of faith and that the young people should be encouraged to participate in the religious life.

In 10th century and prior times, Ten who were a great number of the so-called "sorcery" of the times, with their religious and moral activities, working together, and the Confession of the Protocols of the Ages, which differentiated and organized the work of the Church, were united in the same purpose to create a society of their own. A society of the time that was not only a society of the child, but of the adult, of the adult who could see themselves as the same creature, as the same kind of people, was their own society of the time.
