No Feast Day Set For Mother Seton

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has decided that no special privilege or feast day will be given to Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton, the founder of the U.S. Catholic Church's first religious community for women.

No FEAST DAY was immediately established by the new decree issued by the Congregation of Saints for the canonization of Bishop Jean-Baptiste Marie de La Salle, the French founder of the Brothers of the Christian Schools.

The Vatican said in a statement released in honor of Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton that the decision was made "as a sign of respect for the memory" of the woman who is "not a virgin and not a saint."

In 1812, the year these two Catholics were honored by Pope Pius VII, the Vatican established the Feast Day of the Immaculate Conception for the entire Church. Since then, the Vatican has recognized the devotion of special persons with the establishment of feast days.

The Vatican's decision is in response to requests from the U.S. bishops, who recommended that the date of her death, March 24, be recognized as a special day by the Church.

Mother Seton's Children Remained Her First and Most Vital Concern

Benedict Elizabeth Ann Seton, founder of the Sisters of Charity in the U.S., believed that her presence as a mother was of primary importance in her life.

She said, "A mother's care is the first and most vital concern of a Catholic Church's first religious community for women." The Vatican issued a decree this week recognizing the importance of that role.

Elizabeth was the mother of five children, including her eldest, whom she named William. He was born on March 24, 1812, the day she was declared a saint.

WIDOWED and widowed, not with her worst child only, Elizabeth, Seton said about her work as a teacher.

With the assistance given by friends, Elizabeth was able to provide for the education of her children. Her many letters and her correspondence show that she was an active member of the community and that she was involved in the school's administration.

Her first child, Anna Maria (Ann), to whom she referred in her will as "the eldest of my children," would ultimately inherit the large property set aside for their care. He would be the oldest of her five children.

Elizabeth was also the mother of three girls: Rebecca, who was born on March 17, 1814; John, who was born on March 24, 1815; and her eldest daughter, Elizabeth, who was born on March 26, 1817.

The Vatican has given the Sisters of Charity a feast day in her honor, but there is no official feast day for William. Elizabeth, who was born on March 24, 1812, is the only one who is not recognized as a saint.

Elizabeth was the first child of William and Elizabeth, who were married on March 24, 1812, the day they were married.

Elizabeth was a remarkable woman, and her life was defined by her commitment to her children. She was a strong leader in the Church and was beloved by all who knew her.

She was a true daughter of St. Patrick, and her life was a true example of the meaning of the Church's first religious community for women.

Sport or Manslaughter?

The headlines last Monday carried the news of another mass suicide. In Beslan, Russia, 343 people, mostly children and adults, were killed in a terrorist attack. Unfortunately, this is not an isolated incident. Mass shootings and acts of terrorism occur far too frequently, leaving countless lives lost and families forever changed.

In a world where violence and suffering are all too common, it's important to remember the value of human life and the importance of peace. It is crucial that we work together to prevent such tragedies from occurring in the future.

Teenage Tyrants

Shakespeare, describing "the age of man," pictured human life as a struggle against the forces of nature and the limitations of the human condition. Modern adolescents, however, are faced with a different set of challenges, including the pressures of peer acceptance and the influence of age-related factors.

Many experts agree that society needs to do a better job of understanding and supporting teenagers. By providing them with the tools and guidance they need, we can help them navigate the challenges of adolescence and emerge as mature, responsible adults.

Serious Picture of Life Needed Before Marriage

BY REV. JOHN L. THOMAS, S.J.
Assistant Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University

Is it possible for an 18-year-old man to marry at all? Is it possible to marry in one year? she claimed she loved the first boy but started dating another anyway. This second affair lasted several months and then the boy proposed. The father refused the marriage and he was never proposed again. Now he's back together again. Tell me if you think she is in love with this boy or if she is capable of loving any boy.

Your daughter's courtship activities suggest that she has little understanding of the meaning of love and marriage. It is as if she were engaged with someone for her own amusement. Her actions are not always logical and she is not interested in the other person. She is not ready for marriage.

What Movies Affect Teens?

By WILLIAM H. MORNING

"Did not imagine pictures of film, of which we had none at hand," a friend wrote, "are not as powerful as you might suppose." According to a March 30, 1963, article in "The Advocate," the impact of films on young people is a matter of concern.

"In today's society," the article states, "movies play an increasingly important role in shaping the minds and values of young people. They are exposed to a variety of social and moral issues, and the effects of these films can be both positive and negative.

"Some films, such as educational documentaries, can help promote understanding and appreciation for different cultures and perspectives. Others, however, may promote harmful behaviors or attitudes, such as violence, drugs, or sexual promiscuity.

