Vatican Rules Against Public Rosary During the Mass

LIVERPOOL (AP) -- The Holy See has told the clergy in the United States that public recitation of the Rosary, a form of religious devotion, is prohibited in parishes. The decision was announced by the Vatican in a letter to American bishops, which said that the practice was "not in keeping with the spirit of the Church's teachings." The letter cited a 1965 encyclical, "Mediati," which made public recitation of the Rosary "pernicious" to the faithful. The letter also noted that the public recitation of the Rosary was "not in keeping with the spirit of the Church's teachings." The letter concluded that the practice was "pernicious" to the faithful.

In the United States, the public recitation of the Rosary has been a common practice in parishes for decades. However, the Vatican's decision has led to a decline in the practice, and many parishes have stopped offering public Rosary services. The decision has also led to a increase in the number of private Rosary groups, which meet in homes and other private locations to recite the Rosary.

The decision has been met with criticism from some clergy and lay people. However, many bishops have supported the decision, saying that it is in keeping with the spirit of the Church's teachings. The decision has also been praised by some, who say that it is necessary to protect the faithful from pernicious influences.
It's Easter, time of rejoicing, of hope and faith renewed, when in song and story, the glorious Easter message is heard again. To you, at Easter, we extend our sincere greetings, with hope that you will have a joyous Easter season.

Grade, High School Enrollment Over 5 Million for First Time

WASHINGTON (NC)—The Department of Education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, has released data showing that Catholic high schools and grade schools across the country have reached an enrollment of over 5 million students. This represents a record-breaking increase in school enrollment since the last report was issued.

The report, compiled annually, highlights the growth and expansion of Catholic education in the United States. It indicates that Catholic schools continue to attract students from diverse backgrounds, offering a religious and academic education unparalleled in the public school system.

The data also shows that Catholic schools have adapted to the changing needs of students and families, providing a range of programs from preschool to college preparatory. This growth is not only in the number of students but also in the expansion of schools to meet the educational demands of the community.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC) is a leading advocate for Catholic education, working to support schools across the country in their mission to educate and inspire young people. With a focus on academic excellence and spiritual development, Catholic schools are committed to providing a holistic education that prepares students for lifelong success.

The NCWC encourages continued support for Catholic education, recognizing its vital role in shaping the future of our society. As students and families continue to seek a strong educational foundation, Catholic schools stand ready to offer a unique, faith-based approach to learning that is beneficial to all students.

The Good Old Days . . .

By Dan Hume

This is a story of a small town, about a group of people who lived there, and about the days when they were young. It is a story of the good-old-days. Most of us keep our memories of the past, and we carry them with us as we go about our daily lives.

But sometimes we like to look back at those days, and remember the people we knew and the things we did. This is a story of those days, and of the people who were part of them.

Have You Thought of Christmas Lately

Sister Dorothy

You're so far ahead of the season that you're already thinking about Christmas. Do you have any questions about the meaning and significance of the holiday? You probably have many traditions or ideas that you would like to share.

At Christmas Time you have the responsibility of doing something for our Lord and for the whole world in order to make it beautiful and joyful. This may be the most important thing that we can do for Christ at this time of the year. It is a time when we feel the warmth of the season and the importance of sharing it with others.

Christmas is a time of grace and mercy. At Christmas, God gives us the gift of life and we are able to share this gift with others. This is a time when we feel the warmth of the season and the importance of sharing it with others.
