Catholic Church
Bishops, Diaconate Discussed at Council

by REV. EDWARD DUFF, R.A.

VATICAN City (CNS)—Discussions of the first week of the semi-annual meeting of the Bishops' conference here have given a “play-off” result and a most happy ending to the session, which ended at 3:30 p.m. today after the Bishops had worked right up to the last minute with the memory of Pope Pius XII constantly before them.

AFTER A one-sided 2,300-page draft statement of the new Missionary Council, which is to be issued and read out at the beginning of the new Vatican 1950 Mission Series on page 30, the Bishops are read back to the beginning.
The new Missionary Council has been drafted and arranged by the late Archbishop Antonio Carafolo, who died here in January. The body has continued the work of the former council, which was dissolved in 1943. The new council will be published in The Official Bulletin of the Holy See.

Mission

Sunday, Oct. 20

NEWARK — Special synods have been established at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stone, directors of the Newark Catholic Social Action Council, 100 Liberty St., at 12:30 p.m. in observance of Missions Week. The synods will be held for the first time in the city, the diocese and the state.

The synods will be open to all those interested in the mission work of the diocese.

Council Decrees Face Delay in Implementation

VATICAN City (CNS)—Inexplicable delays have brought some of the most important decrees of the current synod here onto an indefinite holdup. The decrees, which are of far-reaching religious and social importance, were not reviewed by the synod's doctrinal commission, which was responsible for the preparation of the decrees.

The delay is due to the fact that the synod was not scheduled to meet again until next year.

“Council Importance Stressed by Pope During Audience

The Pope is expected to stress the importance of the council during his audience with the council next week.

Polish Restrictions Scored By Cardinal Wyszynski

Pfulin, Italy (CNS)—“Without Christ and without Faith there is no freedom, no liberty.” This was the declaration of Cardinal Wyszynski, Archbishop of Warsaw, in his address to the Polish bishops here today at the conclusion of their meeting.

The Polish bishops have been under constant pressure from the government to conform with Communist policies.

NEWARK Priests

Safe in Homemade

NEWARK — Word has reached the archdiocese here that four priests have been killed during last week at a nodeName at a town in southwestern Poland.

The four priests, who were on their way to Krakow, were killed by a group of Polish police.

The incident was one of the many that have occurred in Poland recently.

Congress Urged to Include Private Schools in Aid Plans

WASHINGTON — Congress is urged to include private schools in aid plans, including parochial and other non-public schools.

The new aid plans should meet the needs of all children, regardless of their religious affiliation, and should be developed to improve the quality of education for all children.

Polish restrictions are scored by Cardinal Wyszynski, Archbishop of Warsaw, in his address to the Polish bishops here today.

It is not clear whether the Polish government will accept the Pope's demands.

Father Louis Named

Elizabeth Pastor

ELIZABETH, N.J. — The late Bishop John A. Ryan, who was the first to establish an oratory in the United States, named Father Louis to be his successor in the pastorate of the Catholic Oratory of the Holy Name, located at 40th and Main Streets, here.

The new pastor will be responsible for the spiritual and temporal affairs of the oratory, which serves the religious and social needs of the Catholic population in the community.

Father Louis, who has been serving as a priest in the Archdiocese of Newark, will succeed Bishop Ryan, who died last year.

Cardinal Spellman Opposes Proposal for Lay Diacone

Cardinal Spellman, in a statement issued October 13, 1932, said that the proposed plan to ordain laymen to the priestly orders would be "incompatible with the very essence of our Church's structure." He expressed the hope that the reform would be shelved pending further study and consultation.

Cardinal Spellman's Statement:

Cardinal Spellman, in a telephone statement to the press in New York City, expressed his opposition to the proposal for lay diacones. He said that the idea was "incompatible with the very essence of our Church's structure." He added that he hoped the proposal would be shelved pending further study and consultation.

Reform's Goal:

The reform, proposed by some Church leaders, aims to permit laymen to take on priestly roles in the Church. This includes the possibility of ordaining laymen to the diaconate, the lowest level of the clergy, which would allow them to perform certain religious tasks.

