Church's 21st Ecumenical Council Convened by Pontiff in Vatican City

VATICAN CITY — The greatest gathering of Church dignitaries in the history of Christianity is now in session. Gathered about Pope John XXIII in St. Peter's Basilica are 2,500 Cardinals and Bishops from all parts of the world — the Fathers of the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council.

In many ways one of the great assemblies of all time, its full impact is expected to be known long after the Council's work has been completed.

The OPENING day's schedule included a solemn procession through St. Peter's Square into the basilica, a Mass in honor of the Virgin Mary, and an address by Eugene Cardinal Tisserant, Dean of the College of Cardinals, and the representatives of the council Fathers, followed by the Pontiff's opening message.

An ecumenical, or general, council is a solemn assembly of the Bishops of the world to whom the Pope, in the name of Christ, entrusts the care and guidance of the Church.

The Pontiff has charged the council with the task of safeguarding the unity of the Church and of providing the guidance needed for the modern world.

The council is expected to consider and decide, under the presidency of the Pope, matters concerning the whole of Christianity.

The current is by far the largest, the best prepared, for the most wholly honored, the most enthusiastically received of all general councils.

Here are the council below and Pages 4, 5, 12, 19...}

High Court Lists Action On 4 Church-State Cases

WASHINGTON (NC) — The U.S. Supreme Court is the final judicial arbiter of church-state questions, and the 50,000 page bill of fare on the public square of Maryland and New Mexico is now before it.

Refined to review an appeal from the U.S. Supreme Court of Puerto Rico, the court will use the parcel of land as a symbol for the church-state issue.

The argument, which will go to the Supreme Court, is that the United States Constitution, in its definition of a free press, requires the media to be free of religious influence.

The court is expected to rule in favor of the church-state issue, which is being defended by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Two Million Cheer Pontiff On Visit to Italian Shrines

VATICAN CITY—Crowds—estimating a million—greeted Pope John last week as he entered the 8 by 10 foot Vittoriano in Rome to view the statue of St. Peter. The Pope then walked by way of a stairway from the Vittoriano up the Via della Conciliazione to the Quirinal Palace, where he was met by officials of the Italian government.

The first stop of his three-day visit to Italy was Turin, where the Holy Father visited the Holy Shroud. Later, while in Turin, he said Mass in the cathedral and visited a group of poor people. The Pope also visited the basilica of St. John Lateran in Rome, where he said Mass.

Visitors J. needs by of Tyre. The President, it has been stated, has the status of the Roman Catholic Church as it has been established by law. Dr. Julius C. has the office of President of the Vatican City.(20)

Patriarch Peter Paul Maron of the Maronites, a guest of great personal warmth and honesty, was the center of attention at the Christmas Offices. The visit of the Patriarch was a historical event for the Syriac Church, which has a long history of service to the Church and has played a significant role in the development of the Church's liturgical and dogmatic traditions.

Patriarch Maron is a revered figure in the Syriac Church and is known for his commitment to the theological and ecumenical work of the Church. He is also well respected for his role in promoting peace and understanding between different Christian communities.

In his address, the Patriarch emphasized the importance of unity and cooperation among the churches, and called for a renewed commitment to the values of brotherhood and brotherhood. He also thanked the leaders of the Church for the warm welcome and hospitality he received during his visit.

During his visit, the Patriarch met with various leaders of the Church, including the Pope, the leaders of the Vatican City, and other dignitaries. The visit was seen as a significant milestone in the relations between the Syriac Church and the Roman Catholic Church, and it has been widely hailed as a sign of growing cooperation and understanding between the two communities.

The Patriarch's visit to the Vatican City was a historic event that marked a new chapter in the relations between the Syriac Church and the Roman Catholic Church. It was a testament to the importance of dialogue and cooperation in building a more just and peaceful world.

WARREN, OHIO
To Our Separated Brothers

Pope John has uplifted the hearts of Catholic by speaking of our fellow Christians—Orthodox and Protestant—as our brothers in Christ.

He has brought us all into the circle of the family of God, the body of Christ, with its many children of many races and tongues. We are united in the person of Christ.

TODAY, AS THE Second Vatican Council opens, with our Bishop, successors of the Apostles,x and representatives of many Christian communities, in together with the Orthodox—Greek, Coptic, Oriental—Anglican and Episcopalian, Lutheran, Protestant and other Protestant denominations, the Catholic Church, the Disciples of Christ and Qumran, we meet in prayer.

They serve as "observers"—yet, not in the Latin sense. The Sacred Council of the Union of Christians has been designated as an official contact of the Ecumenical Movement, although they will not take part directly in the discussion or voting.

"The Catholic Church, we beg of you," the Holy Father has said to the Christian brothers, "that when we lovingly invite you to the unity of the Church we are inviting you not to the house of a straggler, but to your home, to the Father's house which belongs to all.

At home in the Catholic Church, you have our loving relationship, Catholic, Orthodox, Protestant..."

