Catholic Church
Pope Discusses Movies, Influence of Holy Priests

VATICAN CITY — Pope John, the world called the "Apostle of America" by the faithful, will return to Rome next Sunday to continue his work for the creation of a "new evangelization," and the renewal of the Church's mission.

The Pope discussed motion pictures, a subject of interest to many Catholics, during his address to an audience of American bishops at the Pontifical College for Americans in Rome.

The success of such an undertaking, the Pope said, is "an inspiration to the Church, and with a thousand voices, to the millions of souls who are seeking God's love in the world." He urged the audience to continue their efforts to promote the work of the "new evangelization," and to make the Church's message heard in all parts of the world.

Vatican Official Gets New Post

The Pope has named Cardinal HEBNER, of the United States, new President of the Catholic University of America. He will succeed Cardinal HARTMANN, who has been appointed new President of the University of Notre Dame.

The appointment of Cardinal Hebner as President of the Catholic University of America is significant because it marks the first time in the history of the University that a layman has been chosen for the position.

The Catholic University of America was founded in 1889 to educate the nation's young men and women in the Catholic faith and to prepare them for leadership in the Church and society.

The Pope said that he was "delighted" with the appointment of Cardinal Hebner and that he would "do everything in his power to support the work of the University and to promote its welfare and advancement.

The Catholic University of America is one of the premier centers of Catholic education in the world, and it is an honor for me to have been chosen to lead such a distinguished institution," said Cardinal Hebner.

The Papal address was given in Healy Hall of the Catholic University of America, where the faithful were present in large numbers to hear the words of their Pope.

The GREAT advances that the Church has made in recent years have been made under his direction, and the Pope said that he was "grateful for the opportunity to share in the work of the Church and to contribute to its growth and development.

The Pope also spoke of the importance of education and the need for the Church to promote the moral and intellectual development of its members.

Atomic Experts Told To Work For Peace

VIENNA (NRO) — An Austrian Cardinal and a U.S.原子 expert representing the Holy See have urged the world's atomic experts to work for peace.

Rt. Rev. Theodore Bedeigh, C. S. C., president of the Holy See's Atomic Energy Commission, said that the atomic experts have a great responsibility to work for peace.

"The atomic experts have a great responsibility to work for peace," said Bedeigh.

"We must use the atomic energy for the benefit of mankind, not for destructive purposes.

Fathers and sons are being killed in atomic explosions, and the world must be saved from the danger of atomic war.

The atomic experts have a great responsibility to work for peace, and we must do everything in our power to ensure peace in the world.

Perversion Themes
Get Film Code OK

By William H. Morting

"sex perversion or any that has wholly failed human society's test of morality..."

The New York Times (NYT) reports that the "Perversion Themes" movie has been censored by the Motion Picture Production Code Administration. The report states that the code review panel found that "the interpretation was not necessary nor possible. There is much more violent action involving further torture..."

Among other themes the code panel was concerned with were "masochism, sadism, and sexual perversion." The report goes on to say that the film "himself...goes beyond the limits of the code's doctrine of 'moral'..." and also raises questions about the film's "moral" implications.

The code panel decided that the film would only be acceptable if it met the following conditions:

1. The film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual perversion.
2. The film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual masochism.
3. The film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual sadism.
4. The film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual torture.
5. The film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual exploitation.

The code panel also noted that the film should not contain any scenes depicting sexual violence.

The film is currently under review by the Code Administration and is not yet released.

All Who Joy Will Win

Down through the centuries, marking the Divine Founder, Jesus Christ, the Church has ever kept the hope of Christ's triumph in the weak and the poor and all who are in need. His most glorious acts and demonstrations have this inspiration from Him. We must not place the value of His Joy and bind, "If you will be perfect, sell what you have and go".

*WE ARE ALL equally responsible for the underprivileged peoples on earth. The failure which binds all men and makes them mutually dependent requires political coexistence among all peoples and nations, which will enable us to maintain the ties of mutual assistance and friendship which exist between the members of the human family.

And this obligation, the Holy Father pointed out, is a responsibility of Catholics who find a most noble motive in the fact that we are all members of Christ's Mystical Body.

As a nation we have been generous, as a people we have not been the recipients of this generosity. Hence, we are not the highest but the most noble. Often the Greatest

Conscience Is Law Built Into Us by God

By Frank J. Steed

In the world today, there are many issues that people are struggling with. One of the most important issues is the question of conscience. When it comes to conscience, there are many different beliefs and opinions. However, the truth is that conscience is built into us by God. This means that we have an innate sense of right and wrong, and we are able to make moral decisions based on our conscience. This is an important concept to understand, as it helps us to make better decisions and to live more fulfilling lives.

