More Light From the Summit

Management Prone To Featherbed, Too

By Mag. George G. Higgins

Department, Social Action Department, Men's Department, 9th Ave.

Randal, the editorial writer for the New York Times, recently wrote an article claiming that the labor movement is prone to featherbedding. His argument was based on the idea that unions are often too concerned with the welfare of their members rather than with the interests of the company as a whole.

However, many labor experts disagree with Randal's conclusions. They argue that unions have a responsibility to ensure the safety and well-being of their members, and that this is often overlooked by the labor movement.

Our Support of Missions Must Ignore Nationalism

In skating the missions, we ride on the mission sea, but it is short. The whole mission sea is being blown up by the wind of the Holy Spirit. The mission sea is the ocean of the Church. We are the seamen who are on the mission sea, but not so much as the Holy Ghost is. The Church gives us the seas with the wind and the waves. We must not cover the mission sea with self-collected rails and self-made water. For the mission sea is God's creation and it belongs to God. We can only sail on the mission sea, and we cannot sail it ourselves.

New York.—A definite doom has been foretold by the religious community of Chile, with leaders warning that the nation is being hit by a wave of violence and chaos.

The Rev. Msgr. Paul G. Konzelmann, editor of the Catholic Herald, told his audience that the nation is in a state of crisis and that the situation is deteriorating.

"The people of Chile are living in a state of fear and uncertainty," he said. "The government is unable to control the situation, and there is a growing sense of disillusionment and hopelessness."

The Irish have manyfeast days and feasts. One of those, of course, is St. Patrick's. In fact, the leprechaun is the symbol of Ireland; the wearing of the leprechaun on March 17th is the Irish way of celebrating Patrick's feast day. The leprechaun is said to be the symbol of good luck, and it is believed that anyone who wears the leprechaun on St. Patrick's Day will have good luck for the year to come.

Film Review Roundup

By William H. Hooing

Wife and Son, 110 min., Universal

Golightly (the flying past!)

Review in this issue is devoted to the sight-seeing film Wife and Son, a Universal release. This one seems a little too brief to be really effective in any case, but it does a good job of giving the basic facts about New York City. The trouble is that there isn't enough time to show all the highlights of the city, and the film has to content itself with a few of the more glamorous scenes. The acting is good, especially in the scenes where Golightly and her son are shown together. The film is well-directed, and the photography is excellent.
