Cardinal Suggests Anti-Bias Steps

THE ADVOCATE, Tuesday, January 31, 1967

Cardinal Ottaviani Tells on Vatican Council Role

In an interview with an Italian newspaper shortly after the Council, Cardinal Augustin Bea, known author of "The Church and the Modern World," and former president of the Congregation of the Index in Rome, said: "It is important that the Holy Father and the bishops carefully examine the problem of discrimination that exists between the races and between the sexes as well as the discrimination against the poor and the exploited. This is a problem that must be carefully considered in the debate on the future of the Church in the modern world."

Cardinal Bea, who is a member of the permanent commission of the Vatican Council, said: "The pope and the bishops must think about the problem of discrimination and how it can be overcome. This is a problem that must be considered in the future of the Church."

He also said: "The pope and the bishops must think about the problem of discrimination and how it can be overcome. This is a problem that must be considered in the future of the Church."
Chicago Weighs First 'Shared Time' School Experiment

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's main school in the Roman Catholic system is considering a plan that would allow some Catholic high school students to take courses at other public schools — an idea being explored by Catholic school officials in other parts of the country.

However, Bishop McCardell, who is overseeing the proposal, acknowledged that it could be very expensive, and the schools would have to be near the Catholic schools to make it feasible. He said that the idea has been under consideration for some time, and that it is now coming to the forefront because of the increasing costs of running Catholic schools.

The Catholic school system in New York has a major problem with enrollment, and many Catholic schools are closing due to low enrollment. The proposal to allow some Catholic high school students to take courses at other public schools is seen as a way to attract more students and keep some Catholic schools open.

However, it is not clear whether the proposal will be accepted by the Catholic school officials.
Reviews of "Love of Lam and French Toast" by N.Y. Times

IN A new volume, "The French Toast," by T. A. DeLaney, the author of "The Westerners," we have a series of short stories about the life of a French family in New York. The stories are cleverly written, and the characters are well drawn. The book is a joy to read, and it is sure to please all who love good fiction.

—but the family is also capable of great sacrifice and suffering, and of great joy and happiness.

They are all the more interesting because they are based on real characters, and on real events. The author has done much to bring out the essential truth of the situation, and to show how the different members of the family interact with each other. The book is a masterful achievement, and is sure to find a large and devoted readership.

But the book is not only a story of the family. It is also a story of the city, and of the world. The author has done much to bring out the essential truth of the situation, and to show how the different members of the family interact with each other. The book is a masterful achievement, and is sure to find a large and devoted readership.

Red Slant On Scripts

BY WILLIAM L. MOORE

Seeing are everyone to be pleased with the new play "The Slant," which opened at the Criterion Theatre last night. It is a funny, clever, and well-written play, and it is sure to please all who love good comedy.

The play is about a young woman who is trying to make her way in the world. She is a bright, energetic girl, and she is determined to succeed. She is also a bit of a daredevil, and she is not afraid to take risks. These qualities make her a very attractive character, and she is sure to please all who like good comedy.

The play is written by Mr. Moore, and it is a fine example of his work. He is a master of the comic touch, and he is sure to please all who like good comedy. The play is sure to be a great success, and it is sure to find a large and devoted readership.

Race

BY UNANIMOUS vote delegates in the conference adopted "an appeal to the conscience of the American people over the issue of Race," our national speech this appeal comes in the Journal of the American Missionary Association, the "Emanicipation Proclamation.

The "Emanicipation Plan" has deep roots. It will not easily be eradicated. While in the North and South, a few whites who consider themselves everywhere, men and women. But a few whites of our laws are mocked and violated.

... that racial discrimination and segregation are alien to God, the giver of human dignity and rights.

... failures and ask the forgiveness of God.

... the rights of our black brothers whose rights we have ignored, and we diligently have sought.

... The U.S. census report (1960) shows that the population of the Negro is Negro. It is now three years later. When we think about both sides is undertaken. The fact on any front is not disputed.

Needed: More Sisters

A diocesan in the Mid-West, for Catholic education, for the service of the church, children are needed. One of the schools which is now being taught is a Catholic one.

Archbishop Burke has been the Shephard of the Archdiocese of Newark for 10 years, marked by a series of outstanding accomplishments from the completion of the cathedral to the founding of the first medical school in New York, 213 members of the diocese have been sined here by the present archbishop. Of these, 45 of the last have been active in various religious orders.

... and a great deal of the dedicated and loyal lay teachers and students who make up the school.

... The Diocese of Newark. These titles and honors and new duties are the result of the fact that the head of the Church is present among us.

... But those who have been honored through years of labor are also the representatives of the more than a million souls of this diocese, who, we hope, are the representatives of the Church.

... LAYMEN AND LAWYERs

were honored were Knights of St. Greg or Knights of St. Louis, because they have given through the years to the diocese.

