Sees Man Abdicating Responsibility

Holy See Warns on Socialization

GRENOBLE, France — In a letter written on behalf of Pope John, Cardinal Tardini, Vatican Secretary of State, has warned against excessive socialization.

The letter was received here by officials of the French Social Week, theme of which is "Socialization and the Human Person." The meeting will run to July 17 with scholars, sociologists and professional people participating in discussions on social problems.

PROBLEMS arising in the wake of World War II led to an expansion of socialization, Cardinal Tardini noted, saying that its advantages "in the economic, social and cultural fields are undeniable."

"Socialization," he declared, can satisfy certain social needs of primary importance in a positive way: for example, the need of a home, medical treatment, social services, work and leisure."

However, he asserted, "socialization increases bureaucratic machinery beyond all proportion. It increases the details of the juridical organization of human relations in all sectors of society's life and it leads to methods which constitute the serious risk identified today with the word 'dehumanization'."

IN MANY CASES, the sphere in which modern man "can think alone, act on his own initiative, exercise his own responsibility and enrich his personality is becoming excessively restricted," Cardinal Tardini said.

With this in mind, the Cardinal asked: "Does it follow that it may become impossible to control the advance of socialization, and that it may, with its ever greater vastness and depth, reduce man inevitably to the role of an automaton?"

"Certainly not. For socialization is not the product of the forces of nature that act according to a determinism which is impossible to change."

"It is the work of man, of a free human being, conscious and responsible for his actions. On the one hand, one must be able to profit by the advantages it offers. But on the other, one must know how to protect the human person from the serious threats that can arise from its excessive and disordered development."

THE CARDINAL'S letter also stressed the importance of "intermediate bodies" such as trade unions in protecting the just autonomy of the person and the family. Such bodies, it said, help solve complex responsibilities which cannot be tackled on a lower level.

"But if each one of these institutions is to remain within its specific competence, it is indispensable that they be offered to and not imposed on the free choice of mankind. They must never consider themselves an end and turn their members into an instrument of their activity."

"These observations apply to every form of usurped collective domination.

TIME OUT FOR MASS: Rev. (Capt.) Daniel F. Byrne says Mass amid the snow in Greenland, using a portable altar and a truck for a sacristy. The service was conducted at Camp Century, where Army engineers are digging an atom-proof base under the ice some 900 miles from the North Pole. The completed project will include a small chapel and will house 100 men.

Promote Unity, Aid Missions

Vatican Tells Catholic Press

SANTANDER, Spain — The Holy See has called on the Catholic press to play an important role in promoting international unity and providing technical assistance to mission lands.

These objectives were laid before the International Union of the Catholic Press at its meeting here by Cardinal Tardini, Vatican Secretary of State, in a letter written on behalf of Pope John.

"ALTHOUGH the press can form a common public opinion," the Cardinal wrote, "daily experience proves — unfortunately too often — that it can also help to sow disunity among men."

For that reason, he said, the Catholic press "has a special mission of concord and peace. Friendship among nations will be the rule of the Christian journalist. He will seek what brings together and unites, rather than that which divides and opposes."

Special attention, Cardinal Tardini said, should be given to underdeveloped nations "who fight bitterly against misery, hunger, sickness or ignorance."

Government Control Of Movie Industry Seen as Necessary

VATICAN CITY (RNS) — State intervention and control of the movie industry is "not only possible and desirable, but increasingly necessary from a moral viewpoint," a message sent on behalf of Pope John XXIII to Msgr. Jean Bernard of Luxembourg, president of the International Catholic Film Office (OCIC), declared.

The occasion of the Pope's message, sent by Cardinal Tardini, Vatican Secretary of State, was a series of study days in Vienna, Austria, at which Msgr. Bernard presided.

Among the many delegates present from many countries was Rev. Patrick J. Sullivan, S.J., assistant executive secretary of the Legion of Decency in the U. S. He has offices in New York.

IN HIS LETTER, Cardinal Tardini said the issue of the cinema "greatly preoccupies" the Pope, who feels that the motion picture industry in general has "a duty to avoid or eliminate any obnoxious and damaging moral influences."

Cardinal Tardini said that it also is necessary "to lay down, internationally, new laws and regulations providing for the protection of youth."

He said this problem can raise delicate issues, such as what minimum age should be fixed for movie-goers and how juvenile attendance at the cinema can be controlled.

A THIRD point raised in Cardinal Tardini's letter was the right of the state to exert strict control of the movie industry and to "ensure the protection of youth as well as defend their moral integrity."

In all these matters, the Cardinal stressed, private initiatives

CATHOLIC MOTHER BLESSED: Mrs. Frances E. Leehan, a Portland, Oregon, widow who in May was named national Catholic Mother of the Year, receives her son's first blessing as a newly-ordained Redemptorist priest. He was the seventh of her 12 children to enter the religious life. Waiting to receive Rev. Thomas Leehan's blessing are, from left: Rev. Patrick Leehan of Great Falls, Mont.; Daniel Leehan of Portland; Sister Frances Therese of Milwaukee; Rev. Gerard Leehan of Coeur d'Alene, Ida. The three priests and Brother Joseph are Redemptorists. Mrs. Leehan's other five children include two more nuns, two daughters who are married and another son.

Sunday Law Passes Religious Challenge

JERSEY CITY — Hudson County Court has upheld the validity of the county-option Sunday sales law in an attack on the law based on charges of religious discrimination.

Judge Paul J. Duffy gave the ruling in upholding a $25 fine imposed on a West New York merchant in Municipal Court there.

Plaintiff in the case was David Fass, owner of a floor covering store at 6100 Bergenline Ave. Fass claimed that as an Orthodox Jew his religion required him to close his store on Saturdays.

HOWEVER, Judge Duffy said Fass was not immune to enforcement of the Sunday law because of his Saturday closing.

And replying to Fass's argument that enforcement of the law would cause him to suffer unfair hardship in embracing his religion, Judge Duffy said the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion does not mean that membership in a sect carries with it the proposition that financial sacrifices for a member's religion will be eliminated.

Joseph L. Freiman, counsel for Fass, said the ruling will be appealed to the State Supreme Court. The court has already held the Sunday sales law to be effective.

Fass and his brother-in-law, Dave Fass, a partner in the firm, have also initiated action in Federal Court in Newark to have the law overturned. There,

Catholic U. Appeal Set

NEWARK — Archbishop Boland has asked that a collection for the Catholic University of America be taken up July 17 in all churches of the Archdiocese which have not already had such a collection this year.

In a letter to pastors announcing the collection, the Archbishop noted that Catholic University has "played a major and vital role in our educational system" for 70 years.

"It has given the opportunity to priests and religious . . . to take courses which could not be pursued elsewhere, he said.

Explaining the need for a collection, the Archbishop said that in graduate schools devoted to research and the increasing of knowledge, the cost cannot be met by tuition alone."

