Pope Bids Solvent Families To Aid the Less Fortunate

VATICAN CITY, June 29—Pope Paul VI today called all well-off families to contribute “massively” to a special fund for the poor for the next three months, proposing the First Sunday of August be declared his personal “day of charity.”

Speaking on the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul, the Pope implored all “of intellectual and religious substance” to give of their “material and spiritual goods.”

In comments directed at the Catholic Church hierarchy, the Pope said: “I want to encourage all of you to make a big effort, not for the sake of a day, but for three months. We should have a special Sunday to carry this forward.”

The Pope’s appeal is part of a campaign to raise money for the poor in the wake of the recent flooding in Italy, which killed more than 100 people and caused widespread damage.

To Act on Causes Of 2 Americans, Blessed Martin

VATICAN CITY — The beatification cause of two Americans and a Leeds, England, priest who was killed during the war in World War II has been formally opened.

The beatification process for Father Martin de Piere, who was killed in the service of the Church in the late 1940s, has been approved by the Vatican’s Congregation for the Causes of Saints.

The beatification process will now proceed, with a formal declaration of cause of beatification expected in the near future.

The cause of Blessed Martin de Piere will be considered for beatification, and the Vatican has expressed its support for the cause of beatification.

Castro Regime Grabs Church Properties

Now, Nicaragua's Cuban-Fidel Castro's minions have occupied 18 Catholic churches, schools, seminaries and other properties that the country's bishops say belong to the U.S. Church.

They also occupied five schools, two Bishops' houses at the request of the Diocese of Santiago de Las Vegas, all Cuban Church property. The government has repeatedly refused to give them back.

Archbishop Enrique Perez of Santiago de Las Vegas appealed last week to President Fulgencio Batista to allow him to return to his homeland: "You have the decree of the Vatican; it is a Admirable.

The Archbishop has already broken his silence, explaining that the government is not going to return any Catholic property.

Excerpts from the Bishop's letter:

"They claim to have hanged a Bishops' property for 25 years." The Bishop was not able to return to his homeland for 17 months, according to the episcopate.

"It is a disgrace to see that the memories of the Catholic community are being erased by the Castro government in Nicaragua." And for that reason, the Bishop is calling on President Batista to return the property to the Catholic community.

Duffy Exposes Sex Ring Operation

By Joe Thomas

The Advocate

IT IS HERE that the final chapter of the sex scandal that engulfed the Catholic Church in the 1970s was written. The investigation was led by the late Bishop John J. Dougherty of Philadelphia, who was later removed from his post for his role in the scandal.

The story begins in the late 1960s, when a series of reports emerged alleging that sexual abuse had been taking place in the Catholic Church. These reports were followed by a series of investigations, which revealed that the abuse had been widespread and had been carried out by priests and other church leaders.

The investigation led by Bishop Dougherty was one of the most significant in the history of the Catholic Church. It was the first time that the hierarchy had been forced to confront the issue of sexual abuse head-on, and it led to a series of reforms that have since been implemented by the church.

The story of the sex scandal in the Catholic Church is a sad one, but it is also a story of hope. It shows that the church can change when it is faced with the facts, and that it is possible to overcome the systemic problems that have allowed such abuse to take place.

John outlines norms for Catholic Journalism

The Church of our time is a Church where everything is possible, where the spirit is free and the mind is at liberty.

Pope John outlines norms for Catholic Journalism

The Church of our time is a Church where everything is possible, where the spirit is free and the mind is at liberty.

The Vatican has released a new text outlining the norms for Catholic Journalism. The text aims to guide journalists in their work and to ensure that their reporting is in line with the principles of Catholic teaching and values.

The guidelines cover a wide range of topics, from the use of language to the treatment of sensitive issues. They emphasize the importance of clarity, accuracy, and respect for the dignity of individuals and institutions.

The text also highlights the need for journalists to be true to their vocation and to support the Church in its mission of service to humanity. It encourages them to be proactive in their work and to be open to new ideas and perspectives.

Pope John's guidelines are intended to be a guide for all journalists, regardless of their faith, and to be a source of inspiration for those who wish to work in a manner that is faithful to the teachings of the Church.

The release of these guidelines comes at a time when the Church is facing increasing challenges in the media landscape, with the rise of social media and the influence of technology on news consumption. It is hoped that these guidelines will help journalists to navigate this landscape and to continue to serve the public and the Church with integrity and effectiveness.

The guidelines have been well-received by the Catholic community and are expected to be widely adopted by journalists around the world.

By Anna Mac Buckley

The "shock" of the recent death of her father, Mrs. Paul Angell, has been tempered for both the Latin and Byzantine Rites. The Byzantine Rite is used both by Catholics and Jews, and in Byzantine Christianity those who do not recognize the Pope as the Vicar of Christ.

