U.S. Supreme Court Agrees To Rule on School Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to rule on whether the daily recitation of a non-sectarian prayer in public schools constitutes a form of "religious instruction" prohibited by the Constitution.

It accepted an appeal by five parents who objected to the prayer being recited each day over the public address system of the New York City Schools.

They said the prayer was recited in the opening exercises of the public school at the end of the school day and that the prayer is recited in a non-sectarian manner.

The prayer is recited in a non-sectarian manner by a student who is appointed by the principal and is recited "in a form of state religion."

The Supreme Court is expected to hear oral arguments in the case in the spring.

Apostleship of Prayer

Sacred Heart Sunday a Success

The First "Sacred Heart Sunday," observed by the Apostleship of Prayer, was celebrated on the fourteenth Sunday after Trinity, at the Sacred Heart Cathedral. The event was inaugurated by the Reverend Bishop H. O. Coughlin, who pronounced the complete Apostleship of Prayer formula over the Cathedral congregation. A group of children from the Cathedral School and Sacred Heart School, sang in the Cathedral, and the children of Sacred Heart School, under the direction of the Reverend Fr. John Tuite, were the principal choir. A solo by Mr. William deMers, a member of the Cathedral Choir, was heard.

The program included an address by the President of the Pontifical Council for the propagation of the faith, Monsignor Raymond de Courcelle, and a speech by the Reverend Mr. O'Malley, Director of the Apostleship of Prayer in the Archdiocese of New York. The address by Monsignor de Courcelle was received with enthusiasm and appreciation.

The Sacred Heart Sunday was observed in other parts of the country as well, and the efforts made to promote the Apostleship of Prayer were highly successful.

CASTRO HERRING WAS TRULY RED

KINGSTON, Jamaica (NCP) — Fidel Castro has admitted that he has been influenced by the teachings of Karl Marx.

"I am a Marxist-Leonard, and I believe that he was the last of the marxist-leonardists," Mr. Castro said in a statement released today.

He also stated that he has studied the works of other Marxists, but he considers Marx to be the father of all the other Marxists.

Mr. Castro's statement comes after reports that he has been meeting with communist leaders from other countries.

Mr. Castro is the leader of the Cuban Revolution, which began in 1959 and has been in power ever since.

He is known for his socialist policies and has been a strong advocate of international communism.

Mr. Castro has also been a driving force behind the development of Cuba's economy.

His government has nationalized many industries, including the sugar industry, which is a major source of revenue for the country.

Mr. Castro's statement is likely to be met with mixed reactions from other communist leaders around the world.

Some may see it as evidence of a shift in Cuba's foreign policy, while others may view it as a reaffirmation of the country's commitment to socialism.

Regardless, Mr. Castro's words are likely to have significant implications for the future of Cuba and the communist movement as a whole.

Seminaries and Religious Special Targets in Poland

NCPC News Service

The need for religious education in Poland has been highlighted in recent reports. The reports indicate that the number of seminaries and religious schools has been declining in recent years, raising concerns about the future of religious education in the country.

The reports also note that the government has taken steps to support religious education, including providing funding for religious schools and seminaries. However, the reports suggest that more needs to be done to ensure the continued availability of religious education in Poland.

POLAND'S secularism, while anathema to the Church, has also been a source of significant concern for religious orders and institutions. The Church has been working to strengthen its presence in Poland, but the government's stance has made this task difficult.

The same situation exists in other countries in Eastern Europe, where the government has been actively involved in the education system. The drive for religious education in these countries has been met with resistance, and the future of religious education in these countries remains uncertain.

The 16-year-old girl who had her ear and a day and a half.

It was a case of any kind of bleeding, that I could see from behind the screen.

It was a case of a young man who had fallen from a tree and had the same kind of bleeding.

The family was at home, and the girl was bleeding very badly.

The girl had a cut on her forehead, and the bleeding was coming from there.

I went to her and gave her the necessary treatment.

I put a bandage on her forehead and told her to go to the hospital.

The family was very grateful, and the girl was able to continue her studies.

Seminary Centennial

Students and others as it is in Holy under the title of the 100th anniversary of the Seminary we resume publication.

Not even in his earliest arrangements could Father J. M. Glackin have bettered the humble beginning of his work. Nor could the student body, the drone of students, or the rank and file of the students have been more representative of the seminary spirit of the time.

FRANK FROM THE SEMINARY's Faculty and Students

Michael J. Glackin, New York, Milwaukee, Toronto, Paris, and Rome, the seminary's first president, represented the Advent, the Apostles, and the Brothers. Also, outstanding features of the Centennial celebration will include student and faculty reunions, the publication of the seminary's history, and a special Mass for the centennial.