Audiences Like Last Judgment

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Ever think of the Vatican palace being like the scene of the Last Judgment?

Well, that's what Pope John XXIII says his audiences remind him of.

Receiving a group of Belgians, the Pope apologized for being late. Then, referring to the Prophecy of Joel in the Old Testament, Pope John made a sweeping gesture to the room full of pilgrims and said:

"Here it is somewhat like what will happen in the Valley of Josaphat. People come from all parts of the world and all at the same time."

Later, on hearing one pilgrim say he was getting old, the 78-year-old Pontiff responded: "To grow old in years is not a misfortune, because it brings us nearer to the other shore."

Spanish Bishops Reject Letter From 'Priests' on Civil Rights

PAMPLONA, Spain — Four Spanish Bishops have stated that a letter allegedly written by a group of Basque priests protesting government violations of civil rights contains "obvious falsehoods" and is "without any guarantee of authenticity."

Because of the letter's political nature, they said, they cannot accept it.

THEY WERE commenting on a letter containing the names of 300 priests from the Basque area which had been sent to them on May 30. The letter contained charges of police brutality against political prisoners and press censorship.

The Bishops, in a joint letter of their own, said they cannot understand "how political passion can blind some priests . . . to the point of allowing themselves to cooperate in a great propaganda scandal of obscure origin . . . with serious consequences for the Church itself."

Signing the joint letter were Archbishop Enrique Delgado y Gomez of Pamplona, Bishop Pablo Gurpide Beope of Bilbao, Bishop Jaime Font y Andrea of San Sebastian and Bishop Francisco Perally y Ballabriga of Vitoria.

THEY COMPLAINED of the way in which the original letter was reported in the American and European press and said: "We ask Catholic publications abroad to look to responsible sources of information when it is a matter of judging or simply reporting on the life of the Church in Spain."

The Bishops hinted that they doubted the authenticity of the letter, saying: "Its presentation is improper since it has no trustworthiness save that which, undoubtedly, may apply to a typewritten document, with no guarantee of authenticity."

"It came to us," they said, "in this strange and irresponsible manner, lamentably at the same time it was being made public in particularly suspicious circumstances" in Europe and America.

Czechs 'Free' Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi

Six Bishops

VATICAN CITY — According to reports received here from unofficial sources and published in Osservatore Romano, Communist Czechoslovakia has liberated 29,000 political prisoners, including six Bishops, and a number of priests and religious.

However, Osservatore said, "as in the past the Bishops liberated from jail are forbidden to return to their dioceses to resume government of them and they may not exercise their functions as ecclesiastics or as priests."

AMONG THOSE reported released are Bishop Josef Hlouch of Budejovice, Bishop Stepan Trochta of Litomerice, Bishop Peter Goidic of Presov, Auxiliary Bishop Stanislav Zela of Olomouc, Auxiliary Bishop Stefan Barnas of Spis and Auxiliary Bishop Vasil Hopko of Presov.

Osservatore pointedly noted that "nothing is said of Archbishop Beran of Prague, who has been long kept from his diocese because of his firmness."

"The Church," it added, "remains oppressed and under the arbitrary rule of the communist bureaucracy."

Mission Director Dies in Rome at 87

ROME (NC) — Pietro Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi, head of the Church's missionary effort since 1933 and apostolic delegate to the U. S. for 10 years before that, has died in a Rome hospital.

The health of the 87-year-old prelate had been failing for weeks. Cardinal Agagianian, Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith, of which Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi was Prefect, was at his bedside at the time of death July 12.

CARDINAL Fumasoni Biondi had been a priest for 63 years and an Archbishop for 43 years. He was born in Rome Sept. 4, 1872, and was educated at the Roman Seminary. Before ordination he served in the Italian Army in accordance with Italian law.

He was ordained Apr. 17, 1897, after receiving a degree in theology. Two years later he earned a law degree.

In 1901, after a parish assignment, he became secretary to Cardinal Agostino Ciasca. Then he served in the following posts: Secretary to Cardinal Sebastiano Martinelli, former Delegate to the U. S.; professor of Latin at the Urban University; an official of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith (1904); Apostolic Delegate to India (1916-19); Apostolic Delegate to Japan (1919-20), and Secretary of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith (1920-22).

IN DECEMBER, 1922, he was named Apostolic Delegate to the U. S., visiting every State in the Union during his 10-year tenure. Later he was to become protector of a score of American religious communities for women and the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade. When the Apostolic Delegate to Mexico was forced to flee that country as a result of persecution, Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi took over that post.

An Archbishop at that time — he was given that honor when named Delegate to India — he became a Cardinal at the consistory of March, 1933, and was assigned to the Roman Curia as Prefect of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. He was also a member of five other congregations.

During his administration, he established more native missions than any previous prefect of the Propagation agency. Cardinal Agagianian was named to assist him in 1938 when his health and sight began to fail. Cardinal Stritch of Chicago had originally been named his assistant but died shortly after his arrival in Rome.

Czech Visit Taught 'What Hell Is Like'

By Floyd Anderson

MADRID, Spain — How are things in Czechoslovakia under the communists? I met two people who had just returned from a visit there. One of them said that when she decided to go to Czechoslovakia, her old mother—who had been there a few years before—said: "Go, and see what hell is like." Now the woman agrees: "It was hell."

Tears filled her eyes as she talked of her relatives in Czechoslovakia. "They walk around like people in a trance. Everyone is afraid of everyone else. If two people are talking, and a third comes along, they wonder who will report to the state what they talk about."

"I went there young," she said, "but I was old in a week. I was afraid I would die there—and I didn't want to die there."

THEY HAD COME from the United States to visit relatives they had not seen for 30 or 40 years. Other friends had visited Czechoslovakia, but "why didn't they tell us what it was like?" Then they concluded that they were afraid what might happen to their relatives if they told the true situation.

One recalled a woman friend who had visited Czechoslovakia and was very outspoken about what she saw. "The police took her in for questioning three times. After that her son wouldn't let her go anywhere without going along. He was afraid of what she might say, and that it would make trouble for her and them."

EACH MORNING in this small town, they said, the loudspeakers scattered all around wake up everyone and call out their assignments for the day. One man is told to go to the fields and work, another to another job. If the men don't report promptly, the loudspeakers blast their names and jobs out constantly, until they report.

Even the school children are not immune to this "slave labor" call. Frequently the loudspeaker reports — "No school today. All the children go to the collective farms and pick weeds." The children are not paid — and, the woman recalled bitterly, "they even had to provide their own lunch, as well as working free."

Schools operate six days a week, she said; then on Sundays picnics, parades, and games are arranged and the children are ordered to report to the school — and thus miss Mass.

THE COMMUNIST government has its hand in everything. She recalled seeing a woman in a bank with some U. S. silver dollars which she wanted to change into Czechoslovakian money.