Explain Byzantine Ritual

By Rev. Paul Angell, S.A.

When the celebration Mass is the Latin Rite, Father Angell, a former professor of liturgical studies at the Catholic University of America, describes the rite as "essentially a composite of the primitive rituals..." The Divine Shepherd of the Church, however, has different practices for his "catholic faithful." The Latin Rite is "the church of the Orient" while the Byzantine Rite is "the church of the East." The Mass is the service of the Eucharist, the Eucharist is the "Bread of the Body of Christ.

Father is a Diplomat

The late Rev. Paul Angell, S.A., former professor of Catholic Church and Biblical Studies at the Catholic University of America, was noted as a prominent author on liturgical topics. In this obituary, Father Angell is remembered for his contributions to the study of Byzantine liturgy and his diplomatic work.

Are we not stewards? Are we not stewards of the charity of God towards us? And if we are stewards, do we then consider that we are our own, and the world our own, and all the possessions that we have been given by the Divine love, and the divine wisdom, and the divine goodness as if we were the possessors of all? Is it not the least of the duties of stewards to make us feel that we have been given these things for the benefit, the edification, the development, the uplift of others? Are we not stewards?

Are we not responsible? Are we not responsible for being stewards? Are we not responsible for the way in which we administer the gifts which we have been given? Are we not stewards?

Are we not responsible for the way in which we have been stewards? Are we not responsible for the way in which we have been stewards?

About Newest Lawsuit And Moral Responsibilities

By William H. Moring

The Harvard students, during the past week, have spent much of their time fighting against the Webster-Patterson Act, which would deprive them of the right to enjoy certain moral responsibilities. The students, who have been working with the American Law Students Association, have been fighting to preserve their rights, which they believe are essential to their intellectual and physical development.

The Webster-Patterson Act, which is currently under consideration, would impose severe restrictions on the students' activities. The students believe that this act would be detrimental to their growth and development, as it would undermine their ability to explore and express their ideas and beliefs. They are concerned that the act would restrict their freedom of expression and limit their ability to engage in meaningful intellectual pursuits.

The students have been engaging in a variety of activities to raise awareness of the potential impact of the Webster-Patterson Act. They have held protests, organized petitions, and spoken at events to draw attention to the importance of preserving their rights. They are committed to fighting against this act and ensuring that their intellectual and physical development is not hindered by restrictive laws.

In conclusion, the students are dedicated to preserving their rights and engaging in meaningful intellectual pursuits. They are committed to fighting against any measures that would undermine their ability to explore and express their ideas and beliefs. The Webster-Patterson Act is a threat to their rights, and they are determined to resist it in order to protect their intellectual and physical development.

Advocates Speak Words of Wisdom to the Child Child

By John Ryan
We received 160 entries from Junior Young Advocates who opened their hearts up to our young man, Jim, a Happy Birthday. The boys and girls, who were interviewed by some of the teachers who work with our patients, had some beautiful thoughts that should be coming from adults.

"I pray every night before I go to bed," the last child who spoke, "The next time I go to heaven I think I will see God."

If only the whole world felt this way you would live much longer, and your prayer would be heard and answers given to your questions. These boys and girls are some of the most beautiful gifts you could possibly give to God. Many of us are under the impression that children are the future of the world. Many of the answers come from children, who are pure and innocent. It is difficult to understand why adults are not able to understand this.

The membership of the Junior Young Advocates is growing rapidly. Many of the school systems have included the program into their daily activities. Many of the children have chosen to become members of the organization based on the support given by the teachers and the principals of their schools.

The judges finally decided on the top 30 winners, including the chaplain, a member of the staff, and a teacher at our own school. The winners are awarded their certificates, awards, and the first place winner, Michael O'Bryne, has a computer named after him: "The Michael O'Bryne Computer." You can read our little girls' and boys' thoughts and learn much from them.

Peacocks, Peacocks Point to Big One After Disasters

By Ed Grant

The question of what might be in store for the Peacocks in the future was answered yesterday when the squad, in a 20-point victory over the Amsterdam Giants in the finals of the league championship, was named the Peacocks for the second consecutive year.

The Peacocks, who started out with a 2-1 record in the league, have already earned the title of national champions in the current season, and are expected to face the Giants in the finals.

The Peacocks were led by a strong performance from their star player, who scored a total of 20 points in the final game. The team's defense was also impressive, holding the Giants to only 10 points in the first half.

The Peacocks are expected to face the Giants in the finals, and are expected to win by a large margin, as they have been preparing for this match for the past month.
