American Named Science Winner

VATICAN CITY — The Church does not fear new scientific discoveries, Pope John reiterated here in a message to the Academy of Sciences, which he addressed in the presence of the American embassy by Pope Paul VI.

Addressing the academy in the Chigi Palace, the pope said: "The Church does not fear science. The Church is not afraid of the new discoveries that the brain of man is constantly making. The Church, on the contrary, welcomes science as a servant of humanity, as a means to achieve a better understanding of the world and of man. The Church is open to all the new knowledge that science brings, and she will always be ready to accept it, to use it, and to apply it to the service of humanity."

Science and Religion

In his address, the pope said that science and religion are not in conflict, but are complementary. He said that science is the study of the natural world, while religion is the study of the spiritual world. He said that science and religion are both necessary for the development of human civilization.

The pope also said that the Church is committed to the promotion of science and technology, and that she will always be open to new discoveries. He said that the Church is committed to the service of humanity, and that she will always be ready to use science and technology to achieve this goal.

The pope concluded his address by saying that the Church is open to all the new knowledge that science brings, and that she will always be ready to accept it, to use it, and to apply it to the service of humanity.

The latter contentants exercised with an ax by wrenching its neck much in the same manner as present-day rodeo cowboys. Only the purpose was to strengthen themselves rather than win a prize. 'Comsymps' Pulled Out of Welch's Hat

BOSTON (AP) — Robert Welch, founder of the controversial right-wing John Birch Society, has admitted that his estimate of the number of "comsymps" communist sympathizers in the ranks of Catholic clergy was simply pulled out of a hat, as a complete guess and with no administrative data even to back it up.

He said in a letter to the AP that he had seen statements that the number of liberal priests in the United States had been estimated by James P. Cannon, a leader of the Communist Party, at 50,000 and that he picked a lower figure, possibly 20,000, when he was asked to guess at the number. He said he had not checked his figure against any administrative data.

He wrote: "I know of no studies other than these, and I am not aware that any are in the works. I have received no reports from any of the people who would have such data."

Welch added that he had seen the Cannon estimate but had chosen not to use it because he felt it was "too low.

BE IT WRITTEN: "I may have only a single individual," said Welch, "but you cannot estimate at the other end."

But he said that, even with regards to esti- mates, even though they might not be based on administrative data, they reflected the deep-seated suspicion held by many Catholics that communist sympathies did exist among priests.

He said that, even though the estimate of 20,000 might not be accurate, it was still a very low figure in the current state of church affairs.

The Pope is an institutional authority, he said, and the Church is the only institution that could effectively combat communist influence in the world. He was speaking in general terms, he said, not in terms of any specific priests or parishes. He said that all Catholics have to hold the Pope in the highest regard and all people who are being ordained as priests will have to take the prerequisites and become the kind of person who is needed in society.

"There is no one who can say that," he said, "that there are no communists in the Church."

Double Anniversary

Such has been the vigor of his past that it is hard to believe Pope John XIII will be 80 years old in Dec. 26. He tightly
the "Anniversary Portrait" bare the hea of his years that he will even mention his entry into the ranks of centenarians, in contradistinction to His Holiness's wish in 1953 to coincide with the third anniversary of his consecration.

To express their heartfelt gratitude to their spiritual father, Cardinals and other archbishops throughout the world will unite in a splendid double anniversary tribute.

THE ANNIVERSARY of the Archdiocese of Washington will do so by attendance at the Vatican Mass on November 26th, in honor of Pope John's Consecration which will be celebrated in the basilica as a double anniversary.

The faithful of the Diocese of Paterson

will have a similar opportunity of signalizing their gratitude on Nov. 29, when the dean of the Paterson flock, Bishop Joseph

Kelly, will offer Mass in all parishes for the intentions of the Holy Father.

WE URGE ALL our readers not only to some of those opportunities of rending

homage and spiritual effort to Pope

John XIII, but also to pray daily in his favor. Appropriately for this purpose would the above-mentioned Votive Mass. "God grant

this work of His servant to be faithfully

continued," on the day he was ordained a priest, John, whose life "was marred only by the Church's grant, we beseech Thee, that our country shall be protected by Thee, as over whom he is set, and thus

that his life's work, together with the desk

committed to his care."