"What year are they?" the bank teller asked. She looked at them and said, "1950."

"They're not any good any more," he said; and she could do nothing about it. The American woman was tempted to say something to her about it — but, she told me frankly: "I was afraid to. I was determined to keep my mouth shut so I could get home safely."

SHE TOLD OF a friend who had nine hens. The state inspector came around and said:

"Your quota is 900 eggs a year." Every quarter they came around to check — and these 900 eggs were given to the government. If she did not get that many eggs from her hens, she had to go out and buy more eggs to meet the government quota. If she had two cows, the government set a quota of milk that she had to turn over to the state.

She also said the government radio was full of reports about Francis Powers, pilot of the U-2 captured in Russia. She said the communist radio predicts the execution of Powers unless his father and wife come to Russia to live. She said she didn't know whether or not to believe it — she had heard no real news all the time she was inside Czechoslovakia.

HOWEVER, she said with some satisfaction, the communists have stopped trying to tear down the small wayside shrines. She told of one town where the communists had chopped down a large cross along the road and thrown it into a swamp. The people protested so much that they had to put up another one.

The woman told also of reports that the Blessed Virgin was appearing in a mountain area, and that people were beginning to visit the spot. The two Americans went too, but saw nothing, and noted that the Church has made no comment.

She said, too, that stories like these are common among Catholics:

One communist went to a church to chop

Europe to Pool Priests To Ease Local Shortages

VIENNA (RNS) — An international effort to ease the shortage of Catholic clergy in many areas of Europe will begin with the sending of Dutch priests to dioceses in Austria.

In a press conference here, Coadjutor Archbishop Franz Jachym of Vienna disclosed that Austria would be one of the first European nations to share in the plan, but that the dioceses of Essen and Paderborn in Germany and others in Scandinavia were expected to benefit later.

THE ARCHBISHOP noted that in these dioceses "there is a great scarcity of priests and seminarians," while in other parts of Europe "there are dioceses with an oversupply."

He said Holland, for example, leads all other European countries in the proportionate number of priests and seminarians, and thus the Dutch hierarchy has agreed that Holland become the initial source of supply for priests under a new "pooling" arrangement.

Archbishop Jachym said an informational clearing house will be set up in Holland under the sponsorship of the St. Ludger Foundation to prepare Catholic populations in dioceses to which foreign priests will be sent.

This center, he said, also will assume the responsibility for training priests in the language, Church history and pastoral conditions of the countries being supplied.

$250,000 Raised For Formosa U.

BOSTON — Cardinal Cushing announced here that $250,000 of the $1 million being sought in a fund drive for the new Catholic university in Formosa has already been raised.

The new university will replace the University of Peiping, seized by the communists in China in 1949. Cardinal Cushing is chairman of the drive. Archbishop Paul Yu-Pin, exiled Ordinary of Nanking, is rector of the institution.

Cardinal Cushing said the fund drive should reach its halfway point before the end of the year with completion expected by Easter, 1961.

Worldiness Called The Modern Heresy

LONDON (RNS) — The Bishop of England and Wales, in a joint pastoral letter, told Catholics that the heresies they are called upon to combat today are not false doctrines, but "the worldiness which is at war with the spirit of Christ."

The pastoral was read in churches throughout the country on Martyrs' Sunday, which climaxed a week of prayer for the canonizing of 40 martyrs of England and Wales who died for the Faith in the 16th and 17th centuries. The 40 are among 197 who have been beatified and are called Blessed.

Noting that the cause of the 40 martyrs has been reopened by the Sacred Congregation of Rites in Rome in response to their petitions, the Bishops said they included "the most outstanding examples of Christian heroism and illustrate the close ties that should exist between the priesthood and the laity."

"HOWEVER," they continued "it is not solely for recognition of their heroism that we have petitioned the Holy See that they should be declared saints. . . . In this age of material prosperity, we need the example of their lives to show that self-sacrifice is better than worldly well-being, that devotion to Holy Mother Church, dedication to the work of God, the dignity of the priesthood and the cooperation of the faithful in the redemptive work of Christ are enduring and surpassing values.

"The heresies we are called upon to combat today are not the falsehoods of doctrine which the martyrs were trained to refute. Rather is it the worldiness which is at war with the spirit of Christ. We need the example of sacrifice if we are to meet the growing requirements of the Church for priests and religious who, through the intercession of the martyrs, will become worthy heirs to their inheritance."

On Martyrs' Sunday, pilgrims gathered at Lancaster Castle, where some of the martyrs were imprisoned, and walked half a mile from that point to the local cathedral. Martyrs' Sunday was chosen as the Sunday nearest to the Feast of St. John Fisher and St. Thomas More, the only two of the English martyrs who have already been canonized. Their feast fell on July 9.

Catholic Press ...

(Continued from Page 1) "would be particularly timely." Cardinal Tardini said the Catholic journalist, motivated by a love for all men, would also "become the willing defender of all people who are humiliated and victims of injustices." And he will "make it his duty to give the greatest echo to the Holy Father's anxious concern for the Church of Silence," he said.

It is a love of truth, he said, which should sustain the Catholic journalist and give "him assurance that he collaborates in the preparation of the Kingdom of God" in which humanity "finds its profound unity."

MORE THAN 300 delegates attended the press meeting. Among them were Frank A. Hall, director of NCWC News Service, and Floyd Anderson, managing editor of The Advocate who represented the Catholic Press Association of the U. S. of which he is vice president.

Both Hall and Anderson were reelected to office by groups making up the press union. Hall was chosen vice president of the Federation of Catholic Press Agencies. Anderson was elected a member of the board of the Federation of Editors and Catholic Publications.

Raimondo Manzini, new editor-in-chief of Osservatore Romano, was chosen president of the International Union, the parent body. Theme of the meeting was "The Catholic Press: Link Between Peoples." The keynote talk

"IN A NUMBER of resolutions, the congress called for freedom of information as "the natural right of man," agreed to hold its 1963 deliberations in Ottawa, Canada, and pledged efforts to work for the realization of Pope John's directives regarding the Catholic press.

The congress also named a committee for the formation of a federation of Catholic schools of journalism. The committee is to have two centers of operation, the University of Lille in France, and Fordham University in New York.

Prior to the business meeting, delegates heard an address by Bishop Pedro Cantero Cuadrado Huelva, Spain, president of the Spanish Catholic press group, who said that for the Catholic press to give adequate service to the cause of truth it was "absolutely essential that it be given free access to reliable and impartial information." It would also be necessary for the Catholic press to have legitimate freedom to express truth, the Bishop said.

Special Year Failed In Refugee Goal

GENEVA (RNS) — The World Refugee Year has not solved the refugee problem. Instead, the plight of homeless men, women and children everywhere continues to pose "enormous issues" not only but for the whole of society.

