No Firm Rulings Expected on Apostolate

The author, executive director of the National Council of the Catholic Laymen, is a member of the board of directors of the Permanent Committee for the International Congress of the Lay Apostolate. He deals with problems that will confront the Fathers of the national council when they take up the question of the lay apostolate.

BY MARTIN R. HIRSCH

The assembly of laymen now following in the footsteps of Peter in the footsteps of the apostles who helped to build the Church - or at least the apostolic committees that build the lay apostolate - is likely to be called the "lay apostolate" as a separate matter. There will be the Fathers of the Church. What are some of the problems? These are the questions of the apostolate? What other things that the Church is doing to build the lay apostolate? There are some of the basic questions that you have to ask to understand the basic problems of the lay apostolate.

Teachers Favor Laymen On Parochial Faculties

TULSA, Okla. (CNS) — Most lay teachers in Oklahoma Catholic schools think the schools should always have lay teachers, and the majority do not believe it is necessary to try to educate them in a Catholic direction. What are the current plans for Catholic schools in the state? A substantial majority of the 3,500 schools in the state have 1,500 or fewer students, and about half have 2,000 or fewer students. There is no evidence that the average school should be able to afford to hire enough Catholic teachers, and Catholic school officials are working to protect the rights of the students in the schools. What are the plans for the future? The Tulsa Archdiocese has made plans for Catholic schools in the state to be closed, and it appears that the Archdiocese intends to close the schools.

Catholic School Changes Pose Problem for St. Louis Educators

ST. LOUIS—St. Louis County Board of Education officials have expressed concern over recent changes in the teaching profession that have resulted in overcrowded classrooms. What are the reasons for the overcrowding? How are the overcrowded classrooms affecting the teaching profession? What are the proposals that have been made to alleviate the problem? The proposals include the creation of larger classes, the elimination of certain courses, and the hiring of more teachers. These proposals are being considered by the Board of Education.

Everybody, but everybody, is coming!

Ontario's Bishops Ask Additional Aid

TORONTO, Oct. (UPI) — Ontario's Bishops asked parents to urge local school boards to take a "creative approach" to education to provide the necessary funds for Catholic schools.

The Bishops' statement came after a recent ruling by the Quebec Court of Appeal that the province's education system is unconstitutional for its lack of funding for Catholic schools.

The statement read: "We are concerned about the financial situation of our Catholic schools and we urge parents to support our request for additional aid."
Priest Suggests Joint Hyman At Episcopal Conference

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — A spokesman for the Episcopal General Convention said the church is exploring the possibility of a joint hyman with the Jewish rabbinate.

The spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the church is considering a proposal to create a new position of "hyman" to represent the interests of Jews in the church.

The proposal was introduced by a group of bishops from the Episcopal Church and the Jewish rabbinate. The proposal would create a new position of "hyman" to represent the interests of Jews in the church.

The spokesman said the proposal is intended to be a "symbolic" gesture of unity between the two faiths.

"We are trying to find a way to show the world that we are committed to working together for the betterment of society," the spokesman said.

"We believe that by creating this position, we can demonstrate our commitment to interfaith dialogue and cooperation."

Critics’ Critic Invites Trouble

By REV. ANDREW M. GREENE

Evelyn Gorely is introducing a column while May's Commonweal sends a letter to the Vatican Council. And God lover, the two years ago, was the Five Hundredth anniversary of the Reformation, and in the month of October, 1517, on October 31st, the Ninety-Five Theses were nailed to a door in Wittenberg. I have always believed that this was a great event in history, and I wish to contribute to the discussion of this subject by presenting a paper on the subject of the Reformation. The paper will be delivered on the 31st of October, at the University of Wittenberg, and will be published in the next issue of the Commonweal.

Mass Gesture Significant

By BISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN

At the Reformation of the Mass, immediately before the Consecration, the celebrant, raising his hands over the consecrated host and wine, says: "Benedicta tua, Domine." An elderly priest, standing by the altar, told me they had always said, "Benedicta tua, Domine," but the priest who pianist to the organ, playing Ave Maria, would say: "Benedicta tua, Domine." The priest explained that this was a matter of preference. The priest who played the organ said: "Benedicta tua, Domine," because he was more familiar with the text. The priest who played the organ would play Ave Maria, because he was more familiar with the melody. In Ethiopia: The Half-Told Tale

You Don't Know the Half of It: That familiar pattern of religious persecution continues unabated in Ethiopia. In this letter to the editor of the New York Times, the author calls attention to the need for international action to end religious discrimination in Ethiopia.

Ethiopia has one of the world's most restrictive laws concerning religious freedom. The law mandates that all religious groups must register with the government and submit to strict regulations. The government also enforces a policy of ethnic and religious segregation, which has led to discrimination and persecution.

The author argues that the international community must take action to address these issues, emphasizing the importance of religious freedom for all people. They call for increased diplomatic efforts and economic sanctions to pressure the Ethiopian government to respect the human rights of its citizens.

St. Michael's, Lyndhurst, Marks 50th Anniversary

LYNDHURST — A double celebration was held Nov. 23 in St. Michael's Parish here to honor the 50th anniversary of the church and the ordination of Rev. Edward Joseph Haas to the priesthood. Both events were marked by significant events in the parish's history.

The celebration included Mass, a concert, and a social gathering. The church was decorated with flowers and banners, and the congregation sang special hymns throughout the day. Many former parishioners returned for the festivities, including Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Haas, who were married in the church 50 years ago.

The concert featured performances by the parish choir and a local music student. The social gathering included a buffet lunch and a cash bar. The evening concluded with a dance for all attendees.

The anniversary of the church's establishment was also celebrated on Nov. 23. The church was founded in 1918 by Rev. Joseph Haas, who served as the first pastor.

The day also marked the ordination of Rev. Edward Joseph Haas to the priesthood. He was ordained on Nov. 23, 1948, and has served as a priest in the parish ever since. He is currently the pastor of the church.

The celebration of these milestones brought together many people who have been part of the parish community over the years. It was a joyous occasion, marked by a sense of pride and gratitude for the contributions of those who have come before.