Institutional Bond

quickly. Our politicians are finding it more

The economic growth of the state has created thousands of new jobs in the northeast. The state's highway system, the growth of the economy, the increase in population, and the development of

businesses have all contributed to the state's growth.

The phrase "in" is used to express the idea of inclusion. For example, in the sentence "the state's highway system,

the growth of the economy, the increase in

population, and the development of

businesses have all contributed to the state's

growth," the phrase "in the state" is used to emphasize the idea of inclusion.

However, the phrase "in the state" can be used in a broader sense to refer to the state as a whole. For example, in

the sentence "the state's highway system,

the growth of the economy, the increase in

population, and the development of

businesses have all contributed to the state's

growth," the phrase "in the state" is used

to refer to the state as a whole.

James Klipsh, commenting on "The Federal state of New Jersey, the state's highway system,

the growth of the economy, the increase in

population, and the development of

growth."

Michael and His Friend Went Heaven

by June Drewer

We heard a story about a little, modern-day angel so tender to read. You can tell it all yourself.

There was a little boy who lived in New Jersey, not too far from New York. He was always a good boy and he loved to listen to the stories told to him by his mother. One day his mother told him a story about an angel named Michael.

Michael was a special angel in every way. He had a special talent that he used to help other people. He was the one who would be there to guide them when they needed help. He was also the one who would help them to understand the true meaning of life.

The little boy was fascinated by this story and he asked his mother if there was anything else she could tell him about angels. His mother smiled and said, "Well, you could ask Michael himself. He's coming to dinner tonight!"

The little boy was overjoyed. He had been waiting for this special evening for weeks.

At dinner that night, Michael and his friend arrived. They were both dressed in their finest clothes and looked very handsome.

The little boy was amazed to see how kind and gentle they were. He asked Michael if he could show him around the world. Michael smiled and said, "Of course, my little friend. Let's go!"

They began their journey around the world, visiting different countries and meeting all sorts of people. Michael showed the little boy all the wonderful things that angels do around the world.

As they were leaving, the little boy thanked Michael and his friend for showing him the world. Michael smiled and said, "Don't forget, my little friend. You have the power to make a difference in the world. Just believe in yourself and you can do anything!"

The little boy went home that night feeling happy and inspired. He knew that he would use his new knowledge to help others and make the world a better place.

The end.

ELIZABETH — This may be a week of well-deserved rest for St. Benedict's, who won again here last week. Last week the Benedictines took the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Conference championships Oct. 21 at Westminster Park here. Despite the loss of two key football players to injury, the team managed to edge the Pioneers of Seton Hall by a score of 15-14.

The St. Benedict's championship victory clinches the title for the third straight time, the first time in the history of the conference. The team, however, is not the only one to win the title this year. The New York City Catholic League also won the championship. The Catholic League is composed of three teams: Seton Hall, St. Benedict's, and St. Joseph's College.

He Didn't Have a Million
But Gave What He Had

A newspaper in high school
writes the story of a man
that it did not know existed.
But I knew about him.
I knew about his Faith.
I knew about his Life.
I knew about his Love.

His name was J. P. McCord.

He was a simple man,
but he had a heart of gold.
He lived a humble Life,
but he gave of himself.
He didn't have a million
But gave what he had.

He was a man of Faith,
and his Life was a testimony.
His words were simple,
but his actions were profound.
He had a heart full of compassion,
and a spirit that was filled with love.

He taught us that we don't need
a lot of money to make a difference.
We only need a heart full of love.
And even if we have nothing,
we can still give what we have.

He didn't have a million
But gave what he had.

November 12–18

PURPOSE: To raise funds for church sponsored programs for all handicapped children.

WHAT CHURCH ORGANIZATION WORKS FOR THE HANDICAPPED?
The Mount Carmel Guild... under the direction of Monsignor Joseph A. Deaing.

WHAT IS THE M.C.G.?
The Mount Carmel Guild is a church sponsored organization founded by the late Archbishop Walsh for the purpose of assisting people in need — regardless of creed or color.

Archbishop Thomas A. Boland has entrusted the Guild with the task of establishing programs for the handicapped.

"IT IS A SOURCE of great consolation that the youth of the archdiocese at the suggestion and direction of Msgr. Kiley have volunteered to assist in the financial effort to maintain our present services and to care for the volume of cases to come."

† Thomas A. Boland
Archbishop of Newark
