COURSE DESCRIPTION

The purpose of this course is to analyze EU current key internal and external issues and policies as well as dynamics between Northern and Southern member states. We will also cover the relationship between the EU and Russia, EU’s largest neighbor, and the relationship between the EU and the US, EU’s traditional strategic partner. Throughout the semester we will link the readings with contemporary events. Hence, you should keep informed about current events by following print or electronic sources that provide solid coverage of international news. A good source of information on the EU is EUobserver.com, Euractiv.com and the Guardian. You may also want to watch BBC. If possible you should also follow non-English media. You will get a better insight if you follow news from different countries.

More specifically, the aims of the course are to enable students:

- to develop a conceptual, and practical understanding of the internal and external EU member states’ dynamics pertaining to current issues and challenges;

- to be cognizant of the relationship of EU members and non-Union members in the exercise of various internal and external policies;

- to become familiar with academic and political debates about the workings of EU institutions and decision-making processes to comprehend the problems facing the Union at the beginning of the twenty-first century, especially the implications of enlargement for its international role in the future.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Attendance and Participation: (10%) Attendance is extremely important because the course will be interactive in nature. Participation in the class discussions is critical to student learning and to exhibit that the required material is being read. Students should read and reflect on the readings ahead of time in order for class sessions to have the most value. Students can also participate by asking questions, circulating emails, organizing study groups, exchanging writing or introducing new ideas and resources. Excessive absences may result in a failing grade.

Debates: (20%) During the semester, we will have 9 debates on the assigned topics. During debates, you will have the opportunity to discuss and debate controversial issues, that is, issues on which there is disagreement, and reasonable, strong arguments can be made on both sides.

The debates will be run using a panel format, with two or three class members adopting the pro (yes) side of an issue and two or three others, the con (no) side. Panel members on both sides will present arguments on their respective sides. Following the arguments, the discussion will be opened up for questions, comments, and criticisms from the general class. Each student will participate on a panel for one issue, selected at random at the beginning of the term. Each student on the pro and con side will present his/her arguments for 10 minutes (30 min for each team) followed by the Q & A from the class. To prepare your debate, you can use readings provided on the Blackboard or in textbooks, but you are also encouraged to conduct a research and find additional sources that can support your arguments.

Debate paper: on the day of the debate, each panelist must also provide the instructor with a short paper (maximum two pages, 12 point font, Times New Roman, double spaced) on your preparation and research for the debate. The paper will be collected at the beginning of class. The paper should address the following:

1. A summation of your position stand in the debate and the reasons for your stance
2. A description of the distribution of work within the group (who did what).
3. What you liked about the assignment and what difficulties you had with the assignment
4. A list of references consulted in the preparation for the debate (any reference style can be used, but be consistent). The reference list is Exam paper: (10%) This is a stay-at-home exam paper. On September 8th, 2014 at 5 pm, I will be sending you 3 exam questions via email based on the readings and subject matter for that day. Exam paper should be 4-6 pages long (double-spaced, font 12, Times New Roman font, 1’-margin). You will be asked to choose one out of three questions and reflect critically on it using the class readings and other sources. Make sure you use Chicago Manual reference style and please add bibliography at the end of paper. Do not describe. Try to be original and analytical in your argumentation. The papers must be submitted electronically by or at 7.10 pm on Sep 8th, 2014.

Group Research Project: (25%) Students in this class will be divided into small groups of 4-5 people. Each group will conduct a research project to explore EU role, agency and engagement in a current issue such as specific conflict, case study of application of EU environmental policy, enlargement, immigration, minorities etc. You are encouraged to use concepts and readings discussed in class. Each group will submit the group’s findings in writing to the instructor before presentation (2 page outline) and through an oral presentation to the class. The presenters are encouraged to be creative and use questions and prompts to initiate discussion.

Individual final paper: (35%) This 15-page paper must critically analyze a particular component of EU policies/roles using class readings and outside sources and applying concepts discussed in class. This paper should be based on your research project question. Details will be discussed further in class.