My Father's Business

Latter and former for some time now have been making speeches, partly because of the 100th anniversary of the Seminary, partly because of the 100th anniversary of his own seminary, the University of Notre Dame. We have been hearing him speak about the business he learned from him.

If THERE is a role of the business people, the business community, the business sector of the economy, there is a role for the business people. They are the ones who create the wealth, who invest in the future, who make the decisions that affect our lives.

Stalin De-Kremlized

A short time ago, the Moscow correspondent of the New York Times reported that Stalin has been struck down with a severe illness. This is the first time in recent memory that such an announcement has been made in the Soviet Union.

The official USSR newspaper, Pravda, has reported that Stalin is suffering from a severe heart attack. The report is based on information from the Kremlin.

The situation in the Soviet Union is currently quite tense. The government has imposed strict controls over the media and the Internet in an effort to prevent any further dissemination of unconfirmed reports.

The future of Stalin remains uncertain at this time. However, it is clear that the policies he has implemented during his long rule will continue to shape the nation's development.

Vernon Yusko

Ivan Versus Johnny

Quite apart from our opposition to communism, we would like to see the United States and the Soviet Union work together to achieve a world free of religious persecution and discrimination.

Our policy has been to support the democratic governments of the world and to work for the peaceful resolution of conflicts.

The United States and the Soviet Union have a common interest in promoting international cooperation and stability.

Our government has been a leader in the global effort to prevent nuclear war and to reduce the risk of proliferation.

THE QUESTION BOX

Rev. J. Franklyn, S.J., and Rev. Robert Hayes, O.F.M., of the Student Community in Community, Burlington, N.J., have been asked to answer the following questions:

1. What is the future of communism in the world?

2. Will the United States and the Soviet Union ever work together?

3. How can we prevent nuclear war?

4. What is the role of religion in a world of secularism?

The answers are as follows:

1. The future of communism in the world is uncertain. The Soviet Union is facing economic and political challenges, and its influence is diminishing.

2. The United States and the Soviet Union have a common interest in promoting international cooperation and stability. However, they face significant differences and obstacles to working together.

3. To prevent nuclear war, we must work towards denuclearization, reduce the risk of proliferation, and promote international cooperation and stability.

4. Religion plays an important role in a world of secularism. It provides moral guidance and helps individuals and societies live according to ethical principles.

Praise, Thanksgiving, Our Role in Heaven

By Frank J. Imoto

Heaven belongs to the people generally because of it, those who have been less than perfect in this life, we know that they will have their homes, and those who have been more perfect in this life, we know that they will be angels — it is perhaps with a deep sense of appreciation that we wish to make this meeting of our Communities an occasion for thanking God for the great gift of heaven.

AROUND THE PARISH
Five-Month Sermon Series Will Attack Peru Problems

LIMA, Peru (RNS)—Prayers of the coming five months, the Archdiocese here, the sermon plight, and the workers,

Archbishop's address was that "Pray for Peru during this five-month period. God has told us to lift our hands; let us, however, lift them in prayer."

Archbishop Joseph Cardinal Moench of Washington, D.C., traveling in Peru for the first time, made the appeal during his homily at the opening of the series of sermons, which will be delivered from 9:30 to 10 a.m. on Sundays and 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays, at the Cathedral of Lima, as well as at the Catholic University and several other churches.

Archbishop Moench said that the series of sermons, which will be given by priests from the Archdiocese of Peru, will focus on the economic, social, and political problems facing the country. He called for a renewed commitment to the principles of the teachings of Jesus Christ, which he said are the cornerstone of the Church's social teachings.

The archbishop also addressed the issue of economic inequality, which he said is a major problem in Peru. He called for a greater focus on the needs of the poor and the marginalized, and for a greater commitment to social justice.

The series of sermons is being sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of Peru (NC) and the Worker's Section of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of Peru (NC). The series is part of a larger effort to promote social justice and to address the issues facing Peru.

The archbishop concluded his homily by encouraging the faithful to pray for Peru and its people, and to work towards a more just and equitable society.
Poetry is a Climate
A Poet in New York's Financial District
By Antoinette Tomassini
NEW YORK — A five-day-long office high in the Dan and Bradstreet building, one looks out on old St. Peter's Church and the face of the Pulaski Bridge. In the office the clutter of typewriters contrasts with the gentle voice of a poet. A. E. Sullivan, poet and printer, is hard at work here. Sullivan, now 59, has been writing poetry for nearly 50 years, and he says he has written over 20,000 poems. His work has been published in numerous books, periodicals, and anthologies. He is known for his lyrical, evocative poetry that often reflects his own personal experiences and observations.

