Holds Federal Aid to Church Schools Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON—Federal law intended to include a provision that would be unconstitutional and thereby deprive non-public schools of educational aid would be unconstitutional, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit held. The court, in a three-judge panel, issued a decision in the case of the Federal Aid to Religious Education Act (FAREA), which is being appealed to the Supreme Court. The decision is expected to have a significant impact on the future of religious education in the United States. Because the act is not only unconstitutional, it also violates the Equal Protection and Establishment Clauses of the Constitution.

Constitutionality of U.S. Aid to Non-Public Schools especially the 1969 — 1970 Final. The 1894感染者 is especially true of the 1890's, 1914, and 1919 from the outbreak of the Spanish-American War from the outbreak of the Spanish-American War.

The judicial review of these provisions, however, is relatively limited. Catholic schools that benefit from federal aid are required to maintain the religious character of their education, but the Supreme Court has held that this requirement is not a violation of the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment. However, the Court has also held that it is unconstitutional for the government to provide direct financial assistance to tuition at religious schools, as such aid could be considered a form of "aid in the form of money, property, or services, direct or indirect, for purposes of sectarian education or training." This has been referred to as the "aid in the form of money" doctrine.

The Court has also held that it is constitutional for the government to provide grants for the construction of buildings for religious schools, as long as the grants are available to all eligible private schools, regardless of their religious affiliation. This has been referred to as the "aid in the form of facilities" doctrine.

The Court has also held that it is constitutional for the government to provide grants for the salaries of teachers at religious schools, as long as the grants are available to all eligible private schools, regardless of their religious affiliation. This has been referred to as the "aid in the form of services" doctrine.

The Court has also held that it is constitutional for the government to provide grants for the purchase of textbooks at religious schools, as long as the grants are available to all eligible private schools, regardless of their religious affiliation. This has been referred to as the "aid in the form of materials" doctrine.

Little-Known Facts For Catholics

Send Periodicals
To a Missioner

Missions throughout the world are in continual need of financial support. Many of these missions are remote and can be reached only by airmail. Many of the missions are in countries where more than one-half of the population are Catholics. If we were to send to these missions periodicals and the blessing of their concern would be increased many fold.

A good teacher can be sent to a public school, and the teacher can be one of our best.

"Conservatism and the Catholic Church -

By the Rev. Robert L. Goobi, O.S.B.

This article is a contribution to the question of whether or not the Catholic Church can exist in the United States today without being involved in the political life of the nation. The author suggests that the answer is yes, but that it will require a new approach in the way the Church relates itself to the secular world.

Easter Lesson '61

By Msgr. John H. O'Brien

"The Lord is risen, and has appeared to His disciples. The first to see Him was Mary Magdalene, who went into the tomb to anoint His body with ointments. But when she entered the tomb, she found the stone rolled away from the entrance. She told Peter and John, who ran to the tomb and found the body gone. Then they went to the disciples, saying, 'We have seen the Lord.'"

Who needs it?

In our lifetime all of us cannot give face but we can work at something and so take pride in better results. The staff of the NEWARK NEWS works hard and day by day to bring you the latest news, views and analysis of your world. If you read the paper you have face... at least in the fine reputation you have earned. But must important they take pride in a job well done. For instance THE TENET WEEKLY is a specialized group of editors and reporters who compile the latest State news... the New Jersey State government legislation... the latest political pictures of New Jersey. So read the NEWARK NEWS and know that you're being informed. And who knows... someday you may write face.

"Should I Tell Him Everything?"

Soon-to-Be-Wed Girl Wonders

By Mrs. John L. Thompson, S.J.

Anna Ford, a philosophy professor at Loyola University of Chicago, in company with her husband-to-be, Peter, has spent the last few years working on a philosophy of love. She has discovered that the experience of love often occurs when two persons, and especially two women, have a common goal of communicating certain information, goals, and experiences to each other. Anna Ford has been married for a few years, and she is now writing a book on the subject of love.

This is one of those remarkable book-length narratives, where the author, whether "innocent"

just a writer. Where he picks up the speech of a noted actor, he becomes him in a clever manner,

Theater Owners Demand
Clean-up of Movie Farcie

By William H. Moeing

The move that rages public feeling through a sale of nations is not the only cause for concern. The problem of censorship and self-censorship that underlies the sale of movies is a far more serious one. The danger to American culture and American life is in the control of the movie industry and the influence it has over the masses.

This is why the Theater Owners Association, which represents the independent theater
owners, is calling for a clean-up of the movie industry. They believe that the industry must be held accountable
for its actions and that it must be held to a higher standard of responsibility.

The Theater Owners Association has sent a letter to the
American Film
Institute, asking
for their support
in this endeavor.

This is a momentous time in the history of American movies.

As a citizen,
we must stand together
in defense of our culture and our values.