This was the finding of the International Committee for the World Refugee Year in a statement handed here to Claude de Kemoularia, special representative of UN General Secretary Dag Hammarskjold, at the close of 12 months of intensified effort for refugee resettlement and integration.

The statement was presented by Charles E. Jordan of the American Joint Distribution Committee, co-chairman of the International Committee which represented 74 religious and other voluntary agencies interested in refugee relief.

LAUNCHING OF the World Refugee Year 12 months ago, the statement said, brought hope to millions of the world's displaced and fulfilled it for tens of thousands.

But, it stated, the Year "has not solved the refugee problem. Thousands still wait. A whole generation of refugee children is growing up in the squalor of camps or crowded slums. Despite the achievements of the year, it is abundantly clear that the refugee question continues to pose enormous issues.

The committee stressed that the conclusion of the year must not result in curtailment of efforts on behalf of those who still need help. It therefore called upon governments "to appropriate additional funds and to further liberalize legislation to admit larger numbers of refugees."

The committee appealed also to private citizens "to continue their generous financial support," and asked the UN "to call upon the world to continue the effort on behalf of refugees."

God Is Source Of Their Power, Delegates Told

LOS ANGELES—Cardinal McIntyre opened the Democratic national convention here with a prayer in which he pointed out to delegates that their power to select their party's candidate for the presidency comes from God.

"There is no power but from God, and those that are appointed by God," the Cardinal declared.

"Civil authority is of God," the Cardinal said. "We know this not so much by revelation or positive instruction as by the self-evident fact that God is the Author of nature, and man's social nature requires that civil authority be established and obeyed."

"What nature absolutely requires, that God commands. What nature absolutely rejects as incompatible with man's well-being, that God forbids. Hence it is that all just authority comes from God."

Virginia Law Held Invalid

HAMPTON, Va. (NC) — A Circuit Court judge ruled here that the 1960 Virginia Legislature technically repealed the state's new Sunday sales law at the same session at which it was adopted.

Judge Frank A. Kearney of Hampton Circuit Court held that as a result of the new law, which lists items not to be sold on Sunday, is invalid. His decision is binding only in his circuit, but is expected to be followed in other jurisdictions.

THE NEW Sunday sales law was an amendment to a earlier law which restricted Sunday work to acts of necessity and charity. The law was a section of the criminal code, known as Title 18.

Later in the session, the Virginia lawmakers adopted revisions in Title 18 and the bill containing these revisions declared Title 18 to be repealed.

The revisions included the text of the old law, permitting only acts of necessity and charity, but did not contain the amendment which attempted to spell out what specific acts were forbidden.

More Italian Bishops Define Church's Interest in Politics

BENEVENTO, Italy—The Bishops of two regions in southern Italy have issued joint pastoral letters stressing again the Church's right to speak out on political and social matters.

Letters written by the Bishops of the Benevento and Calabria regions also warned Catholics against collaborating with communists and socialists.

THE TWO NEW letters—bringing to seven the total of recent pastorals of this nature—come in the wake of a May 17 editorial in Osservatore Romano which said Catholics have a duty to conform to the directives and judgments of the hierarchy in the political field. The editorial has been described as an authoritative statement from a competent Vatican source.

threatened the stability of the country's Christian Democratic government, neither referred directly to the disturbances.

Osservatore Romano, however, called the riots a cause for "sorrow and humiliation" for every Christian.

IN THE PASTORAL circulated in Benevento, the Bishops there said "political-social problems cannot be separated from religion." Such a separation is impossible, they said, because these "are human problems and as such must be governed by the moral and religious principles of which the Church is trustee, custodian and master."

The Bishops of the Calabria area warned against those who, "proclaiming the absolute freedom of the believer in the economic and social field, would limit his relations with the Church exclusively to the sphere of the supernatural, as though it were in this sphere alone that problems of conscience arise."

Pray for Rain
GUADALAJARA, Mexico (RNS) — Cardinal Garibi of Guadalajara issued a pastoral letter urging priests throughout the north of Mexico to lead the faithful in prayers for rain to end a prolonged drought in the area.

In-Family Training In Politics Urged

MEXICO CITY — Political training within the family was urged here by the Latin American Congress of the Christian Family Movement.

Delegates declared that the family "has a conscientious responsibility to live and act in the civil society of which it is a part in such a way as to achieve for it a reign of justice, perfected by charity, and thus bring about the solution which God wants for today's depressed social and economic conditions."

Earlier, a letter written on behalf of Pope John by Cardinal Tardini, Vatican Secretary of State, was read to the meeting by Cardinal Garibi y Rivera of Guadalajara, Mexico. Cardinal Tardini said society as a whole benefits when family life is lived in a Christian manner.

THE MEETING spoke out strongly for family civic formation, stressing that the common good must be the guide in forming family political attitudes. The true Christian family, the congress said, must teach its members "to accept the political responsibilities which considerations of the common welfare might demand of them, training them to know to respect those who hold opposing ideas."

Community responsibility is not limited to the local level, the congress stressed, calling for a "community environment" on the parish level and in-family training concerning international responsibilities.

Cardinal Tardini in his letter said the Church "looks trustingly" to Christian homes "for an increasing flow of priestly and religious vocations, as well as the support of a laity which . . . aids the Church in the tasks of the apostolate."

Diplomat Named To NCWC Post

WASHINGTON (NC) — A Latin American lay leader, journalist and diplomat has been named assistant director of the new Latin America Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

He is Carlos A. Siri, a member of the staff of the foreign ministry of El Salvador, whose appointment becomes effective Sept. 1. He has been granted a year's leave of absence by El Salvador to serve with the Latin America Bureau.

Siri was previously associated with the NCWC for four years (1941-45), when he served as first editor of Noticias Catholicas, the Spanish and Portuguese-language news service of the NCWC Press Department.

In his new post he will assist Rev. John J. Considine, M.M., an expert on Catholic mission activities, appointed director of the Latin America Bureau in April.

Advices Catholics Not to Back Laws on Contraceptive Sales

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—An English Catholic legal scholar has urged Catholics in the U. S. and England not to support legislation totally banning the use or sale of contraceptives.

Dr. Norman St. John-Stevens, in a booklet titled "Birth Control and Public Policy," noted that "Catholics in a democracy have every right to work for legislation outlawing the sale and distribution of contraceptives."

However, he said, they might better "limit their efforts to securing a policy of state neutrality on the issue and passing of measures of preserving public morality which command the general support of the community."

THE REPORT, published by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, is one of a series concerned with the study of religion in a free society. The Center was established by the Fund for the Republic.

In his report, Dr. St. John-Stevens declared that a statute such as that in Connecticut which forbids the use of contraceptives "violates Catholic principles of jurisprudence, and is unenforceable."

