Catholic Bishops' Relief Fund

The board of the Catholic Bishops' Relief Fund of the United States, which was established to provide aid to victims of natural disasters, trái to urge the Catholic bishops of this country to appeal to the Catholic parishes and organizations for contributions to the fund.

A letter to the priests of the Archdiocese of Chicago was published in the April 18 issue of the Catholic New World.

The letter asks the bishops to take steps to ensure that the relief fund is properly utilized and that the contributions are promptly returned to the victims of the disaster.

The fund has been established to provide immediate assistance to those who have suffered losses due to the recent hurricane in the Florida Keys and to those who have been affected by the recent floods in the Midwest.

The letter states that the relief fund is being used to provide food, clothing, medical supplies, and other necessary items to those who have been affected by the disaster.

The letter concludes by expressing gratitude to the Catholic bishops and priests for their cooperation and support in this humanitarian effort.

Pope Opens Lenten Season; Says Lay Role Under Study

VATICAN CITY — Pope John XXIII concluded his public audience at the Vatican on Wednesday, March 6, 1963, with an address to the faithful in St. Peter's Square.

In his address, the Pope emphasized the importance of the lay role in the Church.

He urged the faithful to participate actively in the liturgical, educational, and charitable activities of the Church, and to work for the advancement of Christian values in society.

The Pope also stressed the need for cooperation between the Church and the state, and for the faithful to be vigilant and to resist any form of secularism.

The Pope concluded his address by expressing his hope that the faithful will continue to support the preaching of the Gospel and the teachings of the Church, and to work for the salvation of souls.

May Broaden Bishops' Role

VIENNA — Increased recognition of the dignity of the office of bishops and greater respect paid to their rights and duties by laymen have been indicated in the jubilee year of 1960, Cardinal Koenig of Vienna, a member of the Pontifical Commission for the Orient, told an assembled audience here.

He said this would mean a recognition of the dignity not only of the bishops, but of the clergy in general, and of all those who have been conferred upon them any of the functions of the clergy.

The cardinal said that the Catholic Church in Austria is divided into two dioceses, the Diocese of Vienna and the Diocese of Styria.

In his address, the cardinal said that the bishops of the diocese of Vienna have been called to give an example of the dignity and respect paid to the clergy in the diocese.

Would Ban School Zoning Inequities

TRENTON — A bill to prevent discrimination against non-public schools in municipal zoning legislation introduced in the Assembly. The measure (Assembly Bill 238) is sponsored by Assemblyman William Music of Hudson and has been re-placed to the Education Committee. It is similar to a bill he introduced last year that was defeated in both house and Senate.

In recent years, there have been numerous controversies involving zoning of private schools in addition to public schools. The legislation would require the Mayor or Citizens Planning Board to consider educational factors in the development of zoning regulations, including such a zoning plan at least two years in advance of the passage of the ordinance. The plan would include a statement of the educational standards of the school and the methods by which these standards would be maintained. The bill would also provide for a hearing before the Mayor and Citizens Planning Board on the proposed ordinance. The ordinance would be effective for 18 months.

Son Reading Sex Magazines, Parent Wonders What to Do

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.
Austrian Professor of Sociology, Leoben, Austria

I have lately found that our 13-year-old son has been reading and exchanging sex magazines with his schoolmates. This has left us a bit to on what to do gone wrong and what should we do about it. Our son has a good Catholic education. How can we feel right about this? These magazines are so easily available that it is surprising to me how many parents and teachers are caught off guard by them. While the school authorities and teachers are aware of the existence of and having trouble with these magazines, only a few parents or parents and teachers have made any serious attempt to stop their young people and find out what they are reading. This is not because they do not care, but because they do not know how. What can parents do about it? They can try to find the answer to this question by the best means possible. They can try to get information from the best sources, such as books, articles, and other materials, and try to use this information to help their own children.

First, young people need to be made aware of the dangers of using these magazines. This can be done by the schools, by parents, and by the media. The schools can make this clear to their students by teaching them about the dangers of using these magazines. Parents can also help by making their children aware of the dangers. The media can also play a role in this by educating the public about the dangers of using these magazines.

Second, young people need to be helped to make a decision about whether or not to use these magazines. This can be done by the schools, by parents, and by the media. The schools can help by teaching their students about the dangers of using these magazines. Parents can also help by making their children aware of the dangers. The media can also play a role in this by educating the public about the dangers of using these magazines.

Third, young people need to be helped to make a decision about whether or not to use these magazines. This can be done by the schools, by parents, and by the media. The schools can help by teaching their students about the dangers of using these magazines. Parents can also help by making their children aware of the dangers. The media can also play a role in this by educating the public about the dangers of using these magazines.