The Movie Industry And the U.S. Bishops
By William H. Mooring
Many scholars among Bible-study groups and among lay-people alike have been alarmed by the bishop's concern for the motion pictures. The reason is that the Church insists that the bishops are the representatives of the faithful people of God. If, as is claimed, the bishops are the spokesmen for the people, then they are to be responsible, in some way, for the way in which the movies are being made. The bishops are the spokesmen for the people, and the people are the Church. Therefore, if the bishops have a problem with the movies, then the people have a problem with the movies. If the bishops have a problem with the movies, then the people have a problem with the movies. If the bishops have a problem with the movies, then the people have a problem with the movies. If the bishops have a problem with the movies, then the people have a problem with the movies. If the bishops have a problem with the movies, then the people have a problem with the movies.

How are you doing with your Christmas shopping? If you are at all placing a full order this year, you may want to consider the fact that "You can buy a lot of things" or "Every gift you give is a help to the millions who need it" and take advantage of this fact by giving your Christmas shopping a bit of a lift.

For an article like this, the "Play the Thing" in the headline should be interpreted as an instruction to "Play the Thing" in a particular way. The "Christmas" is intended to emphasize the season of giving.

SOMETIMES the department stores are equipped with artificial trees and "ocean" scents so you can imagine yourself in the tropics. Sometimes they have live plants and flowers, and are simply not able to help themselves. Here are some tips to have a Christmas that's worth remembering.

The Importance of Church Law Schools

Stresses the Obligations of Lawyers and Judges

To Sponsors

By His Honorable

The Very Reverend

Msgr. William F. Hutton, O.F.M.,
Chancellor, Diocese of Paterson, N.J.

To the Students of Church Law Schools:

The foundation of every established society is based on the tenets of the Law.

It is the duty of each individual to uphold the principles of the Law as laid down by our Holy Father in Christ Jesus.

In order to fulfill this duty, it is necessary for all members of the legal profession to have a thorough understanding of Church Law.

Therefore, I urge the students of Church Law Schools to place a high value on their studies and to strive for excellence in their field of endeavor.

Let us all work together to maintain the integrity of the legal profession and uphold the principles of our faith.

Sincerely yours,

Msgr. William F. Hutton, O.F.M.
Holy Father Stresses Christian Education

As the Rev. Father John X. Wynn, O.F.M., provincial of the Franciscan Province of the State of New York, traveled to the nation's capital, he said there is a need to be alert to the ethical and moral implications of technology.

"The issue of technology is not just a technical one," he said. "It is a moral one. We must be aware of the potential of technology to shape our society and our world.

At the heart of the issue is the question of how technology "reflects the values of our culture," he said. "We must be careful not to let technology shape our values, but rather to let our values guide the development of technology.

Wynn said that the Franciscan Province is currently working on a number of educational projects related to technology.

The province is working with a number of schools and universities to develop programs in the fields of computer science and information technology.

In addition, the province is working with a number of religious organizations to develop programs that will help people understand the impact of technology on their lives.

The province is also working with a number of government agencies to develop policies that will ensure the ethical use of technology.

Wynn said that the province is committed to working with all sectors of society to develop a technology that is "responsive to the needs of our culture and our world."
Religious Affairs Office
Cross of Christ in Poland

JNCV News Service

Communist Poland has two major crises for lightening its plans for the Church— the National Office for Religious Affairs in Warsaw and the local provincial and town officials. Their approaches are sometimes different, but the goal in the same. A plan, however, is that both are completely included, as well as the national office itself, the government, and any vestiges of the Church that may be found in local communities.

In practice, however, the approach of the government is that the Church is not a separate entity but is a part of society. The government sees the Church as a tool for social and economic development. However, the Church sees itself as a spiritual entity, independent of the state.

In the past, the Church has been able to maintain its influence and to a certain extent, its independence. However, the current government is more aggressive in its anti-religious policies. The Church has been accused of being a dangerous organization, and its members have been subjected to harassment and persecution.

The Church is currently working to maintain its influence and to work with the government to find a way to coexist. The Church has been able to maintain its influence to some extent, but it is clear that the government is not going to back down on its anti-religious policies.

In conclusion, the relationship between the Church and the government remains complex and uncertain. The Church is working to maintain its influence and to work with the government to find a way to coexist. However, the government is not going to back down on its anti-religious policies.