He explained: "A breach of natural law must be a fit subject for legislation and injure the common good substantially before it is forbidden by law. The law must be capable of enforcement and equitable in its incidence. Finally, if it would cause greater evils than those it is intended to avoid, recourse to legislation must be eschewed."

The Connecticut law which forbids the use of contraceptives does not fulfill these requirements, he said, explaining: "Using a contraceptive is essentially a private act, and though it may have harmful social consequences it is impossible to isolate any particular act and the consequences that flow from it. In practice such a law is obviously unenforceable, and the attempt to enforce it would involve an intolerable interference with the private life of individuals."

THE AUTHOR, however, defended the right of Catholics to work for the passage of prohibitory birth control laws by "normal political means," such as public campaigns, distribution of literature and lobbying of legislators.

He warns that Catholics would be unwise to follow U. S. Protestant efforts to legislate morality along the lines of the 19th century anti-birth control laws and recent anti-gambling and liquor statutes.

He said that Catholics who campaign for the maintenance of laws forbidding the sale of contraceptives "gain little for public morality. They do, however, increase the fear of Catholicism in the minds of non-Catholics and increase the likelihood that when Protestants visualize the Church, the image will not be that of a religious body but of a political power structure."

"This is a high price to pay for the maintenance of ineffectual statutes," he added.

Dr. St. John-Stevens said that efforts to preserve public morality would be more constructive if confined to measures commanding general support, "such as the banning of sales of contraceptives from slot machines or the restriction of sales to adults."

On Precious Blood
Pope Tells Reason For Recent Letter
VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope John XXIII explained that he issued last week's apostolic letter on devotion to the Precious Blood to counteract a tendency toward multiplication of devotions unauthorized by the Church.

He made his explanation at a general audience in St. Peter's Basilica.

Pope John said that many of the unauthorized devotions now widespread among Catholics are nothing more than "superficialities and vanities." He said that by exhorting Catholics to love Christ's Sacred Heart, Holy Name and Precious Blood he hoped to stimulate true piety.

DURING THE WEEK the Pope sent a message of sympathy to the family of 7-year-old Catherine Hudson of Oklahoma City. Catherine died of leukemia on July 6. In April the Pontiff had waved aside protocol to spend 40 minutes with the girl who had begged her widowed mother to take her to see the Pope.

In another act of mercy the Pontiff paid an unscheduled visit to Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi, 87-year-old Prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith who died a few days later.

Among those received in audience were a group of clothing designers, most of them Americans, attending an international convention in Rome. The Pontiff praised the designers for "trying to establish a truly international suit for men, rich and poor alike." This, he said, was "a laudable method of eliminating barriers between nations."

Pope John conferred privately with Archbishop Lino Zanini, Apostolic Nuncio to the Domini-

Minor Seminary Vocation Key

WAPPINGERS FALLS, N.Y. (NC)—The American Franciscan Society for Vocations said the growing number of U.S. minor seminaries is the chief factor in the "richest increase in priestly and religious vocations in our country's history."

In a statement at its meeting here, the society reported a "marked increase" of high school boys entering the minor seminary. "This is due to the wisdom and zeal of the American Bishops, whose well-planned diocesan vocation programs each year acquaint so many more boys with the priesthood," the statement said.

The organization of vocations directors from the Friars Minor, the Capuchins, Third Order Regular, and Friars of the Atonement called the increase in the number of minor seminaries "providential."

"It concretely reaffirms the Church's approval of the minor seminary as the ideal environment to test, cultivate and preserve youthful vocations," it said.

Since World War II, 18 minor diocesan seminaries and 32 minor seminaries for religious orders have been established in the U. S.

Court Refuses Stay On Migrant Order

NEWARK — The Appellate Division of Superior Court has refused to issue an injunction against a state order requiring farmers to provide hot and cold water and other facilities for migrant workers. At the same time the three-judge court refused to dismiss a suit attacking the constitutionality of the order.

The order was issued by the State Department of Labor and is being contested by the Food Producers Council. A bill repealing the order, which affects only farmers hiring eight or more migrants, has been passed by both houses of the State Legislature, but Gov. Robert B. Meyner has said he will not sign it.

Lay Participation Clinics Planned

WASHINGTON—Clinics for parish priests on lay participation in the Mass will be among the special features of the 20th annual North American Liturgical Week in Pittsburgh Aug. 22-25. Some 4,000 priests, religious and laity are expected to attend the sessions.

Twelve clinics on lay participation have been scheduled with separate "how to do it" sessions for urban, suburban and rural parishes.

Another feature of the meeting, sponsored by the Liturgical Conference here, will be a theology institute on Church unity.

COUNSEL FOR THE Food Producers Council argued that farmers would suffer irreparable loss if compelled to install the necessary facilities before their court test was decided.

However, Judge Victor J. Kilkenny suggested that the danger to migrant workers and to the public from disease resulting from lack of sanitary facilities would be more irreparable than the expenditure of money by farmers.

"Common respect for our fellow men," he said, "requires that they be treated as such. Are they to be treated as animals? Are we to consider only the money to be spent by a few recalcitrant farmers?"

She had been in the Sisters' infirmary since suffering a broken hip last year. Death resulted from a heart attack.

Sister Albertine had studied at Manhattanville College's St. X Institute of Liturgical Music and under the Art Progressive Series of St. Louis, Mo.

Prior to her assignment in Whippany, she taught at St. Joseph's Home for the Blind, Jersey City; St. Anne's, Fair Lawn; St. Joseph's Catechetical Center, Washington, N. Marian Shrine Hotel Planned EPHESUS, Turkey (RNS) — A new hotel will be built in Ephesus to accommodate pilgrims to the Holy House of Panaghia Kapuli where, according to Catholic tradition, the Virgin Mary lived for a time.

Small flasks filled with holy water from a nearby spring will be distributed to tourists at the hotel, officials of the Turkish Tourism Organization said. The spring is believed to be the same one which supplied the Virgin with water when she lived in the Holy House. The first flasks to be filled will be sent to the Vatican.

A centuries-old tradition says that the Virgin Mary was brought to the Holy House by St. John after the death of Jesus, and that she later died there. It was on this site that the third Ecumenical Council took place in 431, with Pope Celestine I presiding.

While the Holy See has not officially confirmed the authenticity of the claim that the Virgin lived at Ephesus, the late Pope Pius XII granted a number of indulgences to pilgrims who visited the shrine.

Puerto Rican Politician Sees Tough Task Facing New Party

LOS ANGELES (NC) — The newly formed Christian Action Party in Puerto Rico faces rough sledding, according to a veteran politician from that island.

Alfred Vidal of Santurce, P. R., here for the Democratic national convention, said the one big hurdle the party must vault before it can function is the opposition of Puerto Rico's Gov. Luis Munoz Martin.

Vidal said Gov. Munoz Martin has been in power for 20 years. Organizers of the CAP have said it has been just that length of time that the political parties of Puerto Rico have failed to act favorably on Catholic-backed legislation.

