Federal Aid Views Aired At Education Convention

ATLANTIC CITY — Federal aid to education wasn’t on the agenda but recreation it was Topic A. An attendance of 1,400 Catholic educators from all over the country converged on the occasion to discuss the realities of Catholic education today.

Archdiocese of Newark’s Rev. John J. Deegan, S.J., was president and the Archdiocese of Baltimore’s Robert A. Wright, C.S.C., was the chairman. The theme of the convention was “Education for All, the Catholic Alternative.”

The convention was sponsored by the National Catholic Educational Association, of which the Archdiocese of Newark is a member.

The Archdiocese of Newark has sent a delegation of educators to the convention, which is expected to attract 1,500 educators from throughout the country.

Uphold Rights For School Aid To Catholics

WASHINGTON — Catholic spokesmen this week condemned plans to vary education aid programs as a violation of the U.S. Constitution.

As they have in recent years, the spokesmen sought to explain and champion programs that they consider a violation of the U.S. Constitution.

The spokesmen said that the Constitution guarantees the right to education for all children, including Catholic children.

Equal Treatment Is Asked for Public and Private Schools

VATICAN CITY — The meeting of the council of bishops of the Vatican City was held here Thursday, with the aim of examining the problem of the relationship between Church and State in the context of the church’s adherents.

The meeting was attended by the bishops of the Vatican City, who were met by the Pope, who presided over the meeting.

The Pope said there is a “clear preference” for the separation of Church and State, and that the Council of Bishops should be the final authority on the matter.

New Violence Strikes Church in the Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Violence against missionaries has erupted again in southern Kasaï Province, which is occupied by the Congo Revolutionary Army, killing two and injuring four others, according to the headquarters of the Missions and Missionaries of the Congregation of the Sacred Heart.

The incident occurred when members of the mission were conducting a study conference for young people in the Kasaï Region. The group consisted of 25 people, including two Catholic priests and two religious sisters.

The missionaries were reportedly attacked by a group of armed men who forced them to flee their headquarters. The exact cause of the violence is unclear, but it is believed to be related to the ongoing conflict in the region.

Missionaries have been targeted in several parts of Congo, particularly in areas controlled by armed groups. The situation remains volatile, and the safety of missionaries and their work is under threat.

Cuban Persecution Plan Disclosed

BOGOTA, Colombia—Catholic news has published placards copies of what it says are Cuban government orders to persecute the Catholic Church and to replace it with a church which supports the Cuban revolution.

The placards were published in the Cuban news paper and consisted of pages of a letter signed by Community, B. and printed larger copies of the pages which were sent to the Catholic Church by the Cuban government. The letter is a request from the Cuban government to the Catholic Church to stop its activities in Cuba.

Cardinal Ferretto Named One of Six Cardinal Bishops

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope John XXIII has named Giuseppe Cardinal Ferretto one of six cardinal bishops, thus giving the newly named cardinal prece- dence over 13 other priests in the Curia. Cardinal Ferretto, at 62 the youngest of 31 cardinals named by Pope John XXIII in his first papal appointments, is president of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano — a position similar to that held by Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini, the new archbishop of Milan.

Cardinal Ferretto, appointed at a solemn Mass in the Vatican Basilica on Sunday, is said to have been the leading candidate for the Vatican newspaper position. He is a member of the Roman Catholic Church and is a native of the southern Italian city of Naples, where he has been archbishop since 1964.

The Pope also named 13 new cardinals in his first papal appointments, all of whom have been working in various capacities in the Roman Curia or in the Diocese of Rome. The new cardinals will be installed at a ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica on June 18.

Cardinal Ferretto's appointment was announced by Vatican spokesman Monsignor Joseph Bollicini, who read a statement from the Pope's secretary, Cardinal Giuseppe Maria Vannini, saying that Cardinal Ferretto had been chosen because of his "eminence, erudition and zeal" in service to the Church.

Cardinal Ferretto was the first cardinal named by Pope John XXIII in his first papal appointments, and he is expected to play a prominent role in the new administration of the Vatican newspaper, which is one of the most influential organs of the Church in the world.

The new cardinals will be installed at a ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica on June 18.

Death by Taxes

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue tells us in part 1 of the current tax instructions that "this year's deadline for paying taxes is March 31." In other words, the tax deadline is just around the corner. We can only hope that our friends in the Internal Revenue Service will not forget to send us our bills. It is a sad commentary on the state of affairs when the government has to publish a book on how to pay taxes.

Squeeze

In an article recently published in The New York Times, Professor Parkinson states that "taxation is the most important thing in the world." He goes on to say that "in every country, the government is the largest single employer of labor, and its activities are a major factor in the economy." We can only hope that the government will not forget to send us our bills.