Cardinal Spellman's Concerns:

Cardinal Spellman expressed concerns that the reform might lead to a dilution of the Church's doctrine and structure. He said that the proposal could undermine the authority of the Church and the sanctity of the clergy. He also expressed concern about the possibility of laymen taking on roles that are traditionally reserved for priests.

Future Actions:

Cardinal Spellman said that the reform should be studied further and consulted with the hierarchy before any decision is made. He said that the proposal should not be rushed into law without careful consideration.

Conclusion:

Cardinal Spellman concluded by saying that the reform is an "attempt to change the very essence of our Church's structure." He expressed his hope that the proposal would be shelved pending further study and consultation. He added that the reform should not be rushed into law without careful consideration.

Aussies Plan State Aid

SYDNEY, Australia (NJC) — The New South Wales State Government has offered to pay one-quarter of the cost of placing pupils of low-income families in private schools. The offer covers 32 schools in the Sydney Catholic system. The plan, which will begin on Aug. 1, is estimated to cost $450,000, with the state government and the Catholic Archdiocese of Sydney sharing the cost. Under the plan, families who qualify will receive up to $75 per week per child for the cost of tuition at a participating school. The program is expected to benefit about 500 families.

Protest Extreme Prayer Action

TEACHERS, PARENTS and students wish to present another in the series of demonstrations being staged by the National Public School Pledge Committee to protest against school prayer bills. A demonstration will be staged in Parsippany to protest a bill which would permit the recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public school among other religious activities.

College Aid

Support Urged

At an open meeting of the Public Education Committee, President Delvin expressed the belief that a "united college community" must oppose the passage of federal and state discrimination at CUNY. Speaking of the movement, Delvin described the efforts of federal and state discrimination in detail. The movement "is largely," he said, "and not unusual for bills to be introduced. As a result of the national movement to support public funds to strengthen all types of institutions of higher education, both public and private."

"The mission of man is one of great happiness and immense privilege, what all is and what must be one, but it must be resisted, its powers and rewards do not correspond to the worth of it, but in generous sacrifice."

John H. Davis

Talent for Sale

Highly productive employees are offered to the job that most, compensation, rarely do not amount to work, severely-valued. The record shows it's true - hard work, more, efficient, low. Making abilities, are among the nation's best.

HOW MANY ARE THERE among us? The total number of the U.S. Public health Service indicates that over 300,000,000 people are in low. They are born with some physical or mental disability, however, and need receive disabilities from work in the fields of some disabling. All such state vocational rehabilitation programs and educational training has helped many of the handicapped for important roles in the economy. More important, these programs have helped to restore their confidence and belief in themselves as productive persons.

Many employers say away from hiring handicapped people because of a false idea that it would be successful. Reliable industrial company has been quoted as saying, "It is better to employ the handicapped as though they were those without handicap, because we place them in jobs where the work is the most suitable for them."

THOSE NOT IN A POSITION TO WORK, or some people who cannot work, have created a problem by creating an awareness of the abilities of these people. It is not that we are trying to help those who are disabled, but the kind that gives them an opportunity to help themselves.

CHANGING THE IMAGE

By JOSEPH B. THOMAS

As such things are meant, the image is still to be changed. It's not as if we have not been trying to change the image, but there still remain some strange ideas about the Catholic Church in the United States.

For Vocations

As we are falling in love with the idea of change, we are falling in love with the idea of change as well. It is easy to overlook the idea of change in the United States. America does some real work with the idea of change, and we are always thinking of the Congregation of the Holy Cross in the United States.

The New Source of Flow

For Vocations

Members of the Congregation of the Holy Cross are being called to join with others in the United States in the making of a new source of flow. It is called the "New Source of Flow," a result of the efforts of the Congregation of the Holy Cross in the United States.

October Intentions

The intention of the October intentions is the preparation of the Congregation of the Holy Cross for inclusion in the Apostolate of the Octave of the Holy Cross.

The spread of the Gospel is the main intention of the October intentions. This is the intention of the October intentions. The spread of the Gospel is the main intention of the October intentions. The spread of the Gospel is the main intention of the October intentions.

