COURSE DESCRIPTION

The ability to negotiate and manage conflicts effectively has become an essential skill in international diplomacy, as well as in our organizational and personal settings. Negotiation is the art and science of securing an agreement between two or more independent parties. This course is an introduction to the wide variety of approaches to the analysis and practice of negotiation and is intended to provide a solid foundation for further inquiry and application. Students will learn the history of thinking about negotiation, frameworks for analyzing negotiation, and the roles of various factors (influences and contexts, tactics and strategies) on the negotiation process and outcome. This course will include a blend of lectures, class discussions, individual and group exercises, and negotiation role plays in class.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Help students to think critically and analytically about international society and human conflict;
- Negotiations are microcosms of international relations. By placing negotiations in the context of global politics and global cultures, this course aims to help students to explore the role of negotiation in the current international system in preventing, managing, or resolving conflicts;
- Introduce theories, models, and other conceptual frameworks that are key in the field; Connect theory to practice through discussion, research and case study review of real events.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Attendance and Participation: (20%)

Regular attendance (10%) and active participation in class discussion and activities (10%)

Attendance is extremely important because the course will be interactive in nature. Participation in the class discussions is critical to student learning. Students should read and reflect on the readings ahead of time in order for class sessions to have the most value. Students can also participate by asking questions, circulating emails, organizing study groups, exchanging writing or introducing new ideas and resources. Excessive absences may result in a failing grade.

Midterm Research Project: (20%)

The ability to: think critically; identify and solve problems; read and comprehend what one reads; communicate effectively; and possess an awareness/appreciation for the diversity in our society is critical to students of diplomacy. The purpose of the group research project is to promote the development of these competencies. In this group research project, you will practice critical thinking, team building and group problem solving.

Students in this class will be divided into small groups of 3-4 people. Each group will conduct a research project and will present the group's findings in writing to the instructor and through an oral presentation to the class. The paper should be a case study, emphasizing and utilizing conflict analysis concepts. Details will be discussed further in class.

Negotiation Simulation Exercises: (20%)

We will do several classroom simulation exercises during the semester. Some of the information/instructions for the role plays will be handed out in class, others will be provided via e-mail. In preparing for class, pay careful attention to what role you have been assigned. When you prepare, you can do so with others who have the same role, but not with a person who has a different role. We do the actual negotiations in class. It is important to come to class having prepared your role. It slows down the class if somebody or a group is not prepared to negotiate. Preparation means that you have read the role and mapped out a strategy for the negotiation. As the course progresses, you will learn more about what constitutes good preparation and so your out-of-class preparation will become more sophisticated.

Final Exam: (40%) The final exam will be a take home essay exam. There will be no tricks in this exam. If students come to class, think for themselves, and do the required reading, they will do well on this exam. Details will be discussed further in class.

For all written assignments it is expected that you will cite your class texts, supplemental readings, and other sources. Papers should be double-spaced, spell-checked, and legible. It should be in 12 point characters in the 'Times' font. Please choose Chicago, MLA or APA citation styles. They should be your own work and must not be copied or otherwise plagiarized from another source whether it be an internet site or another student. Plagiarism or academic dishonesty of any kind will result in a failing grade in this course.