In summary, the best way to deal with this problem of young people using sex magazines is to educate them about the dangers of using these magazines, to help them make a decision about whether or not to use these magazines, and to help them make a decision about whether or not to use these magazines. This can be done by the schools, by parents, and by the media. The schools can help by teaching their students about the dangers of using these magazines. Parents can also help by making their children aware of the dangers. The media can also play a role in this by educating the public about the dangers of using these magazines.

Faith and Reason

Once upon a time Paul Edwards wrote a popular book. It was called "The Creation.

We see, Paul Edwards is a man who has written a book about the creation and evolution.

The book is called "The Creation and Evolution: A Philosophical Inquiry into the Sources of Life and the Nature of the Universe." It was published in 1962 and has been highly acclaimed for its lucid and accessible presentation of complex scientific ideas.

The book's main argument is that the Bible and science are not necessarily in conflict, and that understanding both can lead to a deeper appreciation of the world we live in.

The author, Paul Edwards, was a professor of philosophy at the University of California, Berkeley, and the book was based on his doctoral dissertation.

The book has been translated into several languages and has been widely read and discussed. It has been influential in the ongoing debate about the relationship between religion and science.

Courtroom Drama About God’s Will

"Certainly vs. Cornell," a new offering at Broadcast Station, New York, is a three-sided play on God’s Will. The play examines the psychological effects of the Priest Congo’s well-staged courtroom confrontation with his strength, "the will of my God," and "the will of my God.”

The audience in the play is divided into two groups: the Group of the Priest and the Group of the.number 1 who are combined with the audience. The play is a psychological study of the human condition and the role of faith in our lives. It is a compelling drama that will leave its mark on the audience.

Moral Unification for Everyone

The play opens with a scene in a courtroom where a priest is on trial for the murder of a young man. The priest is found guilty and sentenced to death. The audience is left to ponder the question of whether or not the priest’s actions were justified.

In the final scene, the priest speaks to the audience, saying: "I have come to realize that there is a higher power at work in the world, a power that is greater than my own.

The priest goes on to say that he has learned to trust in this higher power and that he will use his life as an example to others of how faith can lead to a better understanding of the world.

Moral Unification for Adults

The play is a thought-provoking examination of the role of faith in our lives. It is a powerful drama that will leave its mark on the audience.

The play is a must-see for anyone interested in the psychology of faith and the role of religion in our society.

Prove Interest in Us, Peru Prime Minister Bids U.S.

By Floyd Anderson

Q. LIMA—The President of Peru has taken up the cudgel at his country's door with a flourish, in the attempt to get the American people interested in his nation— and the very realization that he is doing this is an indication of how little the U.S. is interested in the Latin American nation.

"We are not at the stage in our development," said President Beltran, "where we can afford to sit back and think that affairs in our country are just fine. We have to realize that we are in a very difficult position as far as our neighbors are concerned, and if we don't act fast, we may lose our position.

"We have a lot to offer the United States, but we need to be interested in our own country first. We need to be interested in our own people, and we need to be interested in the future of our country. If we don't do this, we may lose our position in the world.

INCREASOL BUT TRUE

How different things might be if we had lived in the 19th century. The idea of there being a separate Jewish community in the United States was anathema. The Jewish people were not encouraged to come to this country, and when they did, they were barred from certain occupations and denied the right to vote. These were the conditions in which the Jewish people had to live.

In his famous book, "How the Jews Came to Be Jews," Rabbi Chaim Soloveitchik recounts the history of the Jewish people in the United States and the obstacles they faced. He argues that the conditions of the 19th century were not conducive to the development of a healthy Jewish community, and that the Jewish people had to work hard to overcome the challenges they faced.

Scouts Told to Become "Apostles of Christ"

NEWARK — More than 100 Boy Scouts, recipients of Ad Altare Dei Medals, were told by Archbishop Patrick J.Walsh at Sacred Heart Cathedral, Lodi, that they would become "Apostles of Christ," if they, along with their brothers in the Catholic Church, continued to fulfill the Biblical command to spread the Gospel and bring Christ to other persons.

In addition to the recent daily and evening Masses, St. Peter, and all the church services in the United States, Archbishop Walsh explained, the Scouts may be called upon to bring Christ to other persons.

Each of you will be "sent out" to the other persons, he said, according to the Biblical command to spread the Gospel and bring Christ to other persons.

"I am going to ask you, therefore, to bring the Gospel to the other persons," he said.

At the conclusion of the Mass, the Scouts were given a medal known as the Ad Altare Dei medal, which was presented by Archbishop Walsh.

The theme of the Mass was "It is my will that where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."