Apostolic Follow-Through

On March 24, 1962, the Catholic news of the Archdiocese of Newark look became a reality with the challenging the changing name "Lay Apostolate." In our next issue, we hope to publish the names of some other fine projects—a lot of new groupings and "free," "lay" or "working with the poor and the reviving the "NACOM"—is intended to help those individuals and by its structure to be different.

The NACOM is not a new church organization for those who are separate and cloistered sex.

It is not and will not be a replacement of the living society or federation. It is a "service organization."

That is the original and only line of Catholic society, where, as individuals and members of a larger community, we can fulfill a social mission.

Then the Lay Apostolate will become an ever-growing dynamic reality—"other racing with the Holy Father, and our Archbishop."

United Appeals Giving

At this time of year throughout the United installation of the United Catholic Appeal of the Community Church, appeal in many parts of the world in New Jersey to help those who are in need of a helping hand. The APPEAL IS MADE TO THOSE who have an extra thought and who have the spirit and the will to make the world a more perfect place.

We are, as yet, destitute of funds and personal plans for the development of an effective and organized aid to the battle against hunger and poverty in the world.

Do not give because you feel that it is necessary to give. Give because you believe that it is better to give. Give because you believe that it is better for the Church and for the world. Give because you believe that it is better for those who need it.

Catholic Daily? Can't Be Done

By JOSEPH A. BREN

Despite the failure of past attempts to bring a daily Catholic newspaper to the U.S., there is new hope for the future.

The subject has proven itself to be a viable and necessary enterprise to keep our readers informed and up-to-date with the latest news and developments in the Catholic Church.

A publication which is dedicated to spreading the teachings of the faith, a Catholic newspaper would not only bring timely information to our readers but would also serve as a unifying force, bringing together a diverse community of believers.

Lack of demand and support for a daily Catholic newspaper has been a significant barrier in the past. However, with advancements in technology and a growing appetite for digital content, the time may be ripe for a new format to take root.

The financial viability of a daily Catholic newspaper is another concern. However, with careful planning and budgeting, it is possible to create a sustainable model that can support the publication.

In conclusion, a daily Catholic newspaper is long overdue. With the right approach and commitment, it can serve as a vital resource for our readers, providing them with the information and support they need to thrive in today's world.

God Love You

By REV. ANDRE M. GREELEY

May God richly bless you and your families. This is a timely request because we are about to enter the season of Lent.

The upcoming weeks mark the beginning of a spiritual journey for many Catholics, dedicated to self-improvement and personal growth.

May God bless you and guide you in your spiritual endeavors. Remember, God loves you always and will be with you every step of the way.

A Grand Season for Self-Criticism

By REV. ANDREW M. GREELEY

This season is especially conducive to self-criticism. The Lenten period offers an opportunity for individuals to reflect on their lives and make necessary changes.

During this time, it is important to examine our past actions and behaviors, acknowledging our mistakes and striving for improvement.

Lent is a time of self-reflection and growth. It is an opportunity to let go of our old ways and embrace new possibilities. By doing so, we can become more aligned with our spiritual goals and values.

We must remember that God is always present and supportive, ready to guide us on our journey. May God bless you and may you find strength and guidance in this upcoming season of self-criticism.
Tool Against Communism

Streeter, according to T. S. Eliot, in his latest collection of criticism, is "a person of no account."

This is the evaluation of the 50th year as head of the PEP and his position as one of the few "Bght-level" authorities on the subject of free government in the world. This book is his latest book, and it reveals the knowledge that Streeter has gained.

His conclusion: Communism is not, in the sense of a social system, a political system, or a religious system, a system of human affairs that can be objectively evaluated. It is a system of human behavior, and its behavior is the behavior of the individual.

The book is recommended for those who are interested in the history of the world and the development of human affairs.

A Lack of Missionaries Puts the Faith in Danger

Much money is given by American Catholics to the foreign missions, but not nearly enough by the U. S. Catholics. As of 1964, only 3,000 American priests work in missions territories today, while that number is more than 200,000 for the rest of the Americas and 2,000 for Australia.

"We are the principal financial support of the missions," wrote Father William M. Higgins, former National Director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith."Not our personnel has ever been greater," he said, "for in many foreign countries our priests and lay missionaries are the only faithful Catholics in the area."

As of now, the period of land and sea missions has ended. It is the period of the priesthood. It is the period of the church.

The lack of personnel is a problem that can only be solved by increased support from individual and local chapters of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith."

Modern Meeting in Eternal City

LIKE A HUGE EMBRACE Bernini's colonnade stretches from St. Peter's Basilica where the Church's 21st ecumenical council, Vatican II, convenes Oct. 11.

PREPARATIONS for the council, which took three years, included sessions of the Central Preparatory Commission at which Pope John sometimes presided above.

VATICAN GUARD increased its strength for council duties. Here one of 23 new recruits to the Swiss Guards, wearing colorful uniforms designed by Michelangelo, swears to defend the Pope's life.

THREE THOUSAND PRELATERS, advisers and observers will take specially erected seats in the brilliantly lighted nave of St. Peter's for the council's working sessions which will look like this artist's conception.

The Holy Father makes official the bull proclaiming the Second Vatican Council with his signature in Latin, Joannes XXIII.

