Spanish Notebook: Syndicates, Strikes, Wages and Labor

By Gordon Sevill

Mr. Sevill is chief editorial writer of the Southern Enquirer, Elko, Northampton, England, and a correspondent. At thedeclaration of war, he was moved from Paris to London to report on the national conditions. He edited the United States in 1939 for two months on a duty Department of Labor mission.

Mr. Sevill reports:—

Three Labor strikes in the United States, and each one of a different nature symbolizing all those engaged in a particular industry. Each case is different in its detail—location, numbers, struggling conditions, techniques and employers. The syndicates, however, are broadly grouped under three headings—utopianism, insanity and profit.

Not only do the syndicates rejected regulatory or cooperative schemes, they also help to preserve the country, through the economic policies of the more moderate or reformist syndicates.

"The Workers" newspaper (opposed to both strikes, and is distributed by the other two), is an attempt to break the strikes and organize the workers into the syndicates, a matter now under consideration in the Hague conference of the International Labor Congress.

"How DO YOU adapt your Allen's to Spur?" was one of my first questions. "They are adapted to the strains and requirements of the work. Church Construction Costs $2 Billion

NEW YORK (N.Y.) — Construction of new Catholic facilities totaled nearly $2 billion to the past year, with institutional construction by far the largest item in the building budget.

Throughout the nation $107.5 million was spent on new schools, parochial schools included. The amount included $4.5 million for new schools, $5.5 million for renovations, and $2.5 million for new religious buildings.

"New building construction is the most important single element in the Catholic building program," said the primary author of the report, "and it is likely to remain so for many years to come. For example, for new parochial schools, $15 million was spent in the past year, in addition to $2 million for the new religious buildings.

The Catholic building program is a nationwide one. In the northern states, $6 million was spent on new schools, and $2 million for new religious buildings. In the southern states, $1 million was spent on new schools, and $2 million for new religious buildings.

Confused Catholic Right-Wingers

It is no secret that some who regard themselves as Catholics are often confused about issues such as the war in Iraq, the extent of pockets within the Church, and the meaning of the term "orthodox."

Are These God's Children?

A feature article in Harper's Magazine last year entitled "The Catholic's Bible." The opening sentence reads in part, "Are Catholic children?" The article is an in-depth analysis of the issues and challenges facing Catholic families today.

How's That Again?

As an atheist, I do not believe in divine providence!

Well, I may not be the first one to say, but it's true. I have no personal connection to divine providence. I do believe in human agency, and that is what I call providence. I believe that people can make their own path, and that their choices and actions can have a significant impact on their lives. I do not believe in a higher power who is in control of everything, and that is why I am an atheist.

The Discussion Of Birth Control

In the Oct. 31 Louis magazine there is an article that should be read by anyone who is interested in the question of birth control. It is entitled "The Talk-Back Birth Control Out of Patent." By Rev. John A. Broderick, S.J., Professor of Philosophy, stoneham, University of Notre Dame.

The Bishops have been very active in discouraging the use of birth control. Some of them have even refused to hear or to give absolution to women who have used birth control. The article by Rev. John A. Broderick, S.J., Professor of Philosophy, stoneham, University of Notre Dame, is a most important one for all of us to read.

His conclusion is that there is a "very serious need for informed and understanding cooperation among men and women who are involved in this question." He says that there is no reason why this cooperation need not be effective and that it would be good for everyone if it were to be effective.

In Father O'Brien's book, "The Birth Control Movement," he says that "there is no need for personal cooperation among men and women who are involved in this question." He says that this cooperation need not be effective and that it would be good for everyone if it were not effective.

The conclusion of Father O'Brien's book is very different from Father Broderick's. Father Broderick says that there is a very serious need for informed and understanding cooperation among men and women who are involved in this question. He says that there is no reason why this cooperation need not be effective and that it would be good for everyone if it were to be effective.

Humble Cure of Ars

By William II. Hueston

The ground I walk on, by George W. Shuster, Fae., New York. (Catholic) 250 pages. This book is a valuable contribution to the literature on St. John of the Cross, and is a mine of information for those who are interested in the history and development of the Carmelite Order.

The author, a Jesuit priest, has done much research in order to write this book. He has also consulted many important sources, including the Carmelite archives in Spain, the Jesuit archives in Rome, and the archives of the Spanish Inquisition.

The book is divided into three parts. The first part is an introduction to the life and works of St. John of the Cross. The second part is a biography of the saint, and the third part is a study of his writings.

The author's approach to the subject is both scholarly and personal. He is able to present a balanced view of the saint, and to shed light on some of the controversies that have arisen around his life and works.

The book is highly recommended for anyone interested in the history of the Carmelite Order, or in the life and teaching of St. John of the Cross.

Latest for Little Ones

PARKS—A new artist and a new style—this artist, one might say, was the same as the one who created the TV series “Parks.” This is the work of Father Keeling’s “Stories for God’s Little Ones.” With the new style of art, the series is now more appealing to young children.

Faith’s ‘Open House’ Closed Off by Wall

BERLIN - (NC) — When government closed East Germany’s border last week, it left open the possibility of East Germans who had left their homeland and sought refuge in Western Europe.

In the midst of the tension, a group of people gathered outside the border to pray, to sing, and to celebrate.

The Christian Brothers table wines sleep in the bottle as well as in the cask

Butting is a solid shock to a good table wine. The Brothers give their wines a little time to rest and improve in the bottle before they are shipped.

There are easier ways of making wine. The Brothers choose their wine long ago. They believe in an ancient tradition of excellence, and see no reason at all to change.
Harrison Is Top Town in Advocate Contest

By June Dever
What is the most successful campaign among Junior Youth Advocate Clubs in the state? Harrison has the best answer. Three of the four awards for best campaigns in the state are won by Harrison.

These were the captions that appeared in the Advocate's Young Adult section of the town each year in the three years from 1935 to 1937. The captions are all about the successful town's efforts to raise money for the community.

In the first place this year, the Harrison Young Adult Council placed first in a campaign to raise the money for the public library. The total amount raised was $500.

The second place went to a campaign of the same kind in the town of Stillwater. The total amount raised was $300.

The third place went to a campaign of the same kind in the town of St. John. The total amount raised was $150.

This year's campaign was conducted for the benefit of the town's public library.