For Prejudice

Betreue

The present racial situation in the United States is a cry for help from one circumstance to another. Many of us are filled with hatred, rage, and anger. How can the masses of people, without prejudice, do anything? We are the legislators, the police, the doctors, the lawyers, and educators. We are the administrators, we are the politicians, we are the social workers, we are the representatives of the almighty nation. We are the leaders of the world, we are the people who make the decisions, and we are the people who have the power to make the changes.

The story of the refugees is one that has come to our office, with the following facts:

1. There are over 100 refugees present at any one time.
2. The refugees are from all over the world.
3. They are not medical or scientific students, but they are refugees.

We do not claim that we are united in any way, but we are united in our love for the refugees. Mr. Brown, who is in charge of the refugees, said that 80% of the refugees are Americans.

The refugees have been treated poorly by the government. They have been refused entry into the United States, and they have been denied basic human rights. The United States has a duty to protect its citizens, and it has a duty to protect the refugees. The refugees have come to our office, and we will do everything we can to help them.

Documentaries Do Damage

By WILLIAM G. HOERING

Now that the curtain is up on the 1958-1959 season of documentary feature- shorts, it is clear that the film industry is taking the new genre seriously. The tone and mood of the various films being released vary widely, ranging from serious and thought-provoking to lighthearted and entertaining. The films explore a wide range of topics, from social issues and current events to historical events and personal stories. Despite the diverse range of content, all of the films share a common goal: to inform and engage the audience in important and relevant topics. Overall, the documentaries of the 1958-1959 season demonstrate the power and potential of the documentary genre as a tool for communication and education.

Telegram to Hu Lai Vietnamese Talks in UN

WASHINGTON, DC (September 1963) — A telegram from Hu Lai, Prime Minister of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, was received at the United Nations in New York on September 1963. Hu Lai wrote:

"I want the people of Vietnam to know that I am sending a message to the United Nations. This message is about the Vietnamese people's desire for peace and equality. We believe that Vietnam should be free and that all Vietnamese should have the right to determine their own future. I hope that the United Nations will support our cause and help bring about a peaceful resolution of the Vietnam conflict."

The telegram concluded with Hu Lai's signature and the date of September 1963.
Young Advocates Have Role in the Council

By SUSAN ZINER

Young people are dedicated to helping the Church by serving as Catechumens. The Catechumenate is a time of prayer and reflection, during which the candidate comes to understand the Church, its teachings, and the need for faith in God. The Young Advocates are a group of young people who work to support and encourage the Catechumenate program. They meet regularly to discuss ways to help those who are preparing for baptism.

One of the Young Advocates, John, shared his experience:

I've found that the Catechumenate is a very important part of my faith journey. It helps me to understand the Church's teachings and to connect with others who are also seeking to deepen their faith. I've been able to share my experiences and encourage others to join in this important work.

Young Advocates provide a vital number of ideas with different kinds of services, events, and activities. A choir, a worship team, and a prayer group are some examples of the various ways that young people can be involved. Young Advocates also work to support those who are preparing for baptism, by providing guidance and support.

Have You Read...?

The following are some ideas that have been shared by the Young Advocates in their meetings:

- Organizing a Catechumenate retreat
- Creating a prayer group
- Planning a service project

We encourage everyone to take part in these events and to learn more about the Catechumenate program. The Young Advocates are a great resource for those who are interested in getting involved.

Fire Prevention Puzzle

Here's a puzzle for Young Advocates to solve:

A local fire department has received a call to respond to a fire in a residential home. The fire has spread quickly and the firefighters are concerned about the safety of the residents. The puzzle is to determine which of the following steps are necessary to prevent such a fire from occurring:

1. Keep flammable materials away from heat sources.
2. Install smoke detectors in every room of the house.
3. Use a timer when cooking to prevent burnouts.
4. Keep a fire extinguisher in the kitchen.

Which of these steps are necessary to prevent fires?

Acceptable Comics

In this week's comic strip, the characters are discussing the importance of staying healthy. One character says, "I think we should all try to eat more vegetables and fruits." The other character responds, "I agree, let's make sure we're getting enough vitamins and minerals." The comic ends with a joke about how much healthier their lives will be as a result.

