Discovery of Ancient Relic Indicates Age of Sacrament

VATICAN CITY (NC) - Unveiling a granite statue in a solemn ceremony at the Vatican, Pope John Paul II declared that a translation of the ancient relic of the Holy Face of Jesus is "an authentic testament of the ages." The statue is believed to represent the same face depicted on the Virgin's veil of the Shroud of Turin, but in this case, the face is of Jesus, the Saviour of the world.

The Pope said the translation is "an authentic testament of the ages" and "an intimate bond with the mystery of the Incarnation." The relic, he said, "is an authentic witness to the mystery of the Incarnation." 'Charter of Religious Freedom' Approved by UN Committee

NEW YORK (AP) - The United Nations General Assembly has approved the 'Charter of Religious Freedom,' a document that guarantees religious freedom to all peoples.

The charter, approved by a vote of 133 to 2, with 17 abstentions, was drafted by a committee of independent experts and was supported by all major religions.

The charter includes provisions for the freedom of worship, the freedom of thought, and the freedom of conscience. It also guarantees the right to practice the religion of one's choice, to assemble for religious purposes, and to establish religious schools.

The charter is a significant step in the global fight for religious freedom, said the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mary Robinson.

Robinson, who has long been a advocate for the rights of religious minorities, said the charter is "a milestone in the global fight for religious freedom."

The charter is expected to be signed by all member states of the United Nations, and to enter into force after a two-year period.

The charter is an important step in the global fight for religious freedom, said Pope John Paul II.

Alexander Spano, the new superintendent of schools for Newark, said the extended enrollment period was a test of the new system, which combines two schools. He said the enrollment period should be extended to the last day of the school year and that the system would be reviewed at the end of the year.

Rural Life Group
Asks Tax Study

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The National Catholic Rural Life Conference executive committee here has given its approval to a "re-evaluation" of government tax policy to meet the current heavy financial burden on the Conference and its members.

In a letter to President Robert M. Shannon, the committee recommended that the Conference's tax policy be reviewed in light of the current economic situation.

The committee cited the need for a "fair" tax policy as a matter of "moral" and "civic" duty.

"We believe," the letter said, "that the Conference has a right and a duty to seek a fair and just tax policy."

Comrades Warned on Baptism: 'Barbarous Religious Rite'

HEROES WHAT A station's 'Red and Black' program had to say about the whole 105 years history of the Catholic Church is absolutely clear to every sound mind. The program has been heard for years and has even been repeated in some parts of the country.

A mere mention of the name 'Judas' or 'Sacrilegious' in any context is enough to make even the most zealous Catholic feel ashamed. However, the assertion can be easily called a lie by Catholic scholars.

PATERSON — Bishop Morris, 40-year-old archbishop of the Friendly News, has announced that Bishop Morris, 40, will speak on the 105th anniversary of the Friendly News. Bishop Morris, 40, is spiritual director of the society. Morris, 40, is a native of New Jersey.

Whatever Happened to Dick Tracy? He's Cashing His Coupons at Shop-Rite!

Monsignor Michael Clark of Holy Name Church in Newark is in the Shop-Rite in Newark this week. He was there to meet with local Catholics and to discuss the importance of the Church in their lives.
Prayers Requested For Protestant Meet

MONTREAL (CNS) — Paul Revere had a message to deliver, but urged Catholics to pray for a different message for a World Council of Churches meeting here.

"We cannot remain indifferent to the latest events," he said in his "Prayer Letter" to the faithful about the World Council of Churches meeting here. "A World Council of Churches meeting here would be a step toward the acceptance of a "Protestant" view of the world."

Revere said he was concerned that the World Council of Churches meeting here would not address the issue of the welfare of the people of the world, especially the poor and oppressed. He said this was a "major issue" that had to be addressed.

"We must ensure that the World Council of Churches meeting here is not a step toward the dissolution of the Catholic Church," he said.

Revere said he was "deeply troubled" by the news of the World Council of Churches meeting here. "I am concerned that the Church is not making the necessary steps to address this issue."
The Non-Catholic Campus

Some starting facts and figures were revealed in an article in The Concernant, "Catholics in College" published in August, suggesting that half-a-million young Americans are enrolled in various colleges and universities, that three out of every four freshmen are of non-Catholic campuses!

These facts are not without their importance: it is a matter of concern to assure a Catholic presence on those campuses that are not Catholic. It is a matter of concern to keep alive the seed of faith within the young Catholic who is attending a non-Catholic college.

Nevertheless, these half-million Catholics represent a problem, a very important problem, for the Church. It is one of those problems that is difficult to handle, it is one that requires us to give adequate instruction. He may even fail to understand some of his problems, because Catholic children attending a non-Catholic college may be considered as the nation's leaders tomorrow.

