Adornment Rush to End Uproar Over School Aid

WASHINGTON (N.C.)—Adoption of a public school aid bill Wednesday will end the Congressional political upheaval over the controversial measure.

The Senate today adopted the bill by a 66-27 vote. The House had earlier approved it by a 288-122 margin.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., would provide $250 million a year for aid to parochial schools.

Supporters of the measure hailed it as a victory for the cause of education, while opponents called it a threat to the separation of church and state.

In his sponsored remarks on the Senate floor, Sen. Byrd said: "This bill is not an attack on the separation of church and state. It is an attack on the need for educational aid."
Pope Names 10 Scientists To Pontifical Academy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II named 10 scientists Tuesday to a high-level advisory council to the Vatican, a move that came on the heels of a growing controversy over the appointment of an American chancellor for the Vatican's Pontifical Academy.

The 10 scientists are: Peter Caldirola of the University of Rome; John Climenhaga of the University of Alberta; Michael Ewing of the University of Oxford; Helen Firkovich of the University of California; Robert Holmberg of the University of Stockholm; Stanley Leliwek of the University of California; Harvey Neufeld of the University of Illinois; Alan Stone of the University of Wisconsin; and John W. Taylor of the University of Manchester.

The council, known as the Pontifical Academy for Science, was established by Pope Pius XI in 1929. It is charged with advising the pope on scientific matters.

The appointment of an American chancellor for the academy has been criticized by some members of the scientific community, who say it could lead to a conflict of interest.

Bayonne Man Returns From Year on Missions

By Fred H. Anderson

BAYONNE — Joe Di Bernardo, a man who has been in Cuba and the Dominican Republic for the past year, returned to his home in Bayonne last week.

Di Bernardo, a member of the Bayonne Men's Club, said he had been working for the Catholic Church in Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

The former Bayonne resident said he was able to return to the United States because of the improved relations between the United States and Cuba.

He said he had been working as a translator for the Catholic Church in Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

Religious News

To Russia with religious affection.

Not so many people would have the faith to believe that a Pope would ever venture into the lands of the Orthodox Church for religious services. Yet that is exactly what Our Holy Father did recently in the lands of the Russian Orthodox Church. He visited the city of Moscow and the beautiful Chocolate Cathedral, and his words and actions were met with universal joy and love. He also performed a number of religious ceremonies, including a so-called Eucharistic Mass, which is a traditional religious service celebrated by the Orthodox Church. The Pope's visit to Russia was a significant event for the Russian Orthodox Church and its followers, as it marked the first visit of a Pope to Russia since the last visit of a Pope to Russia in the early 19th century. The Pope's visit was also significant for the international community, as it demonstrated the importance of religious tolerance and cooperation among different religions. The Pope's visit to Russia was a reminder of the importance of religious freedom and the need for religious leaders to work together to promote peace and understanding among different cultures and religions.

Protestantism in Latin America.

The history of Protestantism in Latin America is a story of resilience, faith, and adaptation. From its early days as a small group of individuals seeking refuge from persecution in Europe, Protestantism has grown into a major religion in many Latin American countries, with a significant number of followers. The early years of Protestantism in Latin America were marked by challenges and setbacks, as the new religion struggled to gain acceptance and overcome cultural and linguistic barriers. However, with time and persistence, Protestantism began to take root in Latin America, and its followers began to build a strong and vibrant community. The growth of Protestantism in Latin America has been fueled by a variety of factors, including the influence of missionaries, the appeal of new ideas and beliefs, and the desire for religious freedom. Despite challenges, Protestantism in Latin America has continued to grow and flourish, and it remains an important religious force in many Latin American countries today.

His Parents Are 'Sensible' Till It Comes to the Car

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.
Assistant Professor of Theology, St. Louis University

My parents have a battle-proven method of controlling the use of the car. Dad admits he handles a car as well as he can, and mom says she handles a car in high gear. They don't want me to drive the car in school, and I know from past experience I'll soon become a pest!

There is no question of responsibility when one provides demands more than one's parents.

THERE is a good reason for keeping the car locked up. A fact which indicates your parents are reasonable people. For example, the theory of the free will of man could be overthrown by my handling the car. What other world could be built? I mean that other world, and my passions would not prevent me from driving the car.

PERHAPS it will help you to realize that your parents are reasonable people if it is true that many other world's parents are reasonable people. You've engaged in the very private, not to mention personal, business of my parents. They've had the privilege of raising me, and they haven't burned me at the stake. Perhaps you will be able to appreciate this.

August Intentions

The Holy Father's general intentions

Against any alteration of national safeguards of peace and security, which might involve a change of present frontiers or of national boundaries or of the territory over which a people is given to live.

The Holy Father's personal intentions

For the spiritual life of each individual Missionary and of their families, that the religious spirit may permeate the present time.

The Pastoral Letter of the Bishop of the Diocese of Oakland

For the world's religious leaders.

The encyclical, "Populorum Progressio" may be considered a challenge to the religious leaders of the world to become a more effective force of good in the world. It is a call to all of us who believe in a supernatural world to take an active part in the development of the human being.

World-wide, the religious leaders are the most effective force of good in the world. They are the ones who can make the world a better place to live in. They are the ones who can save the world from destruction.

American Children Being Brainwashed

By William H. Moore

The Hollywood directors of films for juvenile audiences have been trying to help their young viewers become "literate" in the "true" values of life by putting their favorite stars into a series of "teaching" roles. This summer, a number of these stars have been cast in roles as "wise" teachers, "wise" mothers, or "wise" fathers.

The film "The Love Letter," directed by Bob Fosse, depicts the life of a young girl who is sent to live with her grandparents after the death of her parents. The girl is not only "literate" in the "true" values of life, but she also learns to love and respect her grandparents.

The film "The Sound of Music," directed by Robert Wise, depicts the life of a young girl who is sent to live with her Aunt and Uncle after the death of her parents. The girl is not only "literate" in the "true" values of life, but she also learns to love and respect her Aunt and Uncle.

Who Are Heaven's Glamor People?

By June Dwyer

We all love glamor. Boys think of the adventures of their heroes in the comics, and the girls think of the romantic, famous people they read about in the local paper or in the national news.

Now with each passing year both boys and girls grow older and say they don't take as much notice of these things any longer. For instance, the story of Stanford Caldera Satoa, an exchange student from the island of Oahu, Hawaii, started when she was in the eighth grade.

Sister Emma was one born into a third generation of French sisters of education. She says the Church in her country has always been the leader in education and that a large number of priest and nuns are engaged in TEACHING. She says that for the past several years the Church in the island of Oahu has steadily been expanding and that the missionary sisters are in charge of the majority of schools and higher education. Sister Emma was the first nuns on Oahu and was appointed to the Brentwood Academy.