... were honored for their direct service to the diocese. It may be, as some have said, of the hidden workers whose service is constant and steady.

... the leaders in their work charitably,

... the leaders in the works of charity, understanding.

... the members of the committee.

Organizations were honored as well. The Church has always been a great support of the diocese and its members.

... We have been honored in the persons of some of our members who were in some of the places where we have been honored.

... The Archdiocese has speech and the Archdiocese speaking out individuals for recognition.

... The Archdiocese was speaking to the entire archdiocese.

... The Archdiocese was a servant of the Archdiocese of Newark.

... the missions, for youth, for religious and the like were honored.

I was very interesting in the article of The Advocate on Father Murray, a Catholic priest who was killed in a single gun shot. In the story, it was mentioned that Father Murray had been a life-long advocate of peace, and that he had dedicated his life to promoting understanding and coexistence among different cultures.

I have always been a great admirer of Father Murray and his work. He was a true leader, a man of courage, and a person who was always ready to help others. His death is a great loss to the Catholic community and to the world as a whole.

I am writing to express my deepest sympathy to the family and friends of Father Murray. May he rest in peace and may his legacy continue to inspire others to promote peace and understanding.

Your sincerely,

Bishops' Consecration: Two Receive Full Priesthood

First, a Visit — Bishop-elect Costello (extreme right) and Bishop-elect Dougherty (for left) make a visit to the Blessed Sacrament at the very start of the ceremony which is to center upon their consecration in the Church. Kneeling between them are Archbishop Boland (center) who will consecrate them, Bishop McNulty (left) and Bishop Reese, the co-consecrators who will speak the words of episcopal consecration along with the Archbishop.

Before Honor, Humility — Before they receive the episcopal order through the imposition of Archbishop Boland's hands upon them and his words, "...Complete in Thy priests the full power of Thy ministry", Bishop-elect Costello and Dougherty prepare themselves and remain in this position of supplication while the entire Litany of the Saints is sung. In minutes they will have the "duty" to judge, interpret, conspire, ordain, offer, baptize and confirm.

Bearing Gifts — The newly-consecrated, Bishops Costello (for left) and Dougherty, joined in Ordinary Procession by their attendants and the co-consecrators, approach the throne of the consecration. Archbishop Boland, with gifts of bread, wine and ciborium. At right are the deacons and sub-deacons. At left are the vestments by each new Bishop, two cibles, two faldstools of bread, two small casks of wine, each divided into the Bishop's coat-of-arms. The ceremony of episcopal consecration is among the most colorful and impressive in the Church.

Pause in Procession — Each new Bishop stops at the first pew to bless members of his family and offer his indelible episcopal ring for their kiss. Above, Bishop Costello and his mother, Mrs. Dennis Costello (below), Bishop Dougherty and his brother, William.

The Blessing — The crowds in Sacred Heart Cathedral receive the blessing of Bishops Dougherty (left) and Costello, who walk down the main aisle after their investiture with miter and ring, and their enroachment with their pastoral staffs. The beautiful "Te Deum," hymn of praise to God, is sung, and the new Bishops return to the Sanctuary for the completion of the Mass.

Mystical Anointing — Bishop Dougherty's hands, bared by a fresh cloth, have been anointed with holy chrism. Now his hands are consecrated by Archbishop Boland: "...with the sanctified oil and the chrism of sanctification.

Entronement — After the ukase, gilies, and episcopal rings of the new Bishops have been blessed and presented by Archbishop Boland he takes each by the hand as he is doing above with Bishop Dougherty, leads him to a butilical and places the pastoral staff (crosier) in his hands. The crosier is adapted from the shepherd's crook to connote the Bishop's role as pastor of his flock.

This Consecrated Hand — Bishop Costello's hands are clasped within a linen cloth which has been around his neck during the anointing as Archbishop Boland prays: "...and let this consecrated hand or thumb be profitable to all unto salvation.

North Jersey's Bishops — The joy of the occasion is reflected in the faces of the consecrated, the co-consecrator and the co-consecrators in the cathedral shortly after the ceremony. From left, consecrating the Diocese of the Archdiocese of Newark, are Auxiliary Bishop Boland and Costello, Archbishop Boland and Auxiliary Bishop Dougherty. At extreme right is the Bishop of Passaic, Bishop McElroy.
National Women's Council Informs Senate Of Opposition to 'Equal Rights' Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Women's Council today announced their opposition to the equal rights amendment, which is being considered in the Senate. In a letter to each senator, the council supported the amendment and said their opposition is not intended to increase the pace of efforts to achieve equal rights for women. The council said that the amendment is a step forward, but that there is a need for further advances in the fight for equal rights for women.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Kaiser, a leading opponent of the amendment, issued a statement today expressing her support for the amendment. She said that the amendment is a necessary step in the fight for equal rights for women. She also said that the amendment is a step forward, but that there is a need for further advances in the fight for equal rights for women.
