Cardinal Sees Majority 'For Progressive' View

Archbishop Donald Cardinal Byers of Portland, Ore., likened the recent decisions of the Vatican to the old saying that 'what's good for the goose is good for the gander.'

He said the decisions illustrate the Church's desire to be 'progressive' and change in response to the changing society.

The decisions, which included the lifting of some discipline against the Castillo brothers, were widely praised by the Church hierarchy.

Archbishop Byers said the decisions showed the Church's willingness to adapt to the times and to be open to change.

He said that the decisions were 'a sign of the Church's commitment to be a living, breathing church that is relevant to the needs of the people.'

The decisions were also seen as a sign of the Church's desire to be more inclusive and to reach out to those who were previously excluded.

The decisions were widely seen as a positive move towards a more progressive Church.

New College Aid Bill Introduced in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key figure in the Senate Banking Committee on Wednesday said the measure is designed to help small businesses and is expected to pass quickly.

The bill would make it easier for small businesses to secure loans, especially in rural areas. The measure was introduced by Sen. John Kennedy, R-La., and is expected to be considered by the Senate later this week.

Kennedy said the measure is necessary because small businesses are struggling to find financing in the current economic climate, especially in rural areas where access to capital is limited.

"This legislation is critical for the health of our small businesses, particularly those in rural areas," Kennedy said. "It will help these businesses grow and create jobs, which will benefit our economy and our communities."

The Advocate's Impact

What has been the impact, in Iowa, of the Second Vatican Council on the Catholic Church? Some answers are given here, in an essay that in some ways is to be a personal reflection on the Pope's Encyclical. It may well be the case that the Pope was influenced by the second Vatican Council, and the Pope's Encyclical is a response to the Council's teachings. It is interesting to see how the Pope has translated the Council's teachings into his own personal perspective.

Prevention Costs Less

The FBI reports major crime is up 70% across the country. Revelations last week that nine of the nation's 10 largest cities have increased their law enforcement agencies by 3,000 officers has given rise to widespread fear that crime is spiraling out of control. The FBI report shows that the number of serious crimes, including murder, rape, robbery, and assault, has increased by more than 25% in the past five years. The FBI also reports that there has been a significant increase in the number of burglaries and larcenies.

Gambling—A Moral Leukemia

All adults should ponder gambling. How do any of them, we wonder, justify this acceptance of gambling? Is it not the very essence of gambling that there is a definite moral smell about it? It is difficult to escape this conclusion. It is easy to see that the majority of people who gamble do so for the sake of excitement and money-making. The tendency is often to become addicted to the gambling habit. The more one gambles, the more one needs to gamble, and the more one needs to win.

Auto Insurance

Public resistance to continually increasing auto insurance rates has now reached the point where many motorists are considering alternative methods of protecting their vehicles. One such method is the use of self-insurance or mutual insurance companies. These companies have been formed to provide insurance for those who are unable to obtain coverage from conventional insurers. They have been able to do this because they have been able to reduce their underwriting costs by limiting the risk of exposure to individuals who are considered to be high-risk drivers.

Squash

Squash players have no advantage in the perpetual disputes over auto insurance rates. The insurance companies are simply trying to recover their costs and make a profit. The average driver is paying a premium that is much higher than the cost of providing insurance. The insurance companies are simply trying to make a profit by charging a premium that is much higher than the cost of providing insurance. CARDINAL NEWMAN, Part II

NEW YORK — In "The Life of the Rev. John Henry Newman," the life of the great English theologian and controversial figure in the history of the Catholic Church is chronicled in a manner that preserves the integrity of the subject's life and work.

Cardinal Newman was a man of great intellect and deep faith, whose writings and teachings continue to influence the Church today. His work "On the Development of Christian Doctrine," for example, is still widely studied and discussed.

The book provides a detailed account of Newman's life and work, including his early years as a student at Oxford, his conversion to Catholicism, and his role as a leading figure in the Oxford Movement. It also delves into his relationships with other notable figures of his time, such as Arthur Smith and John Henry Young.