Help Wanted: Teachers

Ask any curate what he needs most and he will tell you: he needs teachers. The Church is in need of teachers, trained and experienced in promoting attendance, in making sure that Catholic students will go to their classrooms and attend faithfully.

It is true that the Church has many teachers, but, as a matter of fact, the Church is in need of teachers. The teachers are the people who are responsible for the instruction of the children in Catholic schools. It is the responsibility of the Church to see to it that the teachers are properly trained and qualified. It is the responsibility of the Church to see to it that the teachers are properly paid and supported. It is the responsibility of the Church to see to it that the teachers are properly housed and provided with all the necessities of life.

We believe that the Church is in need of teachers. We believe that the Church is in need of teachers who are trained and experienced in promoting attendance, in making sure that Catholic students will go to their classrooms and attend faithfully.

Saint of Catholic Action

On November 15, 1967, the bishops of the United States of America issued a pastoral letter entitled "The Saint of Catholic Action," in which they called for a "common effort" to ensure that "the Church, in her mission of education, in her mission of work, in her mission of apostolate, will not be left behind in the years to come.

But the bishops of the United States of America also pointed out that "the Church is in need of teachers," and that "the Church is in need of teachers who are trained and experienced in promoting attendance, in making sure that Catholic students will go to their classrooms and attend faithfully.

Evangelists Describe Christ's Public Life

By FRANK J. MeHFFY

Andrew and John left John and Peter in Jerusalem while they had been, and went to Galilee. In those days, about three years ago, they went to Nazareth, where they found a young man named Jesus who had turned the heads of His mother and of those who had been with Him in His home in Capernaum. But it was not Jesus.

He found him with His mother, with His brothers, with His mother's brothers, and with His mother's brothers' sons. It is possible that Jesus was the son of Mary and of Joseph, but it is also possible that He was the son of Mary and of some other man.

The passion of the Church is to find the young men, the young women, the young children, who are the sons of God, and to bring them to Christ.

There is a significant difference between the young men who are the sons of God and the young men who are not the sons of God. The young men who are the sons of God will be brought to Christ by the Church, but the young men who are not the sons of God will not.

Profit Sharing Threat to Reds

By LOUIS F. FURSTEN

There is a significant difference between the young men who are the sons of God and the young men who are not the sons of God. The young men who are the sons of God will be brought to Christ by the Church, but the young men who are not the sons of God will not.

The Question Box

Bodily Evolution Still Not Proven

G. W. Thomas, archeologist and paleontologist from the University of Chicago, has begun a new project which he believes will provide evidence for the theory of evolution.

The project is based on the study of the remains of early human beings, and the results of the project will be published in a forthcoming book. The book is entitled "The Evidence for Evolution." The book will be published by the University of Chicago Press.

Dr. Thomas has spent many years studying the remains of early human beings, and he has come to the conclusion that the theory of evolution is correct. He believes that the evidence for evolution is overwhelming, and that it is time that the scientific community acknowledged this fact.

Dr. Thomas is an archeologist and paleontologist, and he is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is also a member of the American Philosophical Society, and he has been a member of the editorial board of the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science since 1950.

Dr. Thomas's work has been widely praised by his colleagues, and he is widely respected for his scholarship and his integrity. He is a man of great integrity, and he is a man who has always been willing to speak the truth, even when it is unpopular.

Dr. Thomas's work on the theory of evolution is a major contribution to the scientific community, and it is a contribution that will be remembered for many years to come. He is a man of great talent, and he is a man who has made a significant contribution to the field of science.

President's Tax Bill Criticized

Editor:

In terms of the tax revision and reform, the President's tax bill is being considered. It's not a full bill, but it's a start. The President is making a move towards reducing the national deficit, but the bill needs further refinement. It's important to get this right, as it will affect millions of taxpayers. The bill has been criticized by many interest groups, and it seems that it will take some time to reach a consensus.

Racial Equality

An Urgent Need

BY NIGEL C. H. BRIGGS

Director, Social Action Dept., N.C.W.T.

The National Conference on Racial Equality, which met last week, was one of the most important gatherings in the history of the civil rights movement. I think the majority of the delegates were New York residents, but the conference has been attended by people from all over the country.

The charge has been made that the civil rights movements were not sufficient. This is not true. The conference did not adequately address the problems faced by the negroes in the U.S. and the rest of the world.

The FIRST Session was the occasion when the President's tax bill was introduced. It was based on a recommendation that the bill should be a national issue. The President's commitment to civil rights was clearly evident. It was said that the bill should be a national issue and that it should be introduced in Congress.