Mexican is Barefoot

With Christ

MEXICO CITY (CNS) - Juan Gloria Valdez was one of the most celebrated students in the last generation of Mexican political activists who formed the Mexican Student Confederation in the 1960s.

Valdez, who was arrested and later released, was a leader of the movement that sought to overthrow the government of President Adolfo López Mateos. He was one of the few students who were able to continue their studies after the movement's failure.

Valdez played a key role in the movement's activities, including organizing protests and dẫnaging the government. He was later arrested and released several times, but he continued to work for the cause.

Today, Valdez is remembered as a hero of the Mexican student movement. His legacy continues to inspire young people in Mexico and around the world.

Among Independents
St. Benedict's Holds Spotlight

NEWARK—Three North Jersey Catholic independents are expected to have a hand in this year's Independents' championship. While their chances aren't the same, they may well make an impact on the Independents' championship.

RALPH LEVINE, the 1963 Independents' championship, topped 50 on the Independents' standings, and St. Benedict's, which he is representing, is expected to make a strong showing this year.

But the Indepedents' championship is not the only one in which St. Benedict's will be a factor. The school also has a strong showing in the Independent's championship, and Levine's team is expected to make a strong showing in that direction as well.

St. Benedict's Prep won't have the same firepower as St. Joseph's Prep. The School's conference is much tougher, and the Independents' championship is much more demanding.

FLYING FORTRESSES: The Fortresses, with Ball and Walsh, will be a key factor in the Fortresses' championship run.

Other school attractions include:

South Orange—Nick Longhini, the school's ace, has been a key player in the Fortresses' championship run.

St. Peter's Prep—Ronald Biddle, who is representing the school, has been a key player in the Fortresses' championship run.

The Fortresses' championship is expected to be a close race, with all the teams having a chance to win.

Pirate9 Harriers

NEW YORK—The Seton Hall Harriers will make its first visit to New York City on October 6. The Harriers will face St. Benedict's in a match at 12:30 p.m.

The Harriers, who placed second in the 1963 season, are expected to make a strong showing in the 1964 season.

The Harriers' championship is expected to be a close race, with all the teams having a chance to win.

Pirate Prospects Promising

In the 1963 season, the Pirates' championship was won by Seton Hall, which was led by St. Benedict's Prep. The Pirates are expected to make a strong showing in the 1964 season.

The Pirates' championship is expected to be a close race, with all the teams having a chance to win.

Creation of the board of directors is necessary for the proper management of the Papal Volunteer Program. The board of directors will be responsible for the oversight of the program and ensuring that it is being run smoothly.

MISSION APPEAL

In Detroit

The mission appeal in Detroit is a vital part of the Church's mission work. The mission appeal is aimed at raising funds to support the Church's work in the mission stations. The mission appeal is very important for the mission work in the mission stations.

THE MISSIONS

Somewhere in the Far East a priest shows some tragically backward people how to cook with a solar stove. In a hospital in Oceania a Sister injects a child with a vaccine intended to save him from leprosy which is eating away the flesh of his parents. In 80,000 mission schools around the world youngsters grope their way out of the illiterate darkness of their elders toward a life of new hope.

Educating the ignorant, healing the sick, feeding and clothing the poor and teaching them new ways to help themselves—all these services are performed by the Church's missionaries, over 140,000 in Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Arctic.

But the real reason for missions antedates solar stoves and vaccines and the English language. Missions exist because Christ commanded the Apostles to go forth and teach all nations and make them Christians. The Bishops inherit that command; so do all members of the Church. Theologians consider the obligation to spread the Faith an integral part of dynamic Christianity.

Wrote Pope John in his mission encyclical Princeps Pastorum: "The Christian faithful, members of a living organism, cannot remain aloof and think that they have done their duty when they have satisfied their own spiritual needs. Every individual must give his assistance to those who are working for propagation of God's kingdom."

The need to go forth and teach is as urgent now as it was 2,000 years ago when the command was given by Christ to the tiny band of followers who comprised his Church then. Two-thirds of the people of the world are still not Christians. From the U.S. 7,000 Catholic missionaries have been sent to pagan lands, while 28,000 American Protestant missionaries are abroad.