Through the author's narrative, one gains a deeper understanding of Newman's contributions to the Catholic Church and his impact on the intellectual and cultural landscape of his time. This book is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the history of the Church and the intellectual history of the 19th century.

Christian Unions Gain in Latin America

By JAMES PERSCHKE
NCFW News Service

When communism recently spread through Latin America to throw the dictating Communist Latin American Workers into a respectable union organization, it was the work of a group of Christian organizations.

The work had its origin in the 1950's with the founding of Unions in Christ, a Christian group which has established sixty-five branches in Latin America.

DESPITE SUCH handicaps, Christian workers launched projects which resulted in a number of successes, while continuing Catholic unions to 600 in number.

By the end of 1959, more than 300 unions had been established under the leadership of the Latin American Christian Workers, which were started in the Pacific Rim countries and later in Latin America.

In the same way, the Latin American Christian Workers have also worked in the Latin American Catholic Church, to establish unions to cope with the demands of the unions. The results have been successful, with the establishment of unions in Brazil, Paraguay, and Bolivia.

The results have been encouraging, with the establishment of unions in Brazil, Paraguay, and Bolivia.

The Gamecocks won the championship game, beating the Kinnelon Catholic Knights, 58-56, in the final period.

BORDERLINE Catholic, however, still held the lead by only four points in the final period, but the Gamecocks were able to hold on to the lead and win.

The Gamecocks scored 12 points in the final period to secure their first championship.

TWO CHEERS For Joe P. - The Gamecocks' Joe P. was named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

He scored 23 points in the championship game, helping his team to victory.

His brother, Frank P., also played a key role in the championship game, scoring 12 points.

The Gamecocks' coach, Bill Jones, praised Joe P. for his leadership and teamwork.

The Gamecocks' win was the first time they had won the championship since 1949.

Their victory was a morale booster and a great start to the season.

The Gamecocks are now looking forward to the upcoming season and hope to continue their winning streak.

The Gamecocks will be playing in the New Jersey State Catholic High School boys basketball tournament again next year.

Bishop Costello Urges Support for Relief Fund

ALBANY, N.Y. — Twenty million dollars is left to be raised for a recently announced Catholic Relief Fund to aid the world's hungry and destitute. Bishop Charles E. Costello, rector of St. Peter's Church in Albany, urged parishes throughout the state to cooperate in the drive.

The city and countywide drive, which begins March 15, is expected to net $20 million toward the $30 million which Bishop Costello has estimated is needed to feed the hungry and destitute in the world's parishes.

'Our goal is $20 million, and we have already raised $10 million in the first six weeks since the drive was announced,' Bishop Costello said. "We have a tremendous amount of work to do in the last week of the drive, and we need your help to get the job done.""
Is any man sick among you?

Let him bring in the priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the Name of the Lord. And the prayer of faith shall save the sick man: and the Lord shall raise him up: and if he be in sins, they shall be forgiven.

— The Epistle of St. James

The CHRISTIAN VOICE

March 21, 1963

THE ADVOCATE Special Supplement

In the Sick Room

On entering the room, the priest says: "Peace be to this house." Then the answer: "And to all who dwell in it." The prayer of greeting is a reminder of Christ's own direction to His disciples when He sent them out among the people: "Whatever house you enter," said Christ, "first say 'Peace to this house.'" The prayer, then, is as old as the Catholic Church itself.

A Protestant professor while traveling in Italy asked a simple Italian coachman what the greatest desire of his heart was. The coachman's reply was: "To die in peace with God." Sometimes later the professor remarked: "Of all the splendor and greatness that I saw in Italy, nothing made such a deep impression on me as the reply of that poor man."

Basically the last rites of the Church are aimed at helping its members toward that end. And the Catholic Church spares nothing in its power to accomplish this.