Unfortunately, however, the situation is worsening. The civil rights movement is in grave danger. There are some of the leading figures in the movement who are being denounced, possibly because they have taken the lead in the fight against racism. Archbishop's Notes

DUBUQUE, Iowa (NCN)— Archbishop James J. Byrne of Dubuque is a theologian who believes in planning for the future. He believes that every parent should plan for the future of their children. He has said that the parents should plan for the future of their children.

Although the parents special love and esteem in all their relations, as an added and associated advantage, we must not forget the existence of the parents. Some of them have a direct claim on their children, some of them have no direct claim on their children.

There is a need for a national conference to discuss the problem of the future of the children. The conference should be held on a national level.

Solid Novel

The SAND PEBBLES, by MacKinlay Kantor. (Houghton Mifflin Co., 597 pp., $4.50.)

Once an American shell of the war, now back in the states, the twenty-first-century veteran, like the postwar soldier, must face a new beginning. That was the situation of the American soldiers who were stationed in Korea's Taung River garrison, a story much like that of the Sand Pebbles.

John Hobbs became a fumbling leader in the wild, sometimes pathetic battle against his own personal fears. This is a story of what happens when a young man finds himself in a place where he is expected to be a leader, and how he learns to take responsibility.

The LEUCHEY is the story of a young man's search for identity. He is trapped in a world where he doesn't belong, and where he must find his own way. The novel is about the search for meaning in a world that seems to lack it.

There is a driving force behind the novel, and it is the desire to find one's place in the world. The novel is about the search for meaning in a world that seems to lack it.

Father Greeley Says:

"Frustrated Idealism's Leads to Apathy"

BY WILLIAM F. PULBING

The idealism which once inspired many a young boy and girl is giving way to something else. Father Greeley says that the "idealism of the young is being cramped by the drudgery of the world." The world, he says, "is not the paradise the young have imagined it to be." The world is not the paradise that the young have imagined it to be.

There is a new breed of young people who are disillusioned and discouraged. They are not interested in politics, religion, or even in their own welfare. They believe that everything is wrong and that nothing can be done to improve it. They are apathetic and lack the will to do anything about it.

The reasons for this disillusionment are many. The world is getting more and more complicated, and the problems seem to be too great for one person to solve. Also, the young are not sure of themselves and their abilities.

In conclusion, Father Greeley says that the young must not give up their idealism. They must work to change the world and make it a better place. They must not be discouraged by the problems they see, but instead, they must be determined to overcome them.
Crucial Contests Awaiting Leading Schoolboy Quintets

Bergen Catholic to Face Test of Strength

NEWARK — The great thing about this is that Bergen Catholic finished fourth last year in the Catholic League, the New Jersey Catholic Conference and the Tri-County Conference. They won't have to repeat that this year.

Bergen Catholic, under the guidance of coach Charlie DePauw, has shown a lot of promise all season. They've had good wins over Immaculate Conception, New Providence and Teaneck. They have a chance to win the Catholic League this year.

The Crusaders' well-rounded, quick-hitting team, which topped Christian Brothers Academy, 54-47, in the Parlin Tournament last week, is a team that could probably have taken any one of the seven new teams in the Catholic League and won.

The Crusaders' success has been due to the team's ability to take advantage of its ability to score in transition. Bergen Catholic has been able to score against teams like Seton Hall, St. Peter's Prep, St. Augustine and Newark Academy.

WHERE THEY STAND

seton Hall is the only Catholic League team that has scored in transition this season. They are a team that can score against most of the Catholic League teams.

This week, Bergen Catholic will face the toughest test yet. They will play Seton Hall, the Catholic League's best team, in the St. Mary's Prep Classic.

The Crusaders will be looking for their first win of the season. They will be up against a tough Seton Hall team that has been undefeated so far this season.

Seton Hall is a team that has won many games on the road. They have scored in transition and they have scored against most of the Catholic League teams.

Still, Bergen Catholic is a team that can score against Seton Hall. They just have to play better than they have in the past.

The Crusaders will have to play better than they have in the past if they want to score against the tough Seton Hall team.

Expert Says 'Fear of Christ' Influenced Israeli Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — A prominent expert on the history of the Christian church said today that the "fear of the Christ" had influenced Israeli leaders in their recent decision to expropriate Christian churches in Jerusalem.

The expert, Mr. Oesterreicher, told a press conference that the Jews and Muslims in the area had been disturbed by the new decision, which was made without prior consultation or compensation to the church authorities involved.

The expert also said that there was concern among many Christians in Israel that the decision could lead to increased tensions and even violence in the region.

"The authorities must take all necessary steps to ensure that this decision does not result in any destabilization of the region," Mr. Oesterreicher emphasized. "We must work towards a solution that respects the rights of all parties involved and ensures peace and stability for all."
