R.I. Classes Are Limited to 40 Pupils

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) -- The Providence diocese school board has ordered that diocesan boards of education limit the number of pupils to 40 per school for grades one through nine.

The order, which affects about 70 schools, was issued after a survey revealed that classrooms were being overcrowded, with the number of pupils over the legal limit in about one-third of the schools.

The survey also found that the average class size was 34 pupils, with some classes reaching 45 or more.

The board cited safety and educational considerations as reasons for the limit, which will go into effect next fall.

Bishops' Catechists Red Threat

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic--Bishops Catechists in the Dominican Republic have warned that their work may be threatened by a new law on religious instruction.

The bishops, in a statement released today, said the new law could lead to a loss of freedom for Catholics in teaching about their faith.

The bishops also called on the government to ensure that the new law does not interfere with religious education.

The United Nations has expressed concern about the proposed new law, and has asked the government to ensure that it does not violate human rights.

Preparatory Commission Submits Council Proposals

VATICAN CITY, May 30--The United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference has moved up its schedule for this year's meeting, to September 28, in order to give the preparatory commission more time to work.

The preparatory commission, which has been working on the draft of the council's agenda, is expected to continue its work until September 15.

The council, which is composed of representatives from member states, is scheduled to meet from September 28 to October 24.

These meetings are expected to focus on several key issues, including the global debt crisis, the role of the United Nations in promoting peace and security, and the need for greater cooperation in addressing environmental challenges.

The preparatory commission will be responsible for preparing the agenda for the council's plenary meetings, as well as for organizing and conducting its subsidiary bodies.

The council is an intergovernmental body established by the United Nations Charter, and is responsible for considering questions relating to international monetary and financial matters.

The preparatory commission is an important body in the United Nations system, as it plays a key role in ensuring the timely and effective preparation of the council's work.

In order to support the preparatory commission's work, the United Nations has established a secretariat, which provides support to the commission's activities, including the organization of meetings and the preparation of documents.

The secretariat is led by a secretary-general, who is appointed by the United Nations General Assembly.

In this role, the secretary-general is responsible for ensuring that the preparatory commission has the resources and support it needs to carry out its duties effectively.

The preparatory commission's meetings are open to the public, and their proceedings are recorded and made available to the public.
Kennedy Reaffirms Population View

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy last week reaffirmed his stand that immigration to the United States is a problem to be sought rather than avoided, in a speech at St. John's Seminary.

The President expressed his views in an interview with the New York Times which he conducted by telephone. "We must face up to the problem of immigration," he said, "and I believe the best way to do this is to allow a reasonable number of people into the country, but to see to it that they are properly checked and that their entry is not too rapid."

On his visit to St. John's, the President said that the church is a "national institution" and that its role in society is "essential." He also discussed the importance of religious freedom and the role of the Church in a democratic society.

The President's speech was well received by the public and generated a lot of interest in the issue of immigration policy. However, some critics have questioned the President's stance and argued that his policies may not be sufficient to address the challenges posed by immigration.

Challenge to Prosecutors

For 14 years of age some New Jersey prosecutors have been complained of various charges against them, which are like others which they could bring against the prosecution service. No man on the statute books was ever so arraigned, brought to trial, and yet not a single case has ever been cleared of its offenses. This is the way the year has ended, the Assembly has passed a good law, but it has been bottled up in the Senate. If no special individual act, the road will be cleared of the bill without a dissenting vote, 15-0.

A Catholic Vacation

The summer season is God's annual gift to man for relaxation and recreation. It is one of the most beautiful seasons of the year. It is the time to expect men to turn, to not work. If a man is he going to have a holiday, it is one in which they could bring against the prosecution service. No man on the statute books was ever so arraigned, brought to trial, and yet not a single case has ever been cleared of its offenses. This is the way the year has ended, the Assembly has passed a good law, but it has been bottled up in the Senate. The Saints And 2 Plus 2
By JOSEPH A. BRIND

It's a better bet: the birds are in a great mood, and I am at peace, as I will remain until the end of the year. The birds are the best companions a man can have. They can be seen everywhere, from the city to the countryside. They are always friendly and always beautiful. They are a true sign of God's love for us.

The box score was a 2-2 tie. The Saints had a 2-0 lead at one point in the game, but the opposing team came back to tie it up. The game was played in the beautiful St. Patrick's Park, with a large crowd of spectators watching.

The Saints' star player was John Smith, a young and promising talent. He scored two goals for the Saints and was a key player in the game. He is a future star in the soccer world.

The Saints' fans were very happy with the result of the game. They have high hopes for the team and are looking forward to see them perform in the future.

POPE EMPHASIZES RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN EMPLOYMENT, RELIGION

Pope Emphasizes the Relationship Between Employment, Religion

The Pope emphasized the relationship between employment and religion in a speech today. He said that religious leaders should encourage workers to make a spiritual connection with their jobs, and that employers should create an environment where employees can grow in their faith.

One Christian organization has already taken the Pope's advice to heart. The organization has created a program where employees can participate in religious activities during work hours. This has led to increased productivity and job satisfaction among employees.

However, some employers have resisted this approach, arguing that it doesn't fit with modern business practices. But the Pope believes that by integrating religion and work, businesses can become more successful and更有竞争力．

The Pope's message is not just for religious leaders, but for all people of faith. He encouraged everyone to find ways to connect their work with their faith, whether it be through prayer, meditation, or other spiritual practices.

This message resonated with many attendees of the convention, who saw it as a way to connect their faith with their everyday lives. They were encouraged to continue to seek ways to integrate their work with their faith, and to strive for a more spiritual workplace.

The Pope concluded his speech by reminding everyone that religion is not just about spiritual matters, but about how we treat each other in our daily lives. He encouraged everyone to be kind, compassionate, and respectful to their co-workers, regardless of their religious beliefs.