"It is important for parents and educators to be aware of the films their children are watching and to discuss them in a constructive manner. By doing so, they can help guide their children and ensure that they are exposed to positive messages.

"In conclusion, movies can have a significant impact on young people. It is up to us to ensure that they are exposed to films that promote healthy values and behaviors.

"The Advocate" encourages readers to discuss the impact of films on young people and to take steps to ensure that their children are exposed to positive messages.

Pontiff Praises New Blesseds

WILLIAMSBURG — Pope John Paul II, in a new and significant move in his pontificate, has made seven new blesseds for the Church, including the late Cardinal Augustin Bea, to the great satisfaction of many Catholics. The Pope's decision means that there are now 993 blesseds in the Catholic Church, according to the Vatican website.

The new blesseds include Fr. Augustin Bea, a French Jesuit who was instrumental in the development of Catholic social teaching and who played a key role in the drafting of the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The Pope's decision was made during his weekly audience on Wednesday, and the beatification was celebrated in Rome, with the presence of the Pope and a large number of Cardinals and Bishops.

The beatification procession, which was attended by thousands of people, was a testament to the enduring legacy of Cardinal Bea and his contributions to the Church and to society.

Who Needs Lent? We Have Our Winter Weather...

I have had my share of clear and crisp, cloudless winter days. The sun was shining, the sky was blue, and the air was crisp. It was a beautiful day in the middle of winter, and the snow was gently falling from the sky. The trees were dressed in their winter finery, with white and silver branches reaching up to the heavens. The snow was falling softly, creating a peaceful and serene atmosphere. It was a day to be cherished.

As I walked outside, I noticed the crispness of the air and the quietness of the world around me. The snow was so soft and powdery, it felt as if I was walking in a world of pure snowflakes. The air was so fresh and invigorating, it made me feel alive and renewed.

Looking around, I saw the beauty of winter. The trees were covered in white, and the fields were blanketed with snow. The world was so quiet, it was as if time had stopped. It was a day to be savored.

As I continued to walk, I couldn't help but think of all the people who needed a day like this. Those who were without a place to go, those who were hungry and cold, those who were alone and needed a friend. It was a day to remember, a day to be grateful for.

But as I stood there, looking out at the world around me, I couldn't help but think of the beauty of winter. The snow, the trees, the quietness, it was all so peaceful and serene. It was a day to be cherished.

So, if you're out there today, whether it's clear and crisp or cloudy and gray, just take a moment to appreciate the beauty of winter. Take a walk outside, feel the snowfall, and be grateful for this precious time.

Here's to a beautiful winter day, and to all those who need a day like this.

Humphrey Praises Church Program

WASHINGTON (CIT) — Sen. Robert A. Humphrey of Min- nesota, a 10-year veteran in the Senate, this week praised the Catholic Church for its record program of education, particularly in Latin America.

Speaking before a meeting of the National Catholic Laymen, Mr. Humphrey said, "The Catholic Church is the most important force in Latin America today, and its educational work is the key to that country's future."

Mr. Humphrey also praised the Church for its work in social and economic development in Latin America. "The Church is not only teaching its people to read and write, but it is also teaching them how to farm, how to build roads, and how to run efficient industries," he said.

Mr. Humphrey said the Church's work in Latin America was a positive example for the rest of the world. "The Church in Latin America is a shining example of how an organization can work for the common good," he said.

Mr. Humphrey also praised the Church for its work in the United Nations. "The Church is a powerful force in the United Nations, and its influence is felt in many areas," he said.

Mr. Humphrey concluded his remarks by saying that the Church's work in Latin America was a source of pride for the United States. "I am proud to be a Catholic, and I am proud of the work the Church is doing in Latin America," he said.

Church Law Change Could End 'Trial Marriage'

The Catholic Church's new law, which went into effect last week, has ended a legal loophole that allowed couples to marry without a legal ceremony.

The new law, which was introduced by Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York, has been hailed by Church officials as a major step forward in the Church's effort to modernize its legal system.

The new law, which was passed by the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office, has been approved by Pope John XXIII.

The new law states that a marriage can only be entered into by a civil ceremony, and that a couple can only be married once.

The new law also states that a couple must be at least 18 years old to marry.

The new law has been welcomed by Church officials as a major step forward in the Church's effort to modernize its legal system.

They have said that the new law will help to prevent the Church from entering into illegitimate marriages.

The new law has also been welcomed by many couples, who have said that it will help to prevent them from entering into marriages that they are not prepared to sustain.

A diamond receives light and glows; it is a piece of real value if all the others have been taken away from it. Although we may lose the most precious things, we must give up the diamond; you need only give up the diamond to be free from it. The diamond is the only thing that is free from it.
