Suggests College Graduates Teach in Parochial Schools

JERSEY CITY — A suggestion of the rush that college graduates face to find work might consider a limited period of service by Frank J. Flanagan, who has spent the past year at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana.

"Now does the shortage of teachers in parochial schools a threat," he asked, "a potential problem that will help the parish schools in this area?"

"We must be decisive," he said. "Students in the United States must be given an opportunity to serve in parochial schools."

A spokesperson for the diocesan school board, who requested anonymity, said that it was impossible to make the diocesan board accountable for the shortage of teachers in parochial schools.

"But we are taking steps to address this issue," he said. "We are considering the creation of a special fund to help maintain teacher salaries."

A NEW WAVE OF SEX FILMS ISDue FROM OVERSEAS

By William H. Hocking

With the advent of the new wave of sex films from overseas, the film industry is seeing a resurgence of interest in the genre. These films, which are often characterized by their explicit content and provocative themes, are drawing large audiences and generating significant box office revenue.

The film industry has long been known for its willingness to experiment with new ideas and push the boundaries of what is acceptable in terms of content. This trend has been particularly noticeable in the area of sex films, where producers are taking risks and exploring new themes.

In recent years, the popularity of sex films has grown significantly, with a number of films achieving critical and commercial success. This has led to an increase in the number of films being produced in this genre.

The new wave of sex films is expected to continue to grow in popularity, with producers and distributors looking for new ways to attract audiences and stand out in a crowded market.

Overall, the new wave of sex films is a welcome addition to the film industry, offering viewers a diverse range of content to explore and engage with. As the genre continues to evolve, it will be interesting to see what new themes and ideas emerge in the future.
The Need for Dedicated Nurses

"Hospital care is care to all human beings. It is an art practiced by the best-trained people in the world, and it is an indespensible part of our total health care system. The need for dedicated nurses exists everywhere, in every state, and in every hospital. The need for dedicated nurses is greatest in the inner cities, where the population is the most diverse and the health care needs are the greatest. The need for dedicated nurses is greatest in the rural areas, where the population is the most farming and the health care needs are the greatest. The need for dedicated nurses is greatest in the inner cities, where the population is the most diverse and the health care needs are the greatest.

Responsibility TV Programming

Television is a highly competitive medium with a wide range of programs that are designed to attract and entertain viewers. Television programming must be responsible and accurate, particularly when it comes to issues related to health care. This is especially true for programs that deal with health care professionals, as these programs can have a significant impact on the public's perception of the health care system.

Sign of the Times

It seems incredible that a great social wave is beginning to waver the very democratic influences that may have brought about the second great wave of labor in the United States. The second great wave of labor began after the 1919-20 strike of the workers at the General Motors Corporation. This strike was significant because it was the first major strike of its kind in the United States, and it was a major victory for the workers. The second great wave of labor was characterized by a series of strikes and sit-ins that took place in major cities across the United States, and it was a major victory for the workers. and the shot put. They also scored in the high jump and the long jump.

Pope Tells Africans Church Can Help Solve Problems

WATERBURY - Pope John XXIII, in a Vatican Radio broadcast, delivered an urgent appeal to the governments of African countries to provide more facilities for the rapid development of their own people. The Holy Father expressed the hope that the young countries would be able to choose the best from the experience of modernization that has been made in the last few years and that during the period of their establishment, they will be able to educate their young people according to the pattern of their own countries.

The Pope said, "In the development of a country, the most important things are the people. If a country is well organized and well administered and if the people have the right education, the country will be able to develop.

The Pope concluded by saying, "We are all brothers and sisters, and we should help each other. We should help the young countries to develop and to become independent."

Have you tasted the bread that was never meant to be sold?

It’s called Mobka’s Bread and has long been the daily bread of the Trappists of the Abbey of the Genesee, a monastery in western New York. A bit thin, bit different and more delicious than any you’ve ever tasted, this beautiful bread has become popular overnight. Actually this bread was never meant to be sold. But visitors to the Abbey of the Genesee were so enthusiastic about it that the Mobkas agreed to share it with the outside world.

Recently the Mobkas were given the privilege of baking Mobka’s Bread for you, Mobka’s Bread baked by Debs, following the Trappist recipe, is now at your favorite store in White, Whole Wheat and Raisin loaves.