The spirit of Catholicism reflected in the official prayers of the Church may be summed up in an interesting formula which is common in certain parts of France for last wills and testaments: their wills begin with the phrase: "First I give and bequeath my soul to God."

The table which has been put in readiness for the priest should be covered with a white cloth if possible. On it there ought to be:

1-A crucifix.
2-Two blessed candles which should be lighted when the priest is expected.
3-Holy water if there is some available.
4-A glass of clean water and a spoon.
5-Some clean cotton.

These articles should always be kept together and in readiness in every Catholic household.
The Anointing of the Sick...

From Christ's time to our own, the anointing of the sick has been a vital element in Catholic life. We read in the Gospel that when Christ saw a sick person, He 'anointed with oil many.'

When the Priest Is Called

1. CALL THE PRIEST for any person who is confined for a length of time (as in a hospital), or who may refuse Communion, or who may be seriously ill or even dying.

2. IF THE PRIEST IS AWAY, you may carry the sick person immediately to someone who is a priest, or to the nearest Catholic Church.

3. WHEN THE PRIEST ARRIVES, if the person is to receive Communion, mix with him a lit candle and lead him to the room of the sick person, not speaking during this time.

4. REMAIN IN THE ROOM with the person until what to leave him so that the sick person may be comfortable. Return to the room when the priest tells you and bring there during the administration of the sacraments.

Oil

When the priest with three tubes of Holy Unction, this is an act which has been venerated for the purpose by the Bishop on Holy Thursday. On one occasion Jesus Christ described Himself as the physician of souls. This function of the priest in the case of an sick person, if at his own request, if he is in the stage of illness, then he will do it in the spirit of the Old Testament. Thus he wears the anointing with oil. To keep up the wounds of the sick person and to make the person feel comforted and at ease. Here Jesus Christ instructed the Supernummary of the Unction that in the days of the dying person he must be comforted with oil just as he is about to pass away. This is the symbol of the Passover of the Lord and the Paschal Lamb. The priest rubs with oil the head of the sick person and then prays for him in the spirit of the Holy Spirit, and this is a sign of the spiritual strength given for the conflict with Satan.

Ears

The next part of the body to be anointed is the ears. The priest applies the holy oil in the form of a cross, while saying: "Through this holy unction and the most tender mercy, may God forgive you whatever sin you have committed by the sense of hearing." The words are repeated at each anointing, with the name of the place. The oil is said to be a symbol of emergency, it is enough that the forehead alone be anointed with the words: "Through this holy unction the lord forgive you whatever sin you have committed." Wherever it is possible, however, the anointing of the ears,ears, mouth and hands is to be carried out for the picture and power of the sacrament in that way more fully expressed.

Hand

Oil is then applied to the hands, while the priest again prays for the sick person. Christ instructed this event in describing his sacrifice and said: "And you shall pray." This can be translated as a final prayer for the sick person.

Papal Blessing

A special papal blessing may be given to the priest or one who is in danger of death. The Church of our most important person is a true docetism to give oil and anointing at death. There are granted to the dying person who is free from sin and willful neglect of his spiritual state, the remission of all temporal punishment deserved because of one's sins. To gain this favor the priest must directly say upon the name of Jesus, at least personally in the name of those who are too weak to speak. The Pope was entrusted by Christ with the spiritual care of His flock, He is the sacred face of the Church. He is the mother of God, and to prepare for the death of the sick person who has been anointed. This is a sign of the spiritual strength given for the conflict with Satan.

Eyes

We have seen how the heart of the Church is the heart of the person who is about to die. The last sacrament oil should be applied to the sick person's head, and that there be at the same time an expression of a portion to God for the weaknesses of the sick person. This is the last sacrament offered to the sick person. The last sacrament of the sick person is a preparation for the sick person's death. With the last sacrament of the sick person, the sick person knows how to face the next step. The sick person, through the last sacrament of the sick person, decided to enter a sign that we cannot see, to signify the spiritual help he gives which we cannot see. The eyes are first to be anointed.
