Move to Develop Lay Leadership

BY JOSEPH E. THOMAS

Jesuits and Lay people at the Archbishop's School issued a statement this week that a group of lay people will be established at the school. The lay people will take the place of the Jesuits in the school's administrative and educational capacity. This is a significant step forward in the development of lay leadership in the school.

RELEVANT was the formation of the Educational Advisory Committee of the school. This committee is composed of lay people who will advise the Jesuits on educational matters. The committee is made up of lay people who are experienced in education and have a deep understanding of the needs of students. They will be responsible for making recommendations to the Jesuits on educational policy and curriculum.

The establishment of the Educational Advisory Committee is a testament to the school's commitment to developing lay leadership. The Jesuits have been working closely with lay people for many years, and this committee is a natural extension of that collaboration. The Jesuits will continue to play a role in the school's administration, but the lay people will take on more responsibility in educational matters.

The establishment of this committee is an important step in the school's development. It reflects a growing recognition of the importance of lay leadership in education. The school is committed to preparing its students to be active and engaged citizens, and this requires a commitment to developing lay leaders who can contribute to the school's mission.

The establishment of this committee is not just an academic exercise. It is a practical step towards preparing students to be leaders in their communities. The Jesuits and the Educational Advisory Committee will be working together to ensure that the school's educational programs are relevant and effective.

In conclusion, the establishment of the Educational Advisory Committee is a significant step forward in the development of lay leadership at the school. It reflects a growing recognition of the importance of lay leadership in education and a commitment to preparing students to be active and engaged citizens. The Jesuits and the Educational Advisory Committee will work together to ensure that the school's educational programs are relevant and effective.

SANTIAGO, Chile — A deformed girl is forced to live in a small room with her family of eight. The girl, like many others in Chile, has nowhere to go. The only solution is for the bishops of Chile to sell lands that belong to the Church.

In a pastoral letter, the bishops appealed for the land to be used for humanitarian purposes, particularly in the West Bank and neighboring areas. The letter calls for the sale of lands to the local population to help alleviate poverty and hunger.

Thinking With The Church

Editor:

Your editorial "Preparation of the Body" is of particular interest, not only to me, but also to many others in our Diocese. To the credit of our Christian education programs, we have made notable advances in this area. While admitting a theoretical note in the direction of this meeting, I know that the Scripture is not to be reduced to a mere pedagogical exercise. On the contrary, the Scripture is to be studied with reverence, for it prescribes the duty of not only the religious but of all Christians who desire to live holy lives. The Scripture is a living Word, and its true meaning can only be understood by the faithful. The Church has long been aware of the importance of Scripture study, and it has always been a part of our religious education. However, in recent years, we have seen a decline in the interest of young people in this subject. Many are not even aware of the existence of these programs, and those who are, are not always committed to them. The Church must take a firm stand against this trend, and provide adequate resources to support our young people in their study of Scripture. Only then can we hope to see a revival of interest in this important area of our faith.

Clara Writers Missed the Point

Editor:

Your expanded Letters to the Editor column has led to an increase of many readers, including myself. I have been extremely interested in your article on "Totalitarianism," and I wish to express my sentiments on this subject. I believe that the concept of totalitarianism is a serious threat to our way of life. It is a system that seeks to control and manipulate every aspect of human existence. The Church must be vigilant in its efforts to combat this evil, and to protect its members from its influence. It is my hope that you will continue to devote your efforts to this important cause.

God Loves You... Native Bishops

BY BISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN

What a change that takes place in the missionary work of the Church when you have a native bishop! It is true that the Roman Catholic Church has always been established by God. In the case of the Church, he should be the one to choose the bishop. The Pope has given us a wise and valid reason for this. It is because of this reason, and because of the importance of the Church, that we need a native bishop. The Pope cannot go to a foreign country and choose a bishop for them. It is a serious matter, and it should be handled with care. In the case of a native bishop, the Pope should be the one to choose him. The Pope has given us a valid reason for this. Stamps, Please

The Missionary Society of the Holy Cross is the missionary society of the Church. It is the society of all those who are united in the will of God, who work for the salvation of souls, and who live in the spirit of the Gospel. This society is the representative of the Church in the world, and it is responsible for the propagation of the Faith. Trading Stamps

Trading stamps are a popular form of extra income. They are used by many people to save money on their grocery bills. However, there are some potential drawbacks to using trading stamps. First of all, they do not always offer the best deals. Some stores may offer better discounts through coupon books or sales. Additionally, it can be time-consuming to collect enough stamps for a significant purchase. It is important to weigh the benefits and drawbacks before deciding whether or not to participate in a trading stamp program.

Padre" Juan" Tells of Mission Rigors

By FRANK HUPFER
NEW PROVIDENCE - Juan, the young Indian in the story of one of the missions who has broken his promise to his family, was born Juan Montalvo in the city of St. James, as "The Indian in a Red Suit" tells it. He was sold to his master, a slave trader, when he was eight years old. He was brought from the territory of his foster parents, the Misis, near the city of St. James, to the parish of St. James, where he was bought by a slave trader at the age of 14. He was then sent to work on a cotton plantation near St. James, as a slave. He was later, however, sold to another plantation owner and worked as a slave there until he was 21.

Juan could well be a Padre, "the young Indian in the story of one of the missions who has broken his promise to his family," says Professor Frank Hupfer, of the University of New Jersey, who has been studying the missionaries in New Jersey for the past five years.

The Padre, as Hupfer calls him, was a young man of the Misis people, who lived in a small village near St.
James. He was the son of a chief and was considered a valuable member of his community. He was educated at the mission school and was very active in the missionary work.

Hupfer says that the Padre was a man of great intelligence and was able to speak several Indian languages.
He was also a skilled hunter and was able to provision his family well.

What Makes an April Fool?

In April Fool's Day, there are a number of ways to make others believe they have been fooled. Here are some fun ideas:

1. Place a fake plastic shopping bag on a person's head and tell them it's a real bag.
2. Take a picture of someone wearing a hat and label it as them wearing a monocle.
3. Write a fake headline on a newspaper and place it in a public area.
4. Replace the wheels on a bicycle with large, soft, rubber balls.
5. Hide a toy rabbit in a neighbor's garden and let the owners search for it.
6. Paint a wall with a large, fake tattoo and let people assume it's real.
7. Make a fake phone call to someone and pretend you're a doctor or a police officer.
8. Create a fake email account and send yourself a funny message.
9. Place a fake phone number on a bus or train and let people try to call it.
10. Place a fake amount of money in someone's pocket and let them think they've found a huge sum.

New Senate Bill Would Revamp 'National Origins' Quota System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today held its first hearing on a bill that would end the much-maligned "national origins" quota system, a system that has been in place since 1924.

The bill, introduced by Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, would set aside the annual quota of immigrants based on national origins and allow for a more diversified and balanced immigration system.

Kennedy said the bill would help ensure a more just and equitable distribution of immigrants, as well as promote economic and cultural diversity.

"This bill is a step in the right direction," Kennedy said. "It will help ensure that our country remains a land of opportunity for all people, regardless of their national origin."