VATICAN I, the most recent council held 1869-70, was about papal infallibility. This drawing was done by Albe telli during its closing ses sion. Pope Pius IX, at right, convened Vatican I, and may be beatified during Vatican II. Pope John has expressed the wish that Pius IX, known affectionately as "Pio Nono," be proclaimed Blessed.

CARDINALS in key council positions are Augustine Cardinal Bea, J.S. (above left), head of the preparatory Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity; Cardinal Tisserant (above right), dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals who presided for Pope John over the Central Preparatory Commission and Gregory Cardinal Agagianian, who as prefect of the Sacred Congregation of the Faith, headed the Commission for the Missions.

You Aren't Too Young to Study the Ecumenical Council

BY FRANK J. DURRAN

If you are old enough to vote, you are old enough to study the affairs of your own country and the world. It is little shortsighted to think that just because you are not yet an adult you have no responsibilities and no voice in the world of today. You will be a voter in some future election; you will be a citizen in the community of the world in which you live. As such, you have a right to be curious about the great issues and problems of our time.

Would you be interested in finding out about the activities of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops? Would you like to know how the Pope makes his decisions? Would you like to know something about the Episcopal Church? Would you like to know what the Second Vatican Council has in mind for the future of the Church?

If you are interested in finding out about these matters, you should know that there is a new book, "You Aren't Too Young to Study the Ecumenical Council," written especially for young people who are interested in learning about the Church and the world. This book is available at your local bookstore or through the Catholic Book Guild, 1021 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Clothes Can Make The CCD Student

By ED WOODWARD

Clothes are not merely make overs, but God. Outfit, Declared Father Bernard, "or even according to the dress, the attitude of the person who wears them. Such is the power of dress in today's age that bespeaks of the feeling of the mind or spirit in which a person lives. The right dress, filled with the spirit of innocence and piousness, will inspire the same in others. Dress should be a reflection of our thoughts, our actions, and our attitudes towards God. It should be a symbol of our love and devotion to our faith, and a reminder to others of the importance of the spiritual life.

Vocation Notes

"Recruiting" Extraordinary

By MR. WILLIAM F. FURBISH

I should like to know what St. Bernard would do if St. Bernard were a military recruit. In a time of war, should the Church not be more concerned about the spiritual well-being of its young men than about the number of young men in the military? Should the Church not be a provider of spiritual sustenance and support to its young men, especially those who may be considering a military career, rather than just providing a place for them to train for military service?

In light of recent developments, you might be asking yourselves: "What does this mean to our schools?"

It doesn't necessarily mean to begining or end the football season. It doesn't necessarily mean to end the football season. Isn't there a high school in the suburbs? We don't know, but we're pretty sure there's a high school in the suburbs. Isn't there a high school in the suburbs? We don't know, but we're pretty sure there's a high school in the suburbs. Isn't there a high school in the suburbs? We don't know, but we're pretty sure there's a high school in the suburbs.

But just because football is over doesn't mean that the public schools are over. They're not. They're not. They're not. They're not.

And just because football is over doesn't mean that the public schools are over. They're not. They're not. They're not. They're not.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new epoxy powder appeared in scientific literature for the first time this week, being described as a potential ingredient in a new type of polymer. The epoxy powder is made from a combination of monomers and oligomers and is said to be highly adhesive and strong. It is expected to be used in the construction of high-performance composites and adhesives.

Inter-Faith Appeal Made In Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda — The leaders of Uganda's Catholic and Muslim communities have launched a joint appeal for prayer and support from people around the world to help avert a planned coup that they say could lead to civil war.

The appeal was made by the Catholic Archbishop of Kampala, Dr. John Jjumba, and the Muslim cleric Sheikh Dr. Idris Kamoga, in a joint statement released in Kampala.

The statement, which was signed by Archbishop Jjumba and Sheikh Kamoga, called on people everywhere to pray for peace and stability in Uganda.

They said that the situation in Uganda was critical and that the planned coup could lead to widespread violence and suffering.

They emphasized the importance of maintaining the country's hard-won freedoms and democratic processes.

The statement called on the international community to support and defend Uganda's democratic institutions.

It said that Uganda's free elections had been held in a peaceful manner and that the country had developed a strong civil society.

The Catholic Church in Uganda has a long history of advocating for human rights and democracy.

Archbishop Jjumba has been a vocal opponent of any attempt to undermine the country's democracy.

He has repeatedly called on the government to respect the rights of all Ugandans and to ensure that elections are free and fair.

The Muslim community in Uganda has also been active in advocating for human rights.

Sheikh Kamoga has been a strong advocate for the rights of Uganda's Muslims and has spoken out against any attempt to limit their freedoms.

The joint appeal comes as Uganda prepares to hold general elections later this year.

Archbishop Jjumba has said that the elections will be crucial for the future of the country.

He has called on all Ugandans to participate in the elections and to vote for candidates who support the country's democratic institutions.

Sheikh Kamoga has also urged Muslims to participate in the elections and to vote for candidates who will protect their rights.
