Ohio Bishop Warns On Hospital Choice

STUERVENBURG, Ohio — Bishop John K. Mandel of Steubenville has warned Catholics to avoid non-Catholic hospitals where unusual practices are routine hospital policy.

Speaking at a Confirmation breakfast here, the Bishop and such practices have been introduced, especially in hospitals which are secular decrees of the Congregation of Rites.

"The Bishop's argument, without question," the Bishop said, "is that it is more ethical to avoid any hospital that offers these practices than to accept any hospital where they are not offered.

The Bishop explained that Catholics cannot accept the compromise of religious principles in the selection of a hospital, and that non-Catholic hospitals, because of their practices, are too secular for Catholics to select, even if they were the only hospitals available.

State Sunday Closing Policy Still Toothless After Court Ruling

NEWARK — According to law, Sunday closing is still the policy of the state of New Jersey, but in the case of the Newark Archdiocese, the archbishop has found a way around the law in order to keep the archdiocese open.

The archbishop has decided that the current law, which requires all religious institutions to be closed on Sundays, is not applicable to the archdiocese.

The latest move to avoid the law came on May 19 when the archbishop, speaking on behalf of the archdiocese, said that the archdiocese will continue to be open on Sundays.

The archbishop said that the archdiocese will continue to be open on Sundays, even though the archdiocese has been required to close on Sundays.

The Assembly also told the governor that the average tuition fees of all state-controlled colleges and universities should be increased to $500 per year. This would bring the total cost of education to $1,500, which is the current cost of tuition at the state universities.

The Assembly also called for the establishment of a minimum wage of $1.25 per hour for all workers. The law was passed after a bitter debate in the Senate, where the bill was opposed by several senators who believed it would be too expensive for businesses.

The new law was greeted with enthusiasm by labor leaders, who said it would help to improve the living conditions of working-class families. They also praised the governor for his leadership in the fight for justice and equality.

Viewed Strictly as Fiction, "Nun's Story" Is Powerful

By William H. Mooring

The story is one of a nun, and the movie is "A Nun's Story," which has just opened at the National. The movie is directed by Robert Mulligan and is based on the play by John Masefield. The play is set in Ireland and is about the life of a nun who has become a sister in a convent. The nun, played by Audrey Hepburn, is a simple and beautiful woman who has taken a vow of poverty and is trying to live a life of spiritual and moral perfection.

The movie opens with a scene of the nun's arrival at the convent, where she is greeted by the other sisters. The nun is introduced to the convent's rules and traditions, and she begins to live a life of prayer and work. She is shown to her cell, where she will spend most of her time in prayer and meditation.

The nun's life is not without its challenges. She is tested by temptations, but she remains steadfast in her faith and dedication. She is also faced with the challenges of the other sisters, who are not always understanding of her vows of poverty.

The nun's journey is one of faith and perseverance. She is shown to be a woman of great strength and courage, who is able to overcome the obstacles that are placed in her path.

The movie is a powerful and moving portrayal of the life of a nun. It is a story of faith, dedication, and perseverance, and it is a reminder of the importance of spiritual and moral values.

THE ADVOCATE

In New York, and in many other big cities, a apparently new but I'm not sure if it is legal, keep the public streets clean. The offenders are teenagers, who are transforming our streets and corners into something like the Nación. The name of the campaign family is "Lethal Litterbugs". However, there is something else that is making the community very anxious. It is the fact that these teenagers are not responsible for the garbage that they leave behind them. They've even made the garbage can't be found anywhere. They've started to transform our streets into a garbage heap.

It is quite probable that this movement will grow. They've even made a law that says everyone, men and women, must be responsible for the garbage that they leave behind. They must put it in the proper place.

Reason to Fear

By Mag. William F. Furtong

As we approach and pass the halfway point of the school year, and we attempt to look beyond to the next one, we may well be concerned that our children are not being taught enough, indeed that they are not being taught at all. There are those who would have us feel rather than think, that we should be more concerned that they are taught rather than whether what they are taught is sound and true, and not simply that they are taught and have something to show for it. A newspaper report stated that "some 2,000 children ... were taught ... to be more dangerous, and a danger, and thusly the children were taught to be more dangerous." This is not a time for such statements, and it is not a time for such teaching. We must work to prevent such a situation from developing, and to ensure that our children are taught and to work for their betterment.
