A Second Thought On the Union Shop

By Magr. George G. Higgins

Director, Social Action Department, N.C.W.C.

The Catholic Union Shop is intended to be an association for any men who are not Catholics and who do not belong to any other religious organization. The union shop is intended to be a place where the Catholic can go to find out about Catholicism and to be introduced to the Catholic Church.

But is there any point to the Catholic Union Shop? The answer to this question depends upon one's point of view. From a Catholic's point of view, the Catholic Union Shop is a valuable resource. It provides a place where Catholics can go to learn about their faith and to find support from other Catholics.

On the other hand, from a non-Catholic's point of view, the Catholic Union Shop may be seen as a way for Catholics to try to convert non-Catholics. This is not necessarily a bad thing, but it is important to consider whether this is the best way to go about it.

In conclusion, the Catholic Union Shop can be a valuable resource for Catholics, but it is important to consider whether this is the best way to go about trying to convert non-Catholics.

Parents Should Help Parochial Schools

Editor:

I have been following the letters and controversial article in your paper regarding a statement made by Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J., concerning the regulation of the number of children in a family. It seems that whole story revolves around the cost of parochial schools. That is, someone has heard that the cost per student is too high and that parents should do their part by limiting the size of their families. It seems that Rev. Thomas is not the only one who has not heard the whole story.

Are you aware of the numbers of children that are expected to be born in our community next year? Well, you may not be aware of the numbers of children that are expected to be born in our community next year, but I am. There are approximately 400 children who are expected to be born in our community next year. This is according to the latest estimates made by the Department of Public Health. These estimates are based on the number of children born last year and the number of births expected this year.

Now all we have to do is to figure out how much we can afford to pay for each of these children. This is where the controversy begins.

Kennedy Rooter Also Surprised

Editor:

Last night I received an e-mail from Mr. Kennedy Rooter, who is a member of the Board of Education. He expressed his surprise at the statements made by Rev. Thomas. He said, "I don't see how anyone can make such a statement without the facts. It seems to me that the real issue is the cost of education, not the number of children in a family."

Tynan, some of the schools.

There is no question that parents should make an effort to keep their children's costs as low as possible. However, it is not fair to blame parents for the high cost of education when the real issue is the cost of education.

Indeed, parents should be encouraged to make wise decisions regarding their children's education. However, it is not their fault if the cost of education continues to rise.

Philosophers have argued for centuries that the best way to ensure a good education is to have a large family. This is because having a large family allows parents to spread the cost of education over more children.

In conclusion, it is not fair to blame parents for the high cost of education. The real issue is the cost of education. Parents should be encouraged to make wise decisions regarding their children's education, but it is not their fault if the cost of education continues to rise.
Note Importance of Native Clergy on the Missions

The native clergy is important. In times of generations, such as the Greek Orthodox, the native clergy could have their own influence on the community. If the native clergy has their own influence, they can gain more respect from the people. A native clergy can be a good leader for the community.

Every country is in need of its own clergy who would understand their own people and, therefore, would be better able to make the Church's teaching understood.

The native clergy better understands the people of his own country; whereas a foreign clergy could never be in the same position as the native one.

A foreign clergy can never say that he has no knowledge of the language and tradition of the people. He must always be learning, and that means he is never comfortable.

The native clergy must be extremely careful to maintain his position of respect. He must be very cautious with the people. He must constantly think of the Church and not of himself. He must be more than a priest; he must be the leader of the community.

Mission, Nuns, Building Funds

Building Funds for missions are very important. They provide the financial support that is necessary to maintain the missions.

For the continued support of the Church, we must do our best to encourage the people to contribute to the building funds.

NEW YORK (N.Y.) — The U.S. Catholic population is growing twice as fast as the general population, a sociological study reported.

Donald N. Barrett of Notre Dame University said his figures indicated that the U.S. Catholic population may reach more than 75 million in less than 50 years.

The study, based on the 1960 U.S. Census, indicates that the Catholic population is growing at a rate of 200,000 a year.

ey will be a very serious problem for the Church in the future.

Hungary Visit a Nightmare

By Floyd Anderson

FREDERICK, Md. - The first snow of the season had covered the ground by the time I arrived on the train yesterday afternoon. The wind was howling, and there was a cold, biting chill in the air. I had expected this, of course, but I was still unprepared for the harsh reality of Hungary's current situation.

The Hungarian government is in a state of total collapse, with civil unrest spreading throughout the country. The streets are filled with demonstrators calling for democracy and freedom. The police have been firing on peaceful protesters, and there are reports of widespread human rights abuses.