Mr. Vidal explained what the CAP is up against before it can function.

Vidal estimated that the CAP must register some 70,000 voters between now and the Aug. 28 registration deadline if it is to place candidates in the field in all districts in the November elections.

ANOTHER OBSTACLE, he said is that after the required 10% of the voters are obtained, they must be certified by a judge of the voting district.

"All of these judges are members of Gov. Munoz Martin's party," Vidal said, "and there may be some difficulty in getting them to fill out the required affidavits certifying that the required number of voters are registered. The judges could all go fishing at the same time, you know."

In San Juan, meanwhile, party leader Mario Davila charged that judges are not cooperating in the effort to secure registrations. He also said that the election board is handling only one list a day although Gov. Munoz Martin said party efforts would not be obstructed.

The two Bishops of Puerto Rico recently issued a letter urging Catholics to help the party in its registration efforts.

Hospital Handled 71 Poison Cases

ELIZABETH — A total of 71 cases were handled by the Poison Control Center of St. Elizabeth's Hospital during the period Jan. 1-June 30, it was reported this week by Sister Ellen Patricia, hospital administrator.

This compares with a total of 92 cases for the 12 months of 1959.

Sister Ellen Patricia noted that the increase does not mean that there is an increase of accidental poisoning cases but rather that more individuals, doctors and area hospitals are availing themselves of the service offered by St. Elizabeth's.

PRACTICALLY all of the incidents of accidental poisoning occurred between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Of the 71 cases, 54 were in the age group from nine months to six years, she said.

Among the types of substances ingested or inhaled were aspirin, prescription medications, household cleaners, bleach, insecticides, chlorine, ammonia, cosmetics, plastic glue, paint, shoe polish, lacquers, antibiotics, deodorants, eye lotions, furniture polish, sedatives, liniments, kerosene and rubbing alcohol. One child bit into a flashlight battery.

Treatment or inquiry, said Sister Ellen Patricia, involved patients from Union, Essex, Middlesex and Somerset counties as well as a child from Richmond, Va., who swallowed a toxic substance while traveling with his parents on the New Jersey Turnpike.

Members of the newly-formed River Edge unit have named their council the Msgr. Eugene S. Burke Council. The Supreme Council in New Haven, Conn., has accepted the new council as No. 5015.

Msgr. Burke attended Seton Hall Prep and College, and after theology at the North American College in Rome, was ordained on June 10, 1911.

He was assistant pastor for two years at St. Aloysius, Jersey City, followed by a six-year stint as a Navy chaplain. In 1919 he was appointed vice rector of the North American College in Rome, and in 1925 became rector.

He returned to this country in 1935 and was appointed pastor of Holy Trinity, Hackensack. He remained in this post until his death on Sept. 2, 1951. At the same time he held a number of diocesan positions.

Union Group Told Automation Primarily a Human Problem

NEW YORK — If automation won't necessarily help men attain heaven, neither will it make it harder for them to get there, as some writers have insisted.

So said Rev. Joseph F. Buckley of the Brooklyn diocesan Social Action Department in an address at the 14th annual convention of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists.

"In God's plan we use the things of this world to attain salvation," he said, and automation will be a good or an evil "depending on how men use it. Since men are the key," he added "automation is ... not so much an economic, social or organizational problem as it is a human problem."

KEYNOTE speaker at the convention was John Dillon, education director for the United Auto Workers' New York-New England region, who pleaded for establishment of the industry council plan proposed by Pope Pius XI in his encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno."

Discussing automation, he said automation itself was not the difficulty but the problem was whether there would be leaders trained to handle the disruptions that inevitably would occur.

Another speaker, Louis F.

Buckley, regional director of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, told the delegates they should promote increased training and educational opportunities for youth. "In tomorrow's world," he said, "only the skilled will find the path smooth. The uneducated will not be able to design, install, service or operate the machinery of the future."

DR. VITTORIO VACCARI secretary general of the Christian Union of Employers and Managers of Italy, gave the opinion that installation of automatic devices would not create mass unemployment because their tremendous cost would work against all but a gradual changeover to automation.

Solutions to the economic problems of automation do not lie in refusing to accept technological development which can benefit the whole community in terms of lower costs, better quality and quantity and greater safety in working conditions, he said.

At the same time, he said, management must create new patterns of cooperative behavior in solving social problems, exhibiting "a readiness to accept" moral obligations.

Delegates re-elected Frank Andolina of Brooklyn as national director of the association.

Civil Defense Given Boost

COVINGTON, Ky. — Bishop Richard H. Ackerman, C.S.S., of Covington has issued a pastoral letter to awaken interest in the civil defense program. He did so after conferring with civil defense officials.

Explaining his pastoral and his action in designating July 17 as Civil Defense Sunday, he said "the Church is expected to espouse every good and worthy cause and to promote wherever possible the commonwealth of the citizenry."

"ONE MUST NOT forget how suddenly war came upon us in 1941," the Bishop said. "War may never come again, yet it is wise men who stand ready for it, should it come."

He pointed out also that communism is "dedicated to world conquest" and said that "if we are to endure as a nation of free men, then we must readily accept the responsibilities and the realities of the nuclear age. One of these is total defense."

Father Doherty Returns Home From Louvain

SCOTCH PLAINS — Rev. John M. Doherty, O.S.M., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Doherty, will offer his first solemn Mass in the U.S. July 17 at noon in St. Bartholomew the Apostle Church.

Father Doherty was ordained in the Order of Servants of Mary last Dec. 19 at Louvain, Belgium, and has been completing his theological studies there since that time. He was scheduled to arrive in New York by boat July 13.

Ministers of his first Mass here will be Rev. Victor Grabian, O.S.M., deacon; Rev. James Flynn, subdeacon; and Msgr. John Cain, archpriest. Rev. Patrick MacNamara, O.S.M., will give the sermon.

A family dinner will follow the Mass; a reception will be held in the parish hall at 5 p.m.

Holy Hour Listed

By Third Order BOGOTA — St. Joseph's Chapter, Third Order of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, will sponsor a Holy Hour in St. Joseph's Church here at 2 p.m. July 17, to mark the Feast of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel July 16.

The devotions will be conducted by Rev. Conan Hartke, O. Carm., who will also preach the sermon. They will consist of recitation of the Rosary, a procession, distribution of scapulars and Benediction.

$500,000 Loan Made by Sokol

PASSAIC — Two major projects will be undertaken by the Franciscan Fathers of the Commissariat of the Most Holy Saviour with the help of the Slovak Catholic Sokol whose national headquarters is located here.

It was announced this week that the Sokol has issued a loan of more than $500,000 to the Commissariat. The loan is for construction of a combination chapel, monastery and men's retreat building in Easton, Pa., and a chapel and monastery edifice designed as an addition to a future seminary in Columbiana near Youngstown, Ohio.

