Church May Face Mission School Loss

CAPETOWN, South Africa — The South African Bishop Conference, in a statement published here, warned that "the picture is indeed gloomy for the future of Catholic education in this country."

They blessed the situation on the Santa Education Act passed in 1910, which "enlarges the government's power to regulate educational matters." They said that the Bill "is being sent to the Catholic schools for the purpose of the approval of the President."

The bishops warned that under the new law, "the President's approval is required for schools which are to be opened in the future." They said that the law "is not the same as the former law, which required the President's approval for schools that had been opened in the past."

The bishops also said that the new law "will affect the Catholic schools in many ways, including the opening of new schools and the renewal of old ones."

The bishops emphasized that the "government's power to regulate educational matters" is a serious concern for Catholic schools, which are "dependent on the government for financial support."

They said that the new law "will make it difficult for Catholic schools to operate, as they will have to comply with the government's regulations." They added that "this is a serious concern for Catholic schools, which are "dependent on the government for financial support." They emphasized that "the government's power to regulate educational matters" is a serious concern for Catholic schools, which are "dependent on the government for financial support."

The Rainy Day
That Won't Trouble Some People

There doesn't have to be a rainy day - a time when the pinch for money is as tight as it can ever be. For the person with wisdom and foresight prepared for such a contingency, he is the man who regularly adds to his savings account.

Savings in a good habit. There was no need and there will be a better man. It can be the road to a lifetime of independent living, and if a financial crisis should come, the person prepared has money on deposit. And they are uncompromised quarterly.

Business Contributes to Colleges

NEWARK — During the first four months of this fiscal year, 1969 New Jersey business and industrial firms have contributed a total of $63,914 to colleges and universities. Icar Carroll Jefferson, executive director of the New Jersey Business and Industry Association, said that the donations reflected the widespread interest and support for higher education in the state.

The total amount contributed by the 1969 New Jersey business and industrial firms to colleges and universities is not available.

Jefferson said that the contributions were made to colleges and universities throughout the state and that they were made in response to the needs of the educational institutions.

Motive Governs Legality of Plastic Surgery, Pius Said

Techniques of Plastic Surgery

Plastic surgery—whose aim is to restore, sometimes functionally, the physical morphology of the parts of the body that allow a person to lead a normal life—is a practice that has made great progress in the present century. In the last two decades, a number of significant developments have taken place, and the practice of plastic surgery has been transformed by the advances made in this field. The goal of plastic surgery is to restore the physical appearance of the body and to improve the function of the organs and tissues that have been damaged or lost.

Success of Plastic Surgery

Plastic surgery, however, is not a cure-all. It can be a difficult and risky process that requires careful consideration. As with any medical procedure, plastic surgery carries risks and potential complications. Therefore, it is important to carefully evaluate the potential benefits and risks before deciding to pursue plastic surgery.

CONCLUSION

In his decisions and actions, he must be a leader, not only as a head of state, but also as a model for the world. He must demonstrate the value of diversity in every aspect of human life, and he must work to promote peace and understanding. In addition, he must be a strong advocate for the rights of women and children, and he must strive to ensure that all people have access to quality education and healthcare.

In conclusion, the motive that governs the legality of plastic surgery is a complex issue that involves many factors. The decision to pursue plastic surgery should be made only after careful consideration of the potential benefits and risks, and it should be approached with a sense of responsibility and consideration for the well-being of others.

Fun Family

Here is another lighthearted premise for a children's picture that promises to be excellent entertainment. A legless boy is paired with a legless girl to form a new gang at school. Their school is run by a Mr. Badin, who tends to be unpleasant. The boy and girl配件, who are in love, are joined with the help of an old cart and a set of wheels. The picture is well-directed and enjoyable for both children and adults.

The Doctor's Dilemma

A good mystery

A doctor must decide whether to go ahead with an experimental operation or not. If successful, it could save a life; if not, it could cause irreversible damage. The tension builds up as the operation begins, and the outcome is uncertain.

Morally Unobjectionable for Everyone

Some Good Running

James Jones, an English actor, is excellent in this role of a professional athlete who is forced to come to terms with his own mortality. The movie is smoothly directed and visually appealing.

Voices Raised in Protest

You've just as ordinary a person, as energetic and workmanlike an editor as he is. You're not an orator, but you have a good deal of inspiration. You have to be an ordinary person, with no oratory qualities, to be a good editor.

In other words, people, average citizens with a sense of dedication, can be editors. They don't have to be orators. They can be people who are interested in their communities and who are willing to work for the betterment of those communities. The key is dedication, not oratory skills.

A number of issues raise serious questions about the state of our communities and the role of editors in promoting positive change. We need more editors like you who are willing to devote their time and energy to the betterment of our communities. Let's continue to support and encourage such editors who are making a difference in the world we live in.

Out to Play Again in Dry Clothes

Plattine out of doors need not be cut short, if there is a thin layer of dry clothes on your home. ThatItem waiting around for clothes to dry can be a pain. Even a heavy padded dressing will dry quickly in an automatic dryer. Fewer clothes are necessary when they can be washed and dried as quickly. This means a big savings as children outgrow their clothing.

See automatic clothes dryers at your local dealer's.

Nothing New? St. Margaret's Starts Parish Christmas Club

LITTLE PERRY — Sir Henry Perry starts Christmas Eve! This year, the stations of the cross on your church's Christmas Eve are different. Perry, the 80-year-old man who has been asleep for the last five years, has woken up in time to attend Mass on Christmas Eve. The service will be held at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's Parish Hall.

Perry, who has been in a coma since 1995, is known to be the longest-lived person in the world. He was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease in 2005 and has been in a coma ever since. However, his family and friends believe that he is still able to receive the spiritual benefits of attending Mass on Christmas Eve.

"He is a great spiritual leader to us," said his daughter, Mary. "He has always been a very spiritual person, and we know that he is still able to receive the sacraments of the Church."

The service will include a reading of the Gospel, followed by the recitation of the Stations of the Cross. Afterward, there will be a special Mass for Perry, who will be given a special blessing by the bishop. All are welcome to attend.