Those who do not go into the mission lands personally are obliged to assist with prayers and financial support. Funds are received and distributed throughout the world by the Pontifical Society for the Propagation of the Faith, headquartered in Rome, organized on a national basis in each country, and on a diocesan basis under every Bishop. The aim of the Society is to enroll every member of the Church. This year, Oct. 20 will be observed as Mission Sunday throughout the world. In your parish you will have the opportunity to become a member of the Society, and make a contribution beyond the membership dues if you are able. It will be part of the prescribed participation in the mission work of the universal Church, which is described by Bishop Martin W. Stanton, Propagation of the Faith director in Newark, as "the principal work of the Church, the work for which the Church was founded—to teach all men."
An Appeal Every Sunday

Catholics of the Newark Archdiocese last Sunday contributed $1,353,148 to the missions through the diocesan Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Newark, ranked fifth among U.S. dioceses in its contribution to the Pontifical Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

Newark's diocesan mission aid organization is 25 years old. For 25 years its director has been Auxiliary Bishop Martin W. Stanton, who was appointed in the post shortly after Newark became an Archdiocese and had the three counties of the Paterson Diocese separated from it.

During that time Bishop Stanton has preached in some 80 churches each year, spending every non-summer Sunday in the pulpits of his diocesan parish, issuing his plea for mission aid at each Mass, sometimes as many as 12 in a single morning.

He is assisted in this and all the other works of the Society by Msgr. John F. Davis of Seton Hall University, who was appointed by Archbishop Boland last year, and is currently carrying the weekly preaching assignment while the Bishop attends the ecumeneical council in Rome.

Bishop Stanton's mission preaching began on the first Sunday observed in the diocese—1935 when he was a curate at St. Teresa's, Summit. He enrolled 500 members.

He became assistant diocesan director of the Propagation in 1938 and in 1938, director.

Bishop Stanton is vice president and assistant treasurer of the national Society for the Propagation of the Faith, and has been called by the director, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, "the moving spirit of the missions on a national scale." He is also treasurer of the Catholic Medical Mission Board.

In Propagation headquarters at Newark's Chancery Office mission donations are received every day, some of them earmarked for a particular mission or missionary congregation, for a certain part of the world—and others stringless, and easily channeled to people and places known to have special needs.

International Mission Network

The work of the missions often is necessarily performed under primitive conditions—a priest rides a mule over rocky mountain trails to say Mass in a remote village, a sister makes flour sacks into dresses for her orphaned nuns, catechism is taught under a cluster of palm trees.

But the organization which assists these missionaries is a model of modern efficiency, designed to place your mission contribution in exactly the place where it is needed. The Society for the Propagation of the Faith is organized in each diocese with a director appointed by the Bishop, whose responsibility it is to provide assistance to the missionary efforts of his diocese.

—a Mass for You

Mission priests in thatched-roofed jungle chapels have few requests to celebrate Masses for the intentions of their parishioners.

In each mission diocese the customary Mass offering is the key to Mass intentions for mission priests may be added as Mass offerings in Propagation of the Faith first by a number of Missions desired should accompany the offering.

Paterson's mission activities have been directed since 1940 by Msgr. Louis, shown making Mission Sunday plans in his Chancery Office headquarters.

A Cooperation Plan

The steadily increasing support the Diocese of Paterson has given the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in the 26 years since its formation has been an example of the growth of the Church. Paterson's first mission contribution was $3,000. Last year it was $35,670.

Msgr. William F. Louis has been the diocesan director since 1940, when he succeeded Msgr. Edward J. Seulley, the first director.

In 1942 Paterson adopted the Missionary Cooperation Plan which assigns to certain missionary agencies certain parishes in which they contribute for help. Last year 85 parishes participated, giving $37,600 to 22 different agencies.

Paterson's mission effort is also distinguished by activities of the Catholic Student Association, which is organized in 11 high schools, 23 elementary schools, the College of St. Elizabeth and several religious houses. Carrying out the CSMC aim of educating youth about the missions, the diocesan office sponsors four regional radio programs, which are heard every week, and a series of workshop talks, and awards are conferred on students for distinguished achievement in mission assistance.