ADORATION is the principal purpose of prayer.

CYO Camp Winners Couldn't Believe They Won!

By June Dwyer
Two little boys — one from Hackensack and one from Newark—had the same thing to say: "I can't believe it!" They were the lucky winners of the Camp Christ the King contest which is sponsored by the Young Advocate Club through the generosity of the Archdiocesan CYO.

The boys — Floyd Stevens, 434 Heath Pl., Hackensack, and Gerard Miller, 73 North Hawthorne Lane, Newark—will each spend the month of August at Camp Christ the King, Blairstown.

FLOYD was the first to hear the good news. He didn't quite believe it, however, until he had a visitor from The Advocate and until his picture had been taken.

A third grader at Our Lady Queen of Peace, Maywood, Floyd was taught by Mrs. Ryan. He loves school and managed to get an almost perfect report card with excellent in every subject but one, which was rated as very good.

If Floyd is a judge of his own future he will be a priest when he grows up.

Floyd has two sisters: Mary Ann, who is at the Filippini Sisters camp in New England, and tiny Felicia, who doesn't like the idea of losing her big brother at all. Floyd also claims an Irish mother right from the shores of Erin and a father whose ancestors were among our country's first leaders.

On his list of "musts" to do at camp are baseball ("my favorite sport"), swimming and exploring. Floyd's dreams of camp were built by his father: "My father has told me the fun he had when he was a boy my age at camp, sitting around the fire and singing songs and hearing stories told by the counselors."

GERARD Miller received his good news when a visitor from

The Advocate appeared at his front door. It took a few minutes to convince Gerard and his mother that he really had won the contest and that the CYO was really going to send him to camp for a whole month.

"I've been praying every day," said Gerard, "but I didn't think it would ever happen to me." Then Gerard told us how he had rewritten his entry about 10 times to make sure he had spelled everything correctly and told us exactly why he wanted to go to camp.

Gerard is an only child who wants to be an artist when he grows up. He has been painting since he was 4 years old, and now at 10 finds it is his favorite hobby.

In school, Gerard is in the fourth grade and was taught by Sister Donna at St. Francis Xavier, Newark. His favorite subject is math, which he says will help him a great deal with his art.

An only child, who lives in a crowded section of the city, Gerard wants to get out in the country where "I could be with other children and play with them."

HOBBIES: Gerard (top) will be taking his art supplies along for a chance to draw the great outdoors. Floyd isn't going to have such an easy time getting his mit away from sister, Felicia, who thinks it's bad enough that her favorite playmate is leaving her.

GREAT NEWS: Gerard (top) and Floyd headed straight for the phones to spread the good news to family and friends. A phone call to each other gave the boys a pal to go to camp with too.

Lives of the Saints

A Saint's Sister

Those boys and girls who have the honor of having a priest in the family know the responsibility of having a priest for a brother. They know that they must try to be worthy of the honor.

But how would you feel if you were the brother of a priest who became a Bishop and then became a saint. Many of us will have saints for brothers and sisters — for if they go to heaven they are saints—but very few of us will have the Church name our brothers or sisters a saint.

OUR SAINT this week is a woman who was the sister of the great St. Ambrose of Milan and a woman who became a saint herself. She is St. Marcellina who lived about 350 years after Christ died.

Marcellina was in charge of her two brothers, Ambrose and Satyrus. The father was prefect of the Gauls and took his family to Rome where he worked and lived. The boys were taught to follow the true virtue and to avoid any false appearance. Marcellina worked hard at her job and endeared the spirit of love of God in her soul as well as in the souls of the boys.

WHEN AMBROSE and Satyrus could care for themselves, Marcellina renounced the world and took the veil of a virgin from the hands of Pope Liberius in St. Peter's Basilica. St. Ambrose dedicated all of his writings on the glory of the virgins to his sister and referred to her as: "... a holy sister, worshipful for her innocence, equally so for her uprightness, and no less so for her kindness to others."

Marcellina lived quietly and stayed close to God. She fasted every day till evening and spent the greater part of each day and night in prayer and spiritual reading. As she became older, St. Ambrose told her to give up her long hours of fasting and to pray more instead.

MARCELLINA stayed close to her brothers. She often visited Ambrose, who was Bishop of Milan, talking to him and giving him advice on how to help the young women who had given their lives to the Church.

We know that Marcellina lived longer than St. Ambrose but we are not sure of the exact date of her death. We honor this saint July 17.

Altar Boys

TAICHUNG — Becoming an altar boy is a family affair on Formosa.

Rev. Lawrence J. Connors, reports that when a lad in his parish studies his Latin prayers the entire family usually learns how to serve Mass.

Then, during Mass, the dutiful parents sit right in the front row to coach their son on the proper execution of the rubrics. "The result," says the young Maryknoller, "is a Church echoing with 'Psat ... the book! Change the book!' and 'Go on, ring it! Ring the bell!' accompanied by the waving arms and nervous gestures of the proud, but frantic, parents."

Summer Suggestions

HEADQUARTERS — Some of the Young Advocates were telling us that they received presents the last day of school from their teachers. The presents were little cards with a picture of Our Lady of Fatima on the front and a prayer to Our Lady on the back.

On the inside of the prayer-cards are 10 reminders for boys and girls during the summer. We are passing them on to the rest of the Young Advocates.

- "1. Say your morning and evening prayers every day.
- "2. Do not do anything you are ashamed to have Mother and Dad know about.
- "3. Go to Mass every Sunday; Confession and Holy Communion at least every two weeks.
- "4. Be modest and respectful in your dress, especially when visiting the Blessed Sacrament.
- "5. Treat others as you would like to be treated.
- "6. Aug. 15 is a holy day of obligation, be sure you go to Mass.
- "7. Go to Mass on first Fridays.
- "8. Always tell your parents where you are going, with whom, and at what time you shall return.
- "9. Cross streets only at intersections where there is a light or traffic officer.
- "10. Wait at least one hour after eating before entering the water. Always swim with a companion and stay close to shore."

Build New Community Near Kendall Park

FRANKLIN PARK (PFS) — This weekend, a new home development opens up next door to one of the best-known young communities in the metropolitan area. The new group of homes is called Greenbrook at Kendall Park. The neighbor, Kendall Park, attracted more than 1,200 home-buyers to complete one of the largest home-building programs in just four years.

Much of Kendall Park's success has been attributed to its creation and fulfillment of an ambitious community plan. These modern community facilities now also become features of Greenbrook.

In addition to a ready-made community, Greenbrook is introducing the lowest priced ranch of its size in the area. It is a three-bedroom home called the Surrey that is offered complete with attached garage for $14,990.

