News of the possibility of excluding Monsignor Holani from the envoy position emerged after the Holy See announced that it would not comment on the case.

However, the Holy See has previously expressed its concerns about the case.

Mail-Order Smit Sbig Business, Post Ofﬁce asks Tougher Laws

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Post Office officials have been asked to consider tougher laws for mail-order sales.

Life in Missionary Areas Is a Life of Hardships

When missions are mentioned, many people think of those carried on by white church workers in a foreign country, or of a group of Indians or Negroes attempting to get a glimpse of an area that is different from their own. Yet there are children, both black and white, who live in foreign lands and have no possibility of returning to their homelands. These are the present wanderers of American missionary work.

There is a second group that knows they are not in this world but in another. The children in an orphanage in China, who are sent there by their parents, may be included under this category.

They are children that have lost both parents and home and are living in a foreign land and are receiving an education and an upbringing that is as different from their own as they could possibly imagine. There are children who have never been to their own country, who have never seen a home, and who do not know the customs or language of their own people. They are the children of the foreign missionary who is about to return home, and the children of the missionary who has been away for a long time and who is about to return home.

The children are the ones who are being trained to be the leaders of the future, and they are the ones who will carry on the work of the missionary. They are the ones who will be the ones to help the world to understand the true meaning of the work of the missionary.

The children are the ones who will be the ones to help the world to understand the true meaning of the work of the missionary. They are the ones who will be the ones to help the world to understand the true meaning of the work of the missionary.

Senior Young Adults Write Poems for Spring Contest

By June Dever

Senior Young Adults are writing poems about their lives and their future and a few have never been seen from high school student! The judges were not only impressed but highly excited.

Many students wrote about the things they will miss while attending college. These poems were written in the English class which covered a wide range of topics. The judges were impressed with the creativity and the variety of subjects.

The competition was held in the spring of 2023, and the poems were judged by a panel of teachers and staff members. The judges were looking for originality, creativity, and the ability to express feelings and ideas in a clear and concise manner.

The winners were announced in a ceremony held at the end of the year. The first prize was awarded to a student who wrote about their love for nature and the beauty of the world. The second prize was given to a student who wrote about the importance of family and the value of tradition. The third prize was awarded to a student who wrote about the challenges of growing up and navigating the world.

The judges were unanimous in their praise for the quality of the writing and the depth of emotion expressed in the poems. They were impressed with the talent and the dedication of the students who participated in the contest.

The judges expressed the hope that the students would continue to write and express their feelings and ideas through poetry. They encouraged the students to continue to explore their unique perspectives and to share their voices with the world.

St. Stanislaus

St. Stanislaus is portrayed by Dean Haywood in his role as a student at the school. The actor, who has a degree in theater, has been in several plays and has been acclaimed for his portrayal of a young man in a film. He will be reprised in the play, which opens on May 4th.

St. Stanislaus is set in 1919, when he was still a student at the school. There were no books in his room—he had to either borrow them from a friend or buy them from a store. He was not allowed to attend the school's football games, as they were considered too physical. The actor, who has been praised for his ability to convey the emotions of his characters, said that he is looking forward to the challenge of playing a young man in a film.

The actor, who is a graduate of St. Stanislaus College, said that he has always been interested in acting and has been involved in theater since he was a child. He has appeared in several plays and has been praised for his ability to convey the emotions of his characters. He said that he is looking forward to the challenge of playing a young man in a film and is excited about the opportunity to work with a talented cast and crew.

The play, which is directed by J. T. Washington, is set in a time when the school was not as progressive as it is today. The actor said that he is looking forward to the challenge of playing a young man in a film and is excited about the opportunity to work with a talented cast and crew.

Belief in God Is Our Chief Asset, Says Labor Secretary Mitchell

CONVENTION — "I am convinced that we in America present to the world a false picture of ourselves," James P. Mitchell said at the national convention May 8 in New York City. He was addressing the 50th anniversary of the College of St. Elizabeth, of which he is an alumnus.

The Secretary of Labor made a number of pointed remarks in his speech. He said the Labor Department is "in the hands of men who do not believe in decent wages for the worker," and that "we do not have a robber baron system in the United States but too often we have seen that we have such men in charge of the labor department.

The Secretary, who was the only member of the cabinet to attend, said the actions of his department were not based on "the facts and the figures that we know of" but rather on "the facts and the figures that we imagine are correct.

The convention was addressed by Bishop Thomas J. O'Neill of Brooklyn, Bishop John J. O'Dwyer of Bridgeport, and Father Charles J. O'Malley, president of the National Catholic University of Washington.

Secretary Mitchell, who is an alumnus of the college, also spoke.

Bishop McManus, a native of Ireland, told of the work of the Catholic University and its influence on the American Catholic Church. He described the work of the college in preparing priests and laymen for the Church.

TURCI, Harknett Hold Key to League Races

ORADELL — Ray Turci of Bergen Catholic and John Harknett of St. Luke's, the pitching sensations of the 1969 scholastic baseball season in New Jersey, got a chance to further their team's championship exhibitions this week. With two non-league contests in the making, Turci will face Montclair AIAA today in a 2-1/2 hour, 12-mile drive to Bloomfield, N.J. St. Luke's, meanwhile, will face Seton Hall Prep tomorrow in a 2½-hour, 12-mile trip to West Orange.

Turci, who is 10-0 and his team's greatest offensive threat, pitched three complete games last week, allowing a combined 26 hits and 11 runs. He set a season record for Bergen Catholic, which has been based on his pitching, but he is not getting his team out of the second round of the league)

Seton Hall Prep was defeated by St. Raymond in the opening round of the tournament last week, and today's game is the only chance the Pirates have to advance to the semi-finals. Turci's team has advanced to the semi-finals in the past two years, and he is looking forward to this year's tournament.

St. Luke's, on the other hand, is hoping to make it to the final round of the tournament for the first time in their school's history. The team has been led by John Harknett, who has set a new season record for the school with 14 strikeouts in a game last week. Harknett has been pitching consistently all season, and he is looking forward to this year's tournament.