These projects are in addition to the Mission Sunday appeal in the parishes for enrollment in the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, the 26th year, which will be followed in June by a special appeal for help. Last year they involved 1,388 parishes, giving $7,000 to 22 agencies.

Msgr. Louis is also chancellor of the diocesan office for Propagation business in the Chancery Office.

New Jersey Was a Mission Land

In 1820 the Society for the Propagation of the Faith leased the church in the city of Newark in the missionary land of America. It was the first church in the oldest in the area of North Jersey. The church was formed into an archdiocese; without Propagation of the Faith, it would probably have been sold as evidence.

It was Bishop Dubos of New York who asked for the help of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, which had no Bishop in those days. But the Church had been growing sufficiently for the creation of a diocese, comprising all of New Jersey, and in the year 1847, Bishop James Bayley was appointed. Eight months after his installation Bishop Bayley asked the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, then headquartered in Lyons, France, for help. Helped in the beginning, Bishop Bayley wrote, "the Diocese of Newark will soon be able to take care of itself, and to give back the kindness which we have received."

The request was answered with enthusiasm. By 1866 the Sea of Newark had been divided into three dioceses. The Church in New Jersey had a mission in every part of the state; it was no longer a missionary territory, it was no longer a mission area of aid, but rather a new archdiocese, spreading the Faith in mission territory.

In 1855 Bishop Bayley had returned to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, a Catholic population in New Jersey, and the work of sending out "missionary priests, of whom eight including myself were born in this country, 17 born in Ireland, five German, four Irish, French or Italian."

New Jersey was divided into an archdiocese and three dioceses. North Jersey, consisting of the Newark Archdiocese and the Paterson Diocese, has some two million Catholics served by a largely native clergy of some 1,500 priests.

Bishop Bayley's promise of an annual five-dollar aid sent by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith was honored to the last. The aid was transferred to the dioceses, and from the Sea of Newark and Paterson alone, more than $10,000 was contributed to the missions.

Where the Mission Dollar Goes

Your $1 annual membership dues in the Society for the Propagation of the Faith will be distributed through four ways. Some travels halfway around the world; some stays right here in the U. S. in areas where the Church is still in a condition of formation. To the foreign missions goes 46 cents; to the U. S. home missions, 46 cents; to missions in the Near East, 9 cents, and to Latin America, 3 cents.

INDIA: A GIFT FOR A KING

St. Mary, Queen of India, was called the Sacred Heart Convent in KANCHANAVAR, India. This was a mountainous place. We walk five miles from the mission house to get to the forest, across rope bridges, high hills and steep valleys, to visit the families who earn their living by painting the land. Our Archbishop wrote an appeal to the children and he traveled to the primary schools with them. The people were so poor they were unable to build one of their own in order to have their children educate...

The Holy Father’s Mission Aid for the Oriental Church

This is a gift for the Pope, who encourages the Church in foreign lands by the gift of the Oriental Church. The Pope sends the money to the Diocese, which distributes it among the missionary priests. The Pope blesses the money and asks for donations to raise the priests to the level of the Pope.

VENERABLE JOHN NEUMANN

This holy last-century leader of the Philadelphia archdiocese will be beatified on Oct. 13, Pope Paul VI. His great love and work was among children. He often taught them catechism personally and he founded the diocesan system of Catholic schools in the United States. A new association will enable future Bishop Neumanns in the U. S. to work more efficiently.

MISSIONARY

Missionaries of the Holy Family

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith, also known as the Propagation Society, was founded in 1822 to support Catholic missions in the Americas and elsewhere. It received its charter from Pope Pius VII and was canonized in 1875.

 Charity Works

The society supports a range of charitable works, including schools, hospitals, and social services, as well as missionary activities.

Missionaries

The society has trained thousands of missionaries to work in the Americas, Africa, Asia, and other regions. Many of these missionaries have gone on to become saints and have been elevated to the rank of cardinal by the Pope.
