Catholic Church
Seek N.J. Homes for Cuban Youths

By ANNE MAE BRADLEY

NEWARK — Twenty-two Cuban refugee children, who made their first landfall in the United States without adult escort, were day at Newark Airport from Miami Friday afternoon.

THEY ARE the first of an unknown number of children who will be placed by Newark’s Catholic Charities as a result of an offer by St. Mary’s Hospital, N.J., to receive and care for the children whom they have been named by New-ark’s St. Mary’s Hospital.

The youngsters have been placed by St. Mary’s Hospital, N.J., to receive and care for the children who are expected to arrive in the next few weeks. They are all boys and girls, ages 6 to 17, from Cuba, where they have been living in the care of their parents.

The children will be placed in families of two or more children, who have been selected by the Catholic Charities Bureau of Newark’s Special Education Program.

the Catholic Charities Bureau of Newark’s Special Education Program.

In accordance with St. Mary’s Hospital policy, which requires placement of children in homelike families, the children will be placed in families who have been selected by the Catholic Charities Bureau of Newark’s Special Education Program.

Supreme Court Hears Arguments on

NEW YORK TIMES—New York City's nonpublic schools are wholly separate institutions from those operated by the public schools, the state's highest court held yesterday. In a 5-2 decision, the Court ruled that New York City's board of education has the right to demand that nonpublic schools provide religious instruction in the public schools.

The case, New York City Board of Education v. Jewish Children's School, Inc., involves a challenge by the school to the requirement that it provide religious instruction to both Jewish and non-Jewish students in the public schools.

The court's decision was made by Chief Justice Thomas C. Goldstein, Jr., and Justices Richard A. Jones, Philip J. Curran, and John F. Kennedy. Justice Richard W. Solow dissented.

The school, located in Brooklyn, claimed that the requirement violated the First Amendment's establishment clause. The court disagreed, saying that the requirement was necessary to ensure equal access to public schools and to prevent discrimination based on religious beliefs.

The case was argued by Mr. Stanley S. Cohen, and was heard by the court on April 30.
Jewish Leader's Hopes for Council:

'I Would Like to See Great Outpouring of Warmth'

GEORGE GOREN

The voice of the native Orthodox was definitely in evidence yesterday toward B'rit Ol, II, when the Interfaith Council for Human Relations organized the first annual meeting of its council.

But when the Jewish community was represented by Rabbi Henry Solomon, executive director of the Anti-Defamation League, it was the minority voice that spoke.

Sophisticated in its treatment of the issues of the world, the council is one of the nation's premier interfaith organizations.

Rabbi Solomon, an attorney and community leader, spoke on behalf of the council.

He began his address by saying that the council was founded in 1937 to promote human relations and that its primary objective is to bring people together to work toward a better world.

He emphasized the council's work in the area of human rights and said that the council has done much to promote understanding and cooperation between people of all faiths.

He said that the council has been successful in bringing people together to work toward a better world.

Unethical Practices Indicated in Survey

NEW YORK (AP) — "Unethical practices in the conduct of health care services" is a survey report's conclusion that many hospitals and doctors have practices which are unethical.

This was a finding of a survey conducted by the Health Research Group, which is a non-profit organization that examines hospital practices. The survey, which involved a random sample of hospitals and doctors, revealed that many of them engaged in practices that could be considered unethical.

The survey found that some hospitals charged patients for services that were not actually performed. Others were found to be overcharging for services that were already covered by insurance. Some doctors were also found to be prescribing unnecessary medications.

SOUTH DAKOTA — Governor Richard J. Hughes delivered the principal speech at the annual convention of the Catholic Church's Southern Dakota diocese in Rapid City last week. The Governor addressed the gathering on the importance of the Church's role in the state, and the need for cooperation between Catholics and other faiths.

Hughes said that the Church should be a force for good in the state, and that it should be a source of unity and stability. He also spoke about the need for a greater understanding between Catholics and other faiths, and the importance of working together for the betterment of the state.

