5.5 Million in Catholic Schools

WASHINGTON — About 3.1 million students were enrolled in Catholic schools during the academic year 1960-61, according to the new report of the National Catholic Educational Association.

The highest enrollment, 1.2 million, was in elementary schools. The second highest was in private secondary schools, accounting for 569,000 students. The third highest was in parochial secondary schools, with 425,000 students.

The report, "Catholic School Reports, Fall 1961," was published by the NCEA, 4600 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C.

The report also included data on the number of teachers, courses offered, and other information about Catholic education in the United States.

The report was compiled from information obtained through a questionnaire sent to all Catholic schools in the country. The questionnaire was returned by 1,598 schools, representing 96 percent of the total enrollment.

The report noted that the number of students in Catholic schools had increased steadily for many years, reaching a peak in 1958-59. Since then, there has been a slight decline in enrollment, due to factors such as a decrease in the number of children of school age and a shift in the emphasis of education from parochial to public schools.

However, the report also noted that the quality of Catholic education was improving, with an increase in the number of teachers with higher degrees and a greater emphasis on the teaching of modern languages and sciences.

The report concluded that Catholic education continued to play a vital role in American society, providing a constructive influence on the lives of its students.

Rights of Movie Viewers Overlooked by Producers

By William H. Brinkley

With a rash of biographies making their way to the movie screens, it seems that the average moviegoer is presented with more and more decisions to make. At the same time, it seems that the average movie producer is presented with fewer and fewer decisions to make. At one time, it was only a matter of deciding whether or not to make a movie. Now, it seems that the average movie producer is faced with the decision of whether or not to make a movie. It is no longer a matter of deciding whether or not to make a movie. It is now a matter of deciding whether or not to make a movie. It is now a matter of deciding whether or not to make a movie. It is now a matter of deciding whether or not to make a movie.

Those who pay for entertainment are entitled to some degree of protection. We all have the right to expect film producers to do their best to protect their audiences. And we all have the right to expect film producers to do their best to protect their audiences. And we all have the right to expect film producers to do their best to protect their audiences. And we all have the right to expect film producers to do their best to protect their audiences. And we all have the right to expect film producers to do their best to protect their audiences.

Cuban Pastoral

In 1960 it was well known that the government of Cuba had been established under the leadership of Fidel Castro. The new government made it clear that it intended to transform Cuba into a socialist state. The Cuban government nationalized all foreign-owned assets, including land, factories, and businesses. It also nationalized the banks, railways, and other essential services.

The government was determined to eradicate poverty and inequality. It introduced a land reform program that redistributed land to the peasantry. It also implemented a program of social welfare that provided free health care, education, and housing to all citizens.

The government also nationalized the Cuban economy, which led to a decline in foreign investment. This, in turn, led to a decrease in Cuba's foreign trade and a decline in its economy. The government was able to reduce the country's dependence on foreign capital, but it also led to a decline in the country's standard of living.

American Catholics

The Catholic Church in Cuba is a significant presence in the country. It has a long history in Cuba and has a large number of members. The Church has been involved in social and political issues in the country.

The Cuban government has been critical of the Catholic Church, accusing it of being too closely allied with the United States. This has led to tensions between the government and the Church. The Church has been accused of supporting the opposition to the government, and the government has been accused of censoring the Church's publications.

Birth Control by Prescription

The Catholic Church has traditionally opposed the use of contraceptives, including birth control pills. This has led to a conflict between the Church and the government, which has supported the use of birth control.

The government has passed laws that require doctors to provide birth control pills to women, even if they are not married. This has led to a conflict between the government and the Church, which has opposed the law.

The government has also supported the use of condoms, which are considered to be less effective than birth control pills. The Church has opposed the use of condoms, arguing that they are morally questionable.

Birth Control in Cuba

The government of Cuba has made efforts to control the population growth of the country. It has imposed strict limits on family size, and it has encouraged women to use birth control. The government has also supported the use of sterilization, which is widely practiced in Cuba.

The government has also supported the use of abortion, which is legal in Cuba. The government has made it easier for women to access abortion services, and it has also made it easier for women to decide whether or not to have children.
Confused Teenagers Inquire: Is 'Petting' a Mortal Sin?

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.

A group of us were discussing teenage moral problems the other night, and I was surprised to hear that what conflicting opinions were expressed, most of the group held that teenagers who engaged in kissing or petting had in fact committed a sin against the law of God. It was suggested that we re-examine our position on this matter and, if so, why? Are such practices permissible for engaged couples? Frankly, we’ve quite confused.

Group discussion ensued.

Lovers of Poverty, Sacrifice

By Father Pothier, S.J.

There are two practices that are considered to be sacrificial in nature: marriage and poverty. The primary purpose of marriage is to enter into a lifelong commitment to another person, while the primary purpose of poverty is to enter into a lifelong commitment to God. Both of these practices require the same dedication and sacrifice, in that they involve giving up certain worldly possessions or conveniences in order to live a life of greater spiritual growth.

The sin of poverty or the sin of marriage is a sin of omission, not a sin of commission. The sin is committed by failing to live up to the obligations of a Christian life, rather than by actually performing the act of marriage or poverty.

Vacation Indulgences

Members of the Apostolic Indulgences Committee of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops have granted indulgences for the 2018 summer vacation season. The indulgences are available to those who participate in approved activities, such as visiting national parks or attending religious retreats.

100 indulgences may be gained for each day of the vacation, and the indulgences can be used to cover the cost of future sins or to cover the cost of sins committed by others.

Letters to the Editor

No Nobody Endorsed Birth Control

It is difficult to understand how a person could have been so blind as to overlook the fact that the Church, not being a business, does not need to be run like a business. It is also difficult to understand how a person could have overlooked the fact that the Church is not a political organization, but a religious one, and that it is not the Church’s job to dictate to the people of the world how they should live their lives.

Horrified Notes Seen Unrealistic

The horror of the fact that the Church is not a political organization is that it is not responsible for the lives of its members. The Church is responsible for the lives of its members only to the extent that they are in accordance with the teachings of the Church. If a person disagrees with the teachings of the Church, then that person is not responsible for the lives of the Church.

Kennedy Meant 'Give to Caesar'

As a Catholic and not as a political entity, the Church is not bound by the laws of the state. It is not necessary for the Church to obey the laws of the state, and it is not possible for the Church to obey the laws of the state.

Parents Get a Hand On TV for Children

LONDON — A Catholic television code for children was welcomed as hot news by British communications weeks two years after its publication. After a year without a code, the sane British Catholic television

body — the British Council — released its children's television code, following a deal reached with the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Both sides said they hoped the code would be the first of a series. The BCTC is now asking

Catholics to send in their programmes for a test.

A draft of the code was welcomed by the Vatican television team, which had been urging a code for some time. The Vatican team said the code would be a help to non-Catholic parents.

One of the main ideas of the code is to prevent the young viewer from being shown the
'violence' of war and crime.

The code is not obligatory on the BBC, which has to decide whether it wants to follow the code. The BBC will now dis-guish children's programmes on its own television channel with the words "Children's Programmes" at the beginning of the broadcast.

A French Catholic television code has already been