Bergen Backwoods

For a long time, the "backwoods" has been a term used to describe the rural areas of New Jersey. It is a place where the people are simple, the laws are loose, and the crime rate is high. But now it seems that the "backwoods" has come to New Jersey as well. In a recent article in The Newark Advocate, the author writes that "the backwoods" has become a place where the people are not only simple, but also dangerous. He goes on to say that "the backwoods" has become a place where the crime rate is high, and the law is not enforced.

NCEA Convention

Catholic educators and clergy from across the country converged on Atlantic City last week to discuss the issues facing the Church in the United States. The convention was held at the Convention Hall Hotel, where thousands of people gathered to hear the speeches of the many prominent speakers.

Impairing Our Youth

Every serious-minded person, who has not been altogether deaf and blind to the activities of the present day, must admit that the condition of the youth of our country requires serious attention and immediate remedy. We are not alluding to the physical defectiveness of the young generation, but to their moral and intellectual deterioration. We are not referring to the limitations and restrictions imposed upon the young by the laws and regulations of society, but to the conditions and circumstances which exist in the homes, schools, and factories, and which have a tendency to impair the moral and intellectual qualities of the young.

THE ADVOCATE
Herald Tribune and Aid to Education

Editor:

On Mar. 14, the N.Y. Herald Tribune published an article entitled "Church Education," which included this letter to the Editor, presented herewith for publication in this issue of THE ADVOCATE. "Aid to Education," the writer states, "is a word which expresses not merely the economic support of educational institutions, but also the moral support which, in our age of industrialism, is essential to the well-being of a people." The writer goes on to say that "aid to education" should be given only to educational institutions which "a willing to educate".

Herald Tribune and Aid to Education

Editor:

I am writing to express my views on the current issue of "Church Education," which was published in the N.Y. Herald Tribune on Mar. 14. The article, entitled "Church Education," discusses the importance of aid to educational institutions, which is especially significant in our age of industrialism. The writer states that aid to education should be given only to those institutions which are willing to educate.

I believe that aid to education should be provided to those institutions which are committed to educating their students in the values and principles of the Christian faith. This is especially important in a world where the values of the secular world are often in conflict with those of the Christian faith.

I also believe that aid to education should be provided to those institutions which are committed to providing a quality education to all students, regardless of their background or economic status. This is essential in a world where the cost of education is often prohibitive for those who have limited financial resources.

I support the efforts of organizations such as the Catholic Education Foundation to provide aid to educational institutions that are committed to educating their students in the values and principles of the Christian faith. I believe that it is the responsibility of all of us to support those institutions that are committed to providing a quality education to all students, regardless of their background or economic status.

I hope that this letter will encourage others to support the efforts of organizations such as the Catholic Education Foundation to provide aid to educational institutions that are committed to educating their students in the values and principles of the Christian faith. I believe that it is essential for the future of our society to support those institutions that are committed to providing a quality education to all students, regardless of their background or economic status.

Sincerely yours,

Life Spared by Intercessory Of Blessed Bertilla Boscadin

MILWAUKEE (DNC) — Miraculous story of Bertilla Boscadin, 33, has ended in a happy conclusion. Mgr. John J. Hickey, Archbishop of Milwaukee, today announced that the priestess who has been under intercessory of Blessed Bertilla Boscadin has been cured. The news was contained in a letter to the Archbishop from the Society of St. Mary, Rydal, England, which will be translated soon.

The miracle happened when Mrs. Bertilla, 33, of Rydal, England, signed the petition to pray to Blessed Bertilla to intercede for her ailing child, seven-year-old boy. Mrs. Bertilla, who has been out of the hospital for several years, will lead the hospital at All Saints Hospital. The boy has his name on the list of those who have been healed by the intercessory of Blessed Bertilla.

The problem of advising young people concerning a vocation to the religious life is a difficult one. Many a vocation has been lost because parents have not known answers to questions they have been asked, because parents have not fully understood the tremendous significance of a vocation to the religious life and because adolescents have not known the opportunities that are offered them in working for Christ.

Come and have your questions answered, your doubts removed, your fears dissolved. Learn the wonders of working for Christ in the Army of the Church.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Pope John Paul II today expressed his support for a bill that would require government schools to offer religious instruction on the Bible and the Koran.

The pope, who has been a vocal critic of secularism in recent years, said he hoped the legislation would “help ensure that all children receive a balanced education.”

The bill, introduced by Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) and Rep. Jack Kingston (R-GA), would require public schools to teach the Bible and the Koran as part of a broader religious studies curriculum. It would also allow students to opt out of religious instruction if they choose.

“I believe this legislation is a necessary step to ensure that our children are exposed to the moral and spiritual teachings of both faith traditions,” Boehner said in a statement.

However, some opponents of the bill have raised concerns about the potential for religious bias in the curriculum.

“Religion is a deeply personal matter, and it should not be mandated in public schools,” said Rep. Alan Grayson (D-FL).

The bill has been endorsed by a coalition of religious leaders, including the pope, the Catholic Bishops of the United States, and the National Council of Churches.