God Made Male, Female
—And the Battle Rages
By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J.
Assistant Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University

Are men and women really as intellectually, emotionally, and psychologically different from each other as a nearly new study has found, installing some change in the home even if her talents aren't developed and she isn't bonded by children?

It isn't surprising that intelligent women are also born to be scientists as they read through some of the "studies," the research, and the studies, it might be said, that have emerged in recent years. It could be said that the role of women is to understand the women born to do the men's jobs.

It is clear that men and women are expected to have women's roles and that the problem is to determine the real nature of human beings and their practical possibilities. At the root of the "battle of the sexes" is the determination of the role of men and women in the home.

A DEFINITION of all the problems involved seems crucial. First, there is the notion of the differences between women and men. If a woman is treated as a woman and a man as a man, the degree of masculinity and femininity will differ. Even with differences in masculinity and femininity differences are real.

In the light of our observations, there is no question that there is no such radical difference as has been suggested in the form of sex roles. Not only do individual women in their own right assume different sex roles, but within the same sex roles, there are significant differences in roles. Not the least personality abilities, but significant differences in the ways in which we actualize these differences of early on.

Neither sex is a mere appearance, individual men and women are characterized by differences in the degree of masculinity and femininity that are not always realized, rather than alone.

THE "THEORIES" you may have heard that men and women are born with different characteristics and abilities are outdated and not necessarily true. There is no such "pervasive" definition of sex in all of our lives. Women are also born with different characteristics and abilities that we as men and women are developing.

THE BEHEMOTH of our lives is the development of our "hearts," their practical possibilities. We are not going to develop a "heart," an emotional center, that will always be a female or male center.

Unfortunately, although all men and women have educations, many apparently have not been educated in the proper educational system. We have been educated not to be educated, to develop our "hearts," not to develop our minds. We have been educated in the society of the state, the school system, to develop our "hearts." We have been educated as men and women, not as human beings.

THE HARVEST is the harvest of our potential as men and women. It is the harvest of the "hearts," our practical possibilities as men and women.

THE WORK of men and women is to develop their "hearts," to develop their potential as men and women. The "hearts" of both men and women are efficient centers in the society of the state, the school system, to develop our potential as men and women.

THE PROSECUTION is the harvest of our potential as men and women. It is the harvest of the "hearts," our practical possibilities as men and women.

The THEOREM is the harvest of our potential as men and women. It is the harvest of the "hearts," our practical possibilities as men and women.

THE PROSECUTION is the harvest of our potential as men and women. It is the harvest of the "hearts," our practical possibilities as men and women.

For the second time in 33 years, SPARKS—a team that didn't take up much space on anyone's radar—proved it was the real deal, and it's not because it's the first Catholic youth basketball league in New Jersey.

The first Catholic youth basketball league in New Jersey, sponsored by the CYO (Catholic Youth Organization), was established in 1960. The league featured teams from various parishes across the state, including parishes in Essex, Morris, Bergen, Passaic, and Hudson counties. The league was designed as a way to provide a platform for Catholic youth to participate in the sport of basketball, while also fostering a sense of community and teamwork.

COACHES’ HONOR: Ken McKinney, the 'man of many hats' at Our Lady of the Lake High School (Sparta), offers a plaque presented to him by the 1961 graduating class. In 33 years, he has been the head football coach at the Lake High School, the head baseball coach at the Lake High School, and the head basketball coach at the Lake High School. McKinney is known for his dedication to the sport of basketball and his contributions to the Catholic Youth Organization.
Your Mission Funds Build
Universities for the People

The primary school has become "The university of the people" because it functions as the university and center of culture for the masses. Therefore, it is the duty of the clergy to learn to address the people. The primary school has given special attention to the instruction of their children.

By means of the primary school, the clergy should also be aware of the social and economic improvement of the people, and of their actual cultural and educational interests. This is a task of fundamental importance for the clergy himself, and one which must be accomplished in the service of the Propagation of the Faith.

Monsignor John Ryan, Parish Priest of the Church of the Holy Family, Blue Island, Illinois, writes:

"The clergy who are engaged in the Propagation of the Faith should also be very familiar with the educational activities of the people, and with the school activities in which the people are involved. In this way, the clergy will be able to give direction to the educational activities of the people, and to help them to develop their own educational programs."
STONE COMES HOME: After lying buried for 30 years in an Invitrogen trench, the remains of the old St. Leo's School were received this week by Jerome Congdal, who is shown present at the Mayor Bachman, pastor of St. Leo's.