Visitors to the Greenwood opening will be shown how the brand-new and the newly-completed communities will benefit each other. The builders of Greenbrook believe it is an important advantage to new home-buyers to have the assurance of a desirable, settled, modern environment instead of having to break-in a completely new area or live in third-choice locations of old established areas.

The idea of branching out from a fully developed and comparatively young community provides this advantage.

The homes at Foxwood are big homes, as befits a community in the prestige area between Bound Brook and New Brunswick. Their rich contemporary designs abound in such exciting features and luxuries as a 20-foot master bedroom suite with its own huge dressing room, walk-in closet, and private bath . . . recreation rooms 19 feet long and over . . . family rooms with sliding glass doors . . . 3 and 4 bedrooms . . . 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 baths. You would expect to pay thousands of dollars more for houses of this design and quality, yet they're all priced under $20,000!

All this is yours in a wonderfully central location. Foxwood is just 2 miles from the express Penn R.R. station in New Brunswick. Minutes away are parks and golf courses, shopping centers and super-highways, and some of New Jersey's finest schools. There is even a 12-acre school site in the center of Foxwood. You'll have every city convenience—city utilities and sewers, sidewalks and curbs—plus safety—first winding streets to protect your children. See beautiful, nearby Foxwood today!

AA Parley Hears Msgr. Dougherty

LONG BEACH, Calif.—Clergymen can assist in rehabilitating alcoholics by helping them to understand the spiritual life, Msgr. John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University, said here.

Speaking at the 25th International Alcoholics Anonymous convention, Msgr. Dougherty said "we must help the alcoholic grow in terms of spiritual life and achievement and point out the common spiritual problems he shares with others."

While AA is not a religion—its purpose being simply to help people stop drinking—work with AA has led him to believe that certain spiritual values should be emphasized, among them the concept of God, he said. Often, he declared, a "theological adjustment or correction" is needed by alcoholics.

Native Vocations Seen as Needed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa—Non-white vocations are needed "quickly and in numbers," the Bishops of South Africa have been told by Rev. Oswin Magrath, O.P., rector of the South African seminary for non-whites.

In a report to the Bishops, Father Magrath noted that segregated seminaries are "fundamentally in conflict with the nature of the Church." However, he said, they are necessary because of South Africa's strict segregation laws.

Speaking of vocations among non-whites, he said the greatest obstacle is lack of education. He saw the problem becoming even more serious if courses prescribed for Negro schools by the government prove "an insufficient preparation for starting philosophy and theology." However, he warned against a lowering of seminary entrance requirements.

Father Magrath criticized some white clergymen for their attitude toward Negro vocations. He said:

"There are very many who, out of zeal for the efficiency of the Church and its work, cannot see their way to relinquishing control into non-European hands, looking only to the loss of efficiency, and overlooking the much deeper contribution that the local clergy can give to the Church's real life."

Superiors Elect Dayton Priest

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (NC)—Very Rev. John E. Byrne, C.P.P.S., of Dayton, Ohio, was elected president of the Conference of Major Superiors of Institutes of Men of the U.S. at its annual meeting here.

Father Byrne, American Provincial of the Society of the Precious Blood, succeeded Very Rev. Celsus Wheeler, O.F.M., Provincial of the Order of Friars Minor, New York. Father Wheeler headed the conference since its founding in 1957.

The meeting, held at St. John's University, was highlighted by a three-day workshop on mental health. This included lectures and seminars to acquaint the 65 major superiors present with the services of psychology and psychiatry and its effective use in the apostolic endeavors of the Church.

St. Mary's Opens Poison Center

PASSAIC — St. Mary's Hospital here has opened a Poison Control and Information Center after receiving formal approval from the New Jersey State Department of Health.

A comprehensive poison center will be equipped to handle only incoming calls on a 24-hour-a-day basis. An active committee will man the center.

HOSPITAL spokesmen point to the fact that in today's average home there are almost 50 potentially dangerous preparations, many of them within reach of children. Most poisoning cases, they explain, involve tots under five years of age. For that reason, the Poison Control and Information Center here will be under the supervision of the hospital's pediatric department.

Dr. Irving Okin of Passaic is chairman of the administrative committee which developed the poison center at St. Mary's.

The committee also includes a representative of the hospital medical staff, members of the pharmacy department, and a member of the Passaic County Pharmaceutical Association. The center is located in St. Mary's emergency department.

Guild Speech Center Gets Federal Grant

NEWARK — A $5,000 grant-in-aid has been made to the Mt. Carmel Guild Hearing and Speech Center in Jersey City by the Federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation through the service of the New Jersey Rehabilitation Commission.

The grant, announced this week by Msgr. Joseph A. Dooling, Mt. Carmel Guild director, was given for the purchase of electronic equipment which will be used to evaluate hearing problems and for research.

In approving the grant Beatrice Holderman, commission director, said that "the Guild's hearing and speech center is playing an important role in Hudson County and the Rehabilitation Commission is anxious to assist in extending its services to a greater number of people."

between the Guild and the Rehabilitation Commission. The Guild has been working closely with the commission in its training and placement center which prepares handicapped girls over 16 for gainful employment.

The center, which was dedicated last April at St. Francis Hospital, has already evaluated almost every type of hearing and speech disorder among 33 cases during the first two months. Its services include: hearing evaluation, therapy, consultation, information and counseling, parent conferences, speech evaluation, speech therapy and lip reading.

The center is the first of its kind in Hudson County and is working closely with educators and doctors as well as rehabilitation counselors.

St. Elizabeth's to Break Ground For Residence, School of Nursing

ELIZABETH—Ground for the new Educational Center and School of Nursing Residence at St. Elizabeth's Hospital will be broken by Archbishop Boland at 10:30 a.m. July 23, it has been announced by Sister Ellen Patricia, administrator. The Archbishop will also speak at the ceremony.

The new structure represents a major advance in the continuing development program at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The first unit, a heating and power plant was completed in 1957.

THE HOSPITAL is now in the process of raising funds for a new bed wing to cost $3.9 million. If the hospital can raise 65% of the estimated construction costs it will receive a federal grant of $790,722.

The Sisters of Charity are providing funds for construction of the educational facilities and the interns' residence. The dormitory facilities will be financed through a federal loan of $500,000 from the Community Facilities Administration, granted on a 40-year basis.

The combination residence and School of Nursing will include classrooms, laboratory and lecture facilities, a large assembly room and several recreational areas.

In addition there will be offices for the administrative and instruction staff of the School of Nursing.

The students' bedrooms are planned for double occupancy. The interns' residence will be separated from the remainder of the building and will have its own entrance.

The drive exceeded the announced goal of $100,000 for funds to help pay for the erection of a new church, school and auditorium.

THE CAMPAIGN was inaugurated on June 27 at ceremonies at which Archbishop Boland presided. Adrian M. Foley Jr. was general chairman with Francis T. DeCoster, Alfred A. Hilton and John A.
