Plan Medical Insurance In Paterson

PATerson - Institutions of the Advocate Ministry will provide the religious with some basic protection for illness and death. Bishop John J. Kocisko, the Bishop of Paterson, announced yesterday that a program to provide medical protection for the religious would be set up by the third week in October.

BISHOP ASKS INSURANCE

The Bishop asked that all the religious and members of the diocesan clergy cooperate in setting up the program. A representative of the St. John's Hospital in Paterson will be named to the Bishop's committee to help set up the program.

THE MOVE

The program is to be a local one, Bishop Kocisko said, because the religious are a free people and not a dependent group like the poor or the aged.

The March on Washington

Aug. 28, 1963, will long be remembered as a day when the conscience of the country was finally stirred into action. The year 1963 was one of the most productive in the history of the civil rights movement, and the March on Washington was a key event in that year.

In a statement by John Lewis, the head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, he said, "The March on Washington is a day of celebration, a day of joy, a day of hope. We are united in our determination to end racial discrimination and to achieve equality for all Americans." The March was a powerful demonstration of the power of nonviolent resistance and a testament to the resilience of the human spirit.

The following are some highlights from the March on Washington:

- The March on Washington was attended by 250,000 people, making it one of the largest protests in American history.
- The Reverend Martin Luther King Jr. delivered his famous "I Have a Dream" speech, in which he called for an end to racism and poverty.
- The March on Washington was one of the last major civil rights protests before the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

In conclusion, the March on Washington was a significant event in the history of the civil rights movement. It demonstrated the power of nonviolent resistance and the resilience of the human spirit. The March was a powerful reminder that change is possible, even in the face of great adversity.

A First-Hand March Report

Editor:
The March on Washington started early for people in the make-up department of the American Legion Council — at 6 a.m. — and for others, the Legion's Junior Boys State session at the American Legion Headquarters, \V.D.S.

Josephine A. Brennan, 3rd Ward, National Avenue,

March 8, 1946

A First-Hand March Report

We set out at 6 a.m. to get a first-hand view of the doughnut march, which was the first time the doughnut march had been held.

We were a little disappointed when we arrived at the American Legion Headquarters, where we expected to see a crowd of doughnuts.

However, when we arrived, we found that the doughnut march had already begun.

We followed the marchers down the streets of the city, and were very impressed with the enthusiasm of the participants.

They marched in formation, singing songs and carrying signs.

We were able to interview a few of the marchers, and they told us that the doughnut march was to protest against the closing of doughnut shops in the city.

They said that they were determined to keep their doughnuts and that they would not give up until the doughnut shops were reopened.

We were impressed with their determination, and we felt that they had a very good point.

We learned that the march was being led by a group of doughnut enthusiasts who had formed an organization to promote the cause of the doughnut.

We were able to speak with the leader of the organization, who told us that they were planning to hold more marches in the future.

We were very encouraged by their enthusiasm, and we felt that they had a good chance of success.

We believe that the doughnut has been a staple of American life for many years, and we feel that it should be protected.

We were pleased to see that the doughnut march had been so well attended, and we hope that it will continue to grow in popularity.

We believe that the doughnut should be preserved for future generations, and we hope that the doughnut march will help to achieve this goal.

Sincerely yours,

NEWARK, N. J. — It’s back to school again! The Advocate is as eager as any first day student for the school year to get underway.

This year, however, though we may be in our teens or twenties, we well know the excitement associated with heading to the classroom, buying new clothes, doing homework in the privacy of our dormitories, and the like.

This year, many of us are to head off to college, to leave the classroom behind, to work, to help others.

MARYANN J. of the Orange signed right for the Orange school. "It’s tough to say goodbye to the school, but I can’t wait to start college," she said.

In a report, Sister Mary Cecilia, principal, said she was pleased to see the rising generation of students ready to head off to higher education.

"We are very proud of our students," she said. "They have shown a great deal of promise and potential for the future." The Advocate wishes all its readers, whether they head off to college, school, or work, the best of luck.

J. of North Bergen, who signed right for St. Mary’s, said he was looking forward to the challenge of college and the opportunity to learn more about his field.

"I’m excited to be heading off to college," he said. "I know it will be tough, but I’m ready for the challenge." The Advocate wishes him well.

NIGHTMARE, 20, of the Orange signed right for the Orange school. "I’m excited to be heading off to college," she said. "I know it will be tough, but I’m ready for the challenge." The Advocate wishes her well.

Students Learn French a New Way

By June Sawyer
MONTCLAIR — For years several language teachers have been conducting their classes in French. But Sister Rita Thomas, O.F.S., Principal here, has found that, just as in all other subjects, one can teach the language in new and creative ways. Sister Rita has found that students here today are more receptive and are able to learn more effectively in the new method.

But now no creation has been more revolutionary in the teaching of language than the one that Sister Rita Thomas and her associates have been using for the past two years. The method is called "Patient, Active, Immediate, Total, Direct" and is known by the initials "PAIDT.

The program is offered by the French and Latin School Co., which teaches Latin and French in basic classes as well as in college preparation classes. There are also adult classes in both subjects.

