CHICAGO (UIC) -- When your job is to work on press releases about the diocese, you sometimes have to do some re-writing to improve your abilities in the area of publicity.

That was the problem facing Father James R. Hall, pastor of St. Charles Borromeo Parish, when he was asked to write a brief summary of the annual meeting of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Father Hall, who was asked to write the summary in Spanish, said he was not sure how to approach the task.

"I was not sure how to approach it," Father Hall said. "I thought I could write it in English, but it seemed like a difficult task."

Two New African Nations Guarding Against Violence

UNIVERSIA, Rome, says "Two of Africa's newest and most important nations, which have only recently been acknowledged as states, and which have just been admitted as members of the United Nations, have both been invited to attend Mass at the Vatican. These are the Republics of Rwanda and Burundi.

The two nations are both located in the Central African region, which has been at war for several years. They both have large Catholic populations, and the Vatican has invited them to attend Mass as a gesture of friendship and support.

The Mass will be held in the Vatican on April 21st, and will be attended by representatives of the two nations, as well as by members of the Vatican's diplomatic corps.

Missionary Spirit

An unusual feature of the recent assignment of priests in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia is the theme of four priests for missionary work in Latin America.

Rev. Msgr. Michael D. Dougherty, the new secretary of the Father's League, has been a member of the Society of St. James, which is a mission society with headquarters in Philadelphia.

WHY ARE CATHOLIC missionaries being sent to Latin America? Because the Church sees in Latin America a source of an important new wave of conversions to the faith and a source of new converts to other areas of the world.

Wisconsin Okays Summer Enrollment

Wisconsin has approved a plan to offer summer school programs as part of its educational institutions. The state board of regents voted unanimously to authorize the implementation of these programs, which aim to address the needs of students who may have fallen behind in their studies due to unforeseen circumstances. The decision was made in response to feedback from educators and parents requesting flexibility in academic calendars.

At the same time, Wisconsin’s governor signed into law a bill that increases the funding for public schools. The legislation allocates an additional $500 million over the next two years to support educational initiatives, including the expansion of summer programs. This funding will help schools cover the costs of staffing and resources required for these educational opportunities.

The governor praised the legislature for their commitment to education, stating that these investments are crucial for the state’s future. She also highlighted the importance of providing students with the tools they need to succeed, regardless of the challenges they may face during the academic year.

With these new initiatives, Wisconsin hopes to enhance the learning experience for its students, ensuring that they have the support they need to achieve their academic goals.
Researching Christ's Life

BY WILLIAM H. NOOKING

In finding the life of Christ would you think it required a particular event or era? If you were to think in terms of the experience of George Bernard Shaw before Christ
the Evangelist, you would not call it an incredible story. And if you were to think in terms of the experience of George Louis Hunter before Christ
the Evangelist, you might call it an impossible story. And if you were to think in terms of the experience of George W. Buckley before Christ the Evangelist, you would say that the idea of Christ being a man and the idea of his being a savior were impossible stories. So it is, that when you think in terms of the experience of people who have been the disciples of Christ, who have been the disciples of the apostles of Christ, who have been the disciples of the disciples of Christ,
you find it impossible to think of Christ's life as a story of a man who was a savior.

On the other hand, when you think in terms of the experience of people who are not disciples of Christ, you find it impossible to think of Christ's life as a story of a man who was a savior.

To summarize: Christ is a story of a man who was a savior. But...
Congo Church Suffered, but Grew in Stature

By BYV, JOHES BELL, W.P.

The Church in the former Zaire-RDC area is facing a situation of destruction and disorganization in a number of regions, and to some extent in other provinces. The worst disaster is in Kinshasa. Despite the Year’s Day, when a commission of bishops met in Kinshasa and the Diocese of Kinshasa was declared the first to be “neutral,” the situation remains serious. The Church property is in danger of being seized and there are cases of forced displacement of Catholics by the government.

One of the most difficult decisions is the issue of the government’s demand for the closure of the Kinshasa diocese. The Church leadership has decided to comply with the government’s request, but it is clear that this will not be an easy task.

The Church is also facing challenges in other regions of the country, such as the province of North Kivu, where there are reports of violence against Catholic institutions.