The legislation is expected to be voted on in the House of Representatives next week.

This Is a Special Time of the Year
Without Anything Exciting to Do

By June Dyer

June doesn't seem to be a thing exciting happening at this ime of the year nowadays. Oh, we all have our duties to do and people out there in the world are trying their best, but June seems to be a month when we might want to rest a little.

Life is full of events and actions, but June doesn't seem to be one of them. It appears to be a month when we should take a break and enjoy the beauty of nature.

VACATION NOTES

A Way to Prove Love

By Margaret E. Furlong

A dear child of mine is not easy to find. And yet she is everywhere. For three years I have been a very busy lady. My days are filled with work, worry, and worry. My only solace is reading. I have discovered that the only thing that matters in life is love. And so I turn to you, my dear child, to find the true meaning of love.

Love is the answer to every question that one asks in life. It is the answer to the question of why one exists. Love is the answer to the question of what one can do with one's life. Love is the answer to the question of how one can live.

Love is the answer to the question of why one exists. It is the answer to the question of what one can do with one's life. Love is the answer to the question of how one can live.

Love is the answer to the question of why one exists. It is the answer to the question of what one can do with one's life. Love is the answer to the question of how one can live.

pitching hangs big question mark over hudson baseball teams jersey city — if pitching is 90% of high school baseball—and it usually is—then the question marks hanging over the Hudson County Catholic high school district picture for the 1961 season.

seven of the teams have enough handers on hand to make a go of it, but with several teams suffering from a shortage of veteran pitchers it will not be an easy season.

last year, only two of the nine teams won over the 300 mark and the pre-season, just as last year, is filled with questions.

there are scraps of hope, however, for the district, with nine Catholic teams playing baseball, as the district was left with just nine Catholic teams playing baseball last year.

Pope’s Talk in Honor of St. Patrick

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The Hungarian Catholic community has blocked the consecration of two priests who were named Bishops by the Holy See in 1959, Observatory Reports revealed.

The Vatican daily newspaper reported the resolution of the Hungarian Catholic community to block the consecration of two priests who were named Bishops by the Holy See in 1959, Observatory Reports revealed.

The paper said the two priests were named Bishops by the Holy See in 1959, Observatory Reports revealed.

The Holy See confirmed in a statement that the two priests were named Bishops by the Holy See in 1959, Observatory Reports revealed.

The resolution of the Hungarian Catholic community to block the consecration of the two priests is a significant development in the ongoing dispute between the Holy See and the Hungarian Catholic community over the naming of bishops.

The dispute between the Holy See and the Hungarian Catholic community has been ongoing for several years, with both sides expressing concerns over the method of selection of bishops.

The Hungarian Catholic community has advocated for the appointment of bishops based on their qualifications and experience, while the Holy See has maintained its traditional approach of appointing bishops based on their loyalty and obedience to the Pope.

The resolution of the Hungarian Catholic community to block the consecration of the two priests is a significant development in the ongoing dispute between the Holy See and the Hungarian Catholic community over the naming of bishops.

The situation is likely to be complex and requires careful consideration by both sides to ensure a peaceful resolution that respects the views and concerns of all parties involved.

Statue Completes Shrine in Wayne

WAYNE—An eight-foot white marble statue of the Immaculate Heart of Mary was unveiled in the Shrine Tower of Immaculate Heart of Mary parish here Apr. 11, completing the work in the shrine.

The Shrine Tower is the focal point of the parish plant. The three-story building is of granite. Curtain walls in sage gray, it is in keeping with the surrounding area, which dominates the surrounding area. Set on the site of a hill, it is landscaped at night.

The NEW statue is set on a three-foot-high limestone base which is to be flanked from the right and left by two marble lamps with Sigma. Exterior light. Further.

The sculptor was A. Pleasing. The two lamps are sculpted and are electronic chimes which may be turned off. The chimes play one strain automatically each evening informing the parishioners that the Shrine Tower bell is tolled every half an hour. During the day the bell is tolled the hour from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sunday Sales Trial Due

Newark—The trial of a suit attacking the 1938 county opinion Sunday sales law is scheduled to begin in Superior Court here before Judge Theodore H. La Fleur.

Plaintiffs in the case are 400 towns in the state. The suit was brought by the 400 towns after the New Jersey Legislature in 1938 declared it unlawful to hold Sunday sales in localities not in Sunday sales areas.

The NEW suit stems from an earlier court action in which the New Jersey Supreme Court appointed a commission to investigate the question of Sunday sales. The commission, in its report, dissolution of the commission in its classification of goods which could not be sold on Sunday.

The court, in a suit attacking the 1938 county opinion Sunday sales law, in its 1939 decision, ruled that the plaintiffs were entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant, the Sunday sales law, as an unconstitutional provision. The law, in its classification of goods which could not be sold on Sunday.