"T he method is as follows," Sister Rita Thomas said. ""It is called "Patient, Active, Immediate, Total, Direct." "Active," she said, "is the keyword. "It is no more teaching French than it is teaching English. "Students are asked to learn by experience. "As for the students, they will be taught by the patient method."

The students are taught to speak French before they are taught to write in the language.

This method has been tried in different schools, including Notre Dame High School in New York where French Language Teacher Sister Susan Thomas, O.F.S., has been using it for two years. Sister Rita said that the method has worked very well for the students at her school. She said that she has noticed a marked improvement in the students' French speaking ability.

The method is based on the use of "spontaneous" language, or language that is not taught in a formal classroom setting. The students are taught to speak French in a natural way, and are encouraged to use the language as much as possible.

Sister Rita said that the method has been very successful in helping students to develop their skills in the language.

The method is becoming more popular in schools throughout the country, and is being used in many different schools, including Notre Dame High School in New York.

Church Support for Rights Seen Proved by March

WASHINGTON (AP) - Civil rights demonstrators poured into Washington Thursday in the largest demonstration yet on behalf of Negroes' voting rights. The demonstration showed a new strength and new determination to the civil rights movement.

The decision to march, said the Rev. Martin Luther King, was made after meetings with the Kennedy administration and other Negro leaders.

King said the march against discrimination was a "test of the Negro's determination and willingness to come forth in the strength of numbers to demonstrate publicly and to demand equal rights and equal opportunities for all Americans.

The civil rights movement, King said, has made "great strides" in the past several years and has "achieved some substantial accomplishments. But they have been far from enough and far from irreversible."

Nineteen thousand people had been expected to take part in the march, which would begin at 1:30 p.m. and last about six hours. King said the march was likely to attract a larger crowd than the 24,000 who participated in a demonstration here last March, and that the crowd would "be a potential voter market that cannot be ignored by those who would seek the votes of Negroes.

In the words of a Negro leader: "This is no time to play little games. We need to put one more great rush of the people on the scene."

RESEARCH - A 65-year-old Roman Catholic in Brooklyn was making a final stop Thursday in his efforts to end church support for what he termed "organized sin" in New York.

The man, Fr. Beatty, a former priest, was scheduled to meet with several New York cardinals at the archdiocese's headquarters before flying to Rome to meet with the Vatican's various committees dealing with church affairs.

Fr. Beatty's mission is to end church support for what he terms "organized sin." He has been working for this goal for 20 years and has the support of several New York cardinals.

Meanwhile, the Vatican has also announced that it will conduct a complete review of the New York archdiocese's finances and operations.

Sodalists Warned Against Limiting Role of Religion

NEW YORK (AP) — A walk-through hospital made famous by a famous movie and destroyed by a fire last year will not reopen after conversion. The result of the hospital’s destruction and forced closure is a threat to the downtown area, according to sources familiar with the situation.

The 16-year-old hospital was hit by a fire in the early morning hours on August 24, 2023. The blaze, which started in the basement of the hospital, quickly spread through the building and destroyed most of its interior. The hospital, located at 500 Fifth Avenue, was home to a variety of medical services, including a birthing center, an emergency room, and several operating rooms.

The cause of the fire remains under investigation, but authorities say it is unlikely to be accidental. The hospital had been closed for several months prior to the fire, due to financial difficulties and ongoing construction projects.

Residents of the downtown area and those who have used the hospital are expressing concern about the loss of a vital medical resource. "This hospital was a lifeline for so many people," said one resident. "It provided care for everyone, from newborns to the elderly."

The hospital’s closure has also raised concerns about the future of the downtown area. "With the hospital gone, what will happen to all the people who relied on it?" asked another resident. "Will they be forced to travel farther for care, or will they be left with no options?"

The hospital was once a thriving community asset, providing employment and economic stability to the downtown area. Its closure is expected to have a significant impact on the local economy.

The hospital’s owners have expressed their intention to rebuild, but the timeline for the project is uncertain. "We are committed to rebuilding as quickly as possible," said a spokesperson for the hospital’s owners. "But it will take time to get things going again."

In the meantime, local organizations are working to provide alternative care options for those affected by the hospital’s closure. "We are doing everything we can to help those who need care," said a spokesperson for a local community organization. "But it’s not enough. We need the hospital back in operation as soon as possible."

The downtown area is known for its mix of old and new buildings, with many historic structures standing alongside modern office towers. The hospital’s closure is expected to further change the landscape of the area.

The city has already begun planning for the future of the downtown area, with discussions underway about possible developments and new uses for the space where the hospital once stood. "We are working on a comprehensive plan for the downtown area," said a spokesperson for the city’s planning department. "But the hospital’s closure is a major setback for our plans."

To emphasize the need for the adoption of the birth control program, Dr. John M. R. H. said that the rate of illegitimate births in the United States had increased 40 per cent in the last five years.

He said that the birth control program was also necessary for the health and welfare of the family, as it would enable parents to have the number of children they desired and would prevent the spread of venereal disease.

Dr. John M. R. H. said that the birth control program would also help to reduce the number of abortions, which he said were a major cause of mortality among young women.

He said that the birth control program would also help to reduce the number of children born into poverty, as it would enable parents to have the number of children they desired and could afford.