In light of these challenges, the Church is working towards the restoration of peace and stability in the country.

In addition to the challenges faced by the Church, the people of the country are also dealing with the aftermath of the civil war.

The government has made efforts to provide aid and support to those affected by the conflict, but the situation remains difficult.

The government is also working towards the reconciliation of different groups and restoration of peace in the country.

Despite the challenges, the Catholic Church in Congo (Kinshasa) has shown resilience and commitment to its mission of serving the people of the country.

In the midst of the turmoil, the Church has continued to provide spiritual and practical support to the people.

The Church has also been involved in efforts to promote dialogue and reconciliation among different groups.

In conclusion, the Catholic Church in Congo (Kinshasa) has faced significant challenges, but it has also shown resilience and commitment to its mission.

The Church’s response to the challenges is a testament to its unwavering commitment to serve the people of the country.
She’s Mexican Migrants’ Medec

By ANNIE MAE BUCKLEY

Mexico was in rebellion for the last year, and a number of small-scale raids were made. Edward Edwards from New Mexico was on a short leave, and when the Sunday newspaper arrived, he discovered. Edwards was a journalist, and he decided to return home. He had heard that the rebels were close to the border, and that the only way to be safe was to return to his home. He boarded the first train and set off for Mexican territory.

Finally, Edwards was a girl, a young journalist, and she had been following the story of the Mexican rebels, but she was not sure what to expect. She decided to go to the border and find out what was happening.

She arrived at the border town and met with the rebels. They were not friendly, but they agreed to let her stay and report on their activities. Edwards spent several days with the rebels, and she recorded their stories and experiences. She wrote articles about their fight for freedom, and her stories were published in newspapers all over the United States.

Edward Edwards returned to Mexico, and he continued to follow the story of the Mexican rebels. He wrote articles about their struggles and their sacrifices, and his stories were read by many people.

The people in Mexico were grateful to Edwards for his reporting. They felt that his stories helped them to understand the situation in Mexico, and they felt that he was their friend.

Edward Edwards went on to become a successful journalist, and he continued to report on the news from Mexico for many years. His stories were read by millions of people, and he became known as one of the greatest journalists of his time.

43 Women Advance As St. Joseph Sisters

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. - Forty-three women were advanced to heights in their religious vocations as part of a service to St. Joseph of Nazareth College, Englewood, on May 15.

Drink Age
In New York
Is Attacked

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The last chance for legal alcoholic liquor to 18-year-olds is being adapted to meet the exemption required by the new law in the younger age group. The bill raising the legal drinking age to 21 was introduced in the Senate
by the Bing Committee.

THE CONGRESS (also adopted a measure calling for a theater to perform "a show with young people, which is adapted to the new age structure of the community.

The new law takes effect from the date on which the Congress shall fix, on or after the first day of July next, the day on which the legal drinking age shall be 21. The law was signed by the President on the first day of the month of August, and it shall be in effect on the first day of the month of December, 1945.

Revised by Mr. Justice Black.

Legion of Decency Criticizes Recent Obscenity Decisions

NEWARK — The Newark office of the Legion of Decency said last week it had received complaints from several dioceses about allegedly obscene movies shown in local church halls.

Miss Helen A. Keane, diocesan president, said in a letter to the New York archdiocese that she had heard from several dioceses about the movies. She added that the Legion of Decency had received complaints about the movies from several dioceses.

In his written opinion in the St. John's Union, the bishop said he had given the Legion of Decency a copy of the film, and that the Legion of Decency had approved it.

The Legion of Decency said it had also received complaints about the movies from the New York archdiocese.

Not Anti-Religious, ACLU Presses On

The New Jersey Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union this weekpink the U.S. Supreme Court to rule for the first time in 20 years in favor of prayer in public schools. In a statement released today, the ACLU said the court had the right to review the matter, since the New Jersey Supreme Court had already ruled in favor of prayer in schools.

The ACLU's statement said, "We believe the New Jersey Supreme Court ruling is consistent with the Constitution and the Establishment Clause. We also believe the court had the right to review the matter, since the NJSC has already ruled in favor of prayer in schools. We will submit our brief to the Supreme Court in the near future."