I spoke with a number of people who had been living in Hungary for many years. They told me that the situation has deteriorated rapidly in recent weeks. The government has become increasingly repressive, and the economy is in a shambles. People are struggling to make ends meet, and there is widespread frustration and anger.

In the face of such hardship, I was touched by the resilience of the Hungarian people. Despite the challenges they face, they continue to resist and fight for their rights. I was grateful to be able to offer some comfort and support to those I met, and I hope that my presence will help to inspire hope for the future.

President Eisenhower Says
"Thank You' For 'Thank You'" JERSEY CITY - A Hey deejay director of discs who used to work for the president for his leadership received a thank-you call from him. Sister Mary Ambrose, director of St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing, was sent up at the broadcast station that President Eisenhower was on the next trip down. She did the job from the NBC studio in the 1930s and said she was a bit dazed by the President's call.

IN HER LETTER was about two weeks ago, Sister Ambrose said that his address would not be forgiven by the people of America and said that he would bring an end to war.

Sister Ambrose said out of her way that his address was a philosophers' dream.

Evolution Noted in Russian Attitude at Olympic Games

The Way It Is in Rome

By MJ CLEARY

ROMA—Russian athletes at the Olympic Village here have received a warm welcome from other participants and from Russians themselves. Some of the athletes have been irked by the spirit of anti-communism that surrounds them. Others have shown no signs of political agitprop, even when they have been reminded of the anti-communism here.

For instance, the Russian athletes who are staying at the athletes' village have been shown a number of anti-communist posters. Some have been told that they are not welcome at the games because they represent a political threat. Others have been told that they are not welcome because they are not patriotic enough.

Despite this, the Russian athletes have shown little interest in political discussions. Many have been seen walking around the village, enjoying the Olympic festivities. Some have been seen talking to other athletes, making new friends, and trying to understand the language of the game.

It is clear that the Russian athletes are enjoying themselves. They are enjoying the games, the competition, and the opportunity to meet other athletes from around the world. They are not worried about political issues, and they are not interested in politics.

This is a welcome change from previous Olympic Games, where the Russian athletes have been seen as a political threat. The Russian athletes this year are showing that they are not just athletes, but also people who enjoy the Olympic experience.

This is a welcome change from previous Olympic Games, where the Russian athletes have been seen as a political threat. The Russian athletes this year are showing that they are not just athletes, but also people who enjoy the Olympic experience.
St. Francis Tops Title On Pecora's Twin Win

NEWARK — Richie Pecora played "iron man" in the Essex County CYO Intermediate Baseball League on Sunday and got away with it, thanks to the efforts of a double-hitter for St. Francis Xavier, Newark.

The double victory came as a result of a 5-1 win over Bishop Loughlin in the first and a 14-1 rout of St. Francis on the second.

For the win, Pecora picked up both the hits and the losses for his efforts. The win stretched his record to 12-2, and he could have been 14-2 with a win over Loughlin.

The loss was the second of the year for Pecora, who is 2-2 in those games.

ST. FRANCIS, however, will not be able to win the title, as it finished second in the league despite the win over Loughlin.

The team is still in the hunt for a shot at the championship and will face Bishop Loughlin again on the final day of the season.

The first game was played on a beautiful day with a high of 90 degrees.

The second game was played in a driving rain, but the team stuck it out and won by a score of 14-1.

Correction:

The record for Pecora is 12-2, not 11-2 as previously reported.

Fallon, a former St. Francis Xavier student, was among the participants in the event.

 Archbishop to Bless St. Mary’s Addition

RUTHERFORD — The dedication of St. Mary’s Grammar School will be officially completed Sept. 10, when Archbishop Tedeschini will officiate at the ceremonies. This will be the final step in what has been a project for the reconstruction of the grammar school block.

The old small building, which has been a part of the grammar school for over 20 years, is to be replaced by a one-story building. The new building is a part of the school’s master plan for the future.

The structure has been built to meet the needs of the growing student population. The new building will provide additional classroom space, as well as a modernized facility for the school’s growing program.

The dedication will take place at 7 p.m., and is open to the public. Archbishop Tedeschini will preside over the ceremony, which will include prayers and a blessing of the new building.

The dedication of St. Mary’s Grammar School is a significant moment for the Rutherford community. The new building is expected to provide a safer and more comfortable learning environment for the students.

The Rutherford Board of Education is grateful to the community for their support in making this project a reality. The board is confident that the new building will meet the needs of the school for many years to come.