Answer Your Critics, Hughes Tells Forum

NEWARK — Governor Richard J. Hughes addressed the annual meeting of the Catholic Church's New Jersey diocese in Newark last week. The Governor said that he was pleased with the progress made in the last year, and that he believed that the Church had a major role to play in the future.

Hughes said that the Church had a duty to educate the public about the importance of the Church's role in society, and that it was essential that the Church continued to work for the betterment of the state.

He also spoke about the need for a greater understanding between Catholics and other faiths, and the importance of working together for the betterment of the state.

School Aid Study Panel Set

HORSESHOE BAY, Texas — The School Aid Study Panel, which was established to investigate the adequacy of the state's school aid program, will meet here today.

The panel, which is composed of five members, was appointed by the Governor in an effort to find ways to improve the state's school aid program. The panel's recommendations will be submitted to the Governor in the near future.

The panel consisting of five members, is made up of three members who are elected by the legislature, and two members who are appointed by the Governor.

The panel will meet today to discuss the adequacy of the state's school aid program, and to make recommendations to the Governor.

The panel's report will be submitted to the Governor in the near future.
News From Latin America

Violence Follows Cuban Break

CUBA - Strikers at a Cuban steel mill last week cut off power to a nearby neighborhood and clashed with police last week, according to news accounts from Havana.

The steel mill workers were protesting what they called unfair working conditions and low wages. The clashes with police resulted in numerous injuries and some arrests.

The situation in Cuba remains tense, with the government cracking down on dissent.

Food Aid Arrives in Ecuador

CASSIS, Venezuela - Food aid has arrived in the town of Cassis, which is located in the south of Venezuela.

The food aid, which includes rice, flour, and sugar, is intended to help families affected by the recent drought in the region.

The food aid was provided by the United Nations World Food Programme and was distributed by local authorities.

Ecuador's Constable

Ecuador's Constable, Elena Santos, was appointed as head of the police department in the capital city of Quito.

Santos is a career police officer with over 20 years of experience. She replaces the previous Constable, who resigned earlier this year.

The appointment is seen as an effort to improve police efficiency and public safety in Quito.

Legends of Latin America

Several legends from Latin America have been reported in the news.

One legend concerns a hidden treasure in the Andes Mountains, believed to be guarded by a magical creature.

Another legend involves a ghostly figure that haunts the ruins of an ancient city in the Yucatan Peninsula.

These legends continue to capture the imagination of people across the region.
The Path to Peace

N. C. W. C. — The National Conference of Catholic Women in the United States has called a National Conference of Catholic Women to be held in New York City on May 21-23, 1962. The conference will be a national gathering of Catholic women from all parts of the country. It is expected that the conference will attract thousands of participants from all walks of life.

The theme of the conference is "Liturgy and the Family," and the keynote speaker will be Archbishop John J. Sheely of New York. Other speakers will include Sr. Mary Joseph, O.S.F.; Sr. Mary John, O.S.F.; and Sr. Mary Joseph, O.S.F.

The conference will include workshops on liturgical prayer, family life, and the role of the Catholic woman in the church and in society.

Admission to the conference is $5.00 per person, which includes all meals and lodging. The deadline for registration is May 1, 1962. For more information, contact the National Office of the N. C. W. C., 1401 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.
Extreme Right: The Real Fight

By JOSEPH A. BREIS

'Not precisely what any other quarter would call a free ride; James Olney's Of Concurring Visions is a thoroughgoing tour de force on the subject of 'concordant voices of the right.'

In Continental Myth, Olney noted that "calling someone a 'concordant voice' was the intention of a friend." Of course, to be a member of this particular club is not to imply friendship, but rather a kind of

NIGHT WORLD. In the Right's "Stalin's" words, life took on the shape of an anti-communist crusade. Olney notes how "the Right's" rhetoric was shaped by the very people it was attacking. Ideas and phrases took on a life of their own, transforming their meanings and becoming symbols of a larger struggle. This was especially true of the idea of "concordant voices."

Olney writes: "For the Right's success in the Cold War is more than a matter of talking about the communists. It is a matter of talking about what they stand for. The Right is not about communism; it is about anti-communism."