The Theater Owners
Association
remains committed to this cause.

Together, we can save our movies.

River Priests in the 'Green Hell'

By Floyd Anderson

LIKE the living legend of the old singing song, "We followed a sign and came to the sea," the Biography of the Rev. Martin J. McNulty, vested in his divine mission, walks into the history of our day and age. Since his days in the mines of Venezuela, where he was raised on the jungle floor, Father McNulty has carried the message of the Lord around the world, far and wide. His mission is not only to the Indians, but to all mankind. And as he tells us his story, we are struck by the fact that he is a true son of the jungle.

THE CHURCH MOURNS: Black vestments and a bare altar symbolize grief at the passing of Our Lord and Saviour for our sins as Bishop McNulty celebrates the Good Friday Liturgy at St. John the Baptist Cathedral, Paterson.

THE PASSION: The events of Our Lord's Passion are charted in dramatic dialogue in Latin by three priests vested in surplice, alb, cincture and black stole, standing at altars in front of the Bishop, scripture readings and prayers for all classes of sins are also included in the Good Friday Liturgy.

A BISHOP ADORNS THE BURIAL. Howsoever, in humility, Bishop McNulty prostrates himself and kisses the feet of the figure of the suffering Christ, as token of love and sorrow.

ECCE LAMINAR CRUCIS: "Behold the wood of the Cross..." chants Bishop McNulty — three times, each time drawing the soul further to the Crucifix until it is fully visible to our guilty eyes. Following this celebration, assistants and people will remove the cross praying, "We adore Thee, O Christ, and we praise Thee, because by Thy holy cross Thou hast redeemed the world."

ASCENT TO CROSS: Bishop McNulty is the first to approach and venerate the cross, greeting three times on the way. Christ's "reproaches" are sung. "My people, what wrong have I done you... Answer: Me."

BUT THERE IS JOY: God's love, which motivated the Divine Intercessions, gives us the Eschaton, and Pope Pius XII restored the privileges of Good Friday Communions, although there is no Consecration on this day. Bishop McNulty distributes pro-Communion Hosts to assisted priests and seminarians.

In Washington
Washington, D.C. and the environs have been a place of pilgrimage for the faithful throughout the ages. In many parts of the world, the American Catholic Church has been a source of inspiration and comfort for those seeking spiritual guidance. Here in the nation's capital, the Catholic Church is represented by the Archdiocese of Washington, which serves the faithful in the greater metropolitan area. The archdiocese is led by Cardinal Donald Wuerl, the archbishop, and is composed of 15 diocesan priests and 40 brothers and sisters. The archdiocese has a membership of over 200,000, and serves 12 parishes in the city of Washington, D.C., and 18 in the suburban area. It is a place of worship and study, and is home to many important institutions, including the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, the Cardinal Newman Center, and the Catholic University of America. The archdiocese is also home to many other religious communities, including the Sisters of Charity, the Dominicans, and the Franciscans. It is a place of prayer and reflection, and is a place of hospitality and service to those in need. Blessings Sent Marquette Journalism School by Pope

WASHINGTON — The Pope is sending special blessings to Marquette University, where the nation's first journalism school will open next spring, in a gesture, spokesman said, that symbolizes his support for free press.

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication will be housed in a new building that will also house the university's library.

The school, which was founded by the Jesuits in 1976, will offer a four-year program leading to a bachelor's degree in journalism.

The university's president, Rev. Paul J. Brandt, said the school was opened to "meet the needs of a changing world." He added that it was "an expression of the university's commitment to education and to the free press."
Progress Seen in Jersey Battle Against Obscenity

NEWARK — Progress in the battle against obscenity in Newark was evident in this brief white front this week. Following are the major developments:

1. Newark, first in a series of hearings will be heard this week by four members of the Board of Review, who will hear the case of the Illinois Citizens for Decency and Morals, Inc., chairman for the city, to determine whether or not the city approves of the materials used in the show. The hearing will be held in the room of the Board of Review and will be open to the public.

2. In Trenton, the New Jersey Supreme Court will hear arguments on the case of the New York Teachers Federation, who have sought to have the New York Supreme Court declare that the New York City Board of Review is not a public forum for the discussion of obscenity. The hearing will be held in the room of the New Jersey Supreme Court and will be open to the public.

3. In Jersey City, the Hudson County Board of Review will hear the case of the New York Teachers Federation, who have sought to have the New York City Board of Review declare that the New York City Board of Review is not a public forum for the discussion of obscenity. The hearing will be held in the room of the Hudson County Board of Review and will be open to the public.

4. In Newark, the New Jersey Supreme Court will hear arguments on the case of the New York Teachers Federation, who have sought to have the New York City Board of Review declare that the New York City Board of Review is not a public forum for the discussion of obscenity. The hearing will be held in the room of the New Jersey Supreme Court and will be open to the public.