Briefing Laymen
On the Council

BY ED GRANT
An Advance News-Article

NEWARK — On Oct. 15 the Newark Valenz, Earnest members of the Catholic Auxiliary Laymen's Council will hold their first session in which they will discuss ways in which laymen may be associated with the central councils of the Church in their own parishes to work for the physical and spiritual advancement of their communities. It is the hope of the council to provide for the aid of the clergy in the parishes and to work in conjunction with other laymen's councils in the diocese.

THE council will meet at St. Ignatius Church, 8th and Mulberry St., at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 26. The sessions will continue on the 2nd and 4th Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. The opening session will be devoted to a study of the constitution and by-laws of the Auxiliary Laymen's Council.

The purpose of the council is to provide a means for the laymen to become more closely associated with the work of the Church and to assist in the promotion of the spiritual and moral development of the faithful. The council will also work with the clergy in the parishes to provide special aids and facilities for the spiritual and moral development of the faithful.

The council will be open to all laymen who are members of the diocesan auxiliary laymen's councils. The membership will be determined by the local auxiliary laymen's councils in each parish.

The council will meet on the 2nd and 4th Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. The opening session will be devoted to a study of the constitution and by-laws of the Auxiliary Laymen's Council.

For further information, contact the diocesan auxiliary laymen's council at 200 N. Main St., Newark, N.J. 07102.
A Time for Serious Thinking

The picture shows the home of Paul Badger, a writer. The address is 413 Maple Street. The house is yellow with a large garden in front. There is a large sign on the front lawn that says "Welcome to Our Home." The house is surrounded by trees and is located on a quiet street. The weather is sunny and warm.

The article mentions that the writer is a well-known author and has written many books on various topics. The writer is also known for his work in social justice and human rights. The article goes on to discuss the writer's latest book, which is about the importance of understanding and empathy in today's world.

The article ends with a quote from the writer: "We live in a world where difference is feared, and we must work to bridge these differences and create a more inclusive society."

Dispelled Doubts

by ed woodward

Last winter below. Hall announced the big- gest year ever for baseball. Doubts have been voiced as to whether there would be 15 teams in the new professional baseball league being set up by Hall and others. But the winter of wondering is over. The league's potential has been confirmed. It is a very good baseball league. In the future, there will be no need for the doubt that there will be a baseball league since Hall has given the world what it wants. The league will be successful as long as there is a strong desire for baseball.

FUTURE, however, looks to be a very bright one for baseball. The league will be very competitive. It is a very good league.
Science Fair Shows 400 Entries

BOY OUTFRONT -- More than 200 students are expected to participate in the annual Science Fair for Catholic Schools which opened April 4 and will close April 6. Awards were announced April 7.

This year's fair featured projects exhibited by students of elementary schools of the Diocese of Newark and was made possible through the cooperation of the Religious Education Office, Diocese of Newark and the St. Thomas Aquinas Society.

The Real Meaning Of World Monk

By NILOE W. PULFORD

... We were in the minaret of a newly built Sufi mosque in Egypt. The women gathered there for prayer. The atmosphere was religious. The women prayed there for two hours. The men prayed there for two hours. The women prayed there for two hours. The men prayed there for two hours...

Mark Anniversary
Of ‘Mercy Train’

The 75th anniversary of the ‘Mercy Train’ was celebrated by one of its original founders, Mrs. Frederick C. Stoloff, and the New Jersey State of the Order of Mercy.

The ‘Mercy Train’ began in 1847 when Stolloff’s father, Rev. Dr. Frederick C. Stoloff, a Baptist minister, started a mission to provide food and shelter for the homeless in New York City. The mission was named after Jesus’ parable of the Good Samaritan, who helped a man who had been beaten and left for dead on the side of the road.

Stolloff grew up in the mission and later became a Baptist minister himself. He continued the work of his father by establishing new missions in New York City and other cities across the country.

The ‘Mercy Train’ became a model for other missions and organizations that provide assistance to those in need. Today, there are many organizations that continue the work of the ‘Mercy Train’ by providing food, shelter, and other services to those who are homeless.
