U.S. Bishops Ask Council Declarations On Church-State Issue, Racial Equality

An Advocate News Summary

VATICAN CITY—The Bishops of the United States this week asked the Vatican Council to give full consideration to two topics — racial equality and the separation of Church and State.

Bishop Robert E. Tracy of Baton Rouge addressed the council on the racial question — asking for a strong endorsement of the equality of racism — and Archbishop Lawrence J. Shehan of Baltimore requested the council to give treatment of the Church-State question.

In each case, they spoke in the name of their fellow U.S. Bishops. The decisions to petition the council as a body were taken at the regular weekly meeting of U. S. Bishops, presided over by Archbishop Thomas A. Boland of Newark.

BISHOP TRACY noted that the schema on the Church states there can be no inequality among its members because of national origins, social class or sex. He asked that the text be amended to include race.

He declared: "The inclusion of this point would emphasize that equality which is enjoyed by all the members of the people of God in the Christian economy. No discrimination based on racial considerations can be reconciled with the truth whereby we believe that God creates all men equal in rights and dignity. Such an addition would also make clearer the text in which St. Paul states that among Christians there can be no distinction between Jew and Greek.

"The terms 'Jew' and 'Greek' in this context are to be understood as referring more to distinctions based on religion, culture and race rather than on strict national origin.

"If this change is made it will be easier for Bishops to provide their faithful with the proper instruction on the question of race prejudice. It would also reassure those who have been humiliated or have been deprived of natural rights because of racial prejudice. In addition it would serve as a basis for important future declarations of the council."

AT THE U. S. Bishops' press panel, Bishop Tracy said that he had been authorized to speak for the other Bishops at the American hierarchy's meeting of Oct. 21. He explained that the "147 Bishops of the U. S." mentioned in the council press office communique referred to the actual signatures of Bishops affixed to a petition which was attached to his speech when he presented it to the council secretariat.

Bishop Tracy said that the insertion of "race" in the schema text involved two problems: first, the idea of race is not easily expressed, and second, Latin has no real word for race, for the Romans did not have a race problem. So, he said, he used the Latin word "stirpe" which is close but not precise. In order to be sure that the council Fathers understood his meaning, he said, he had repeated the word "race" in his speech in French, Italian, English and German.

ARCHBISHOP Shehan also addressed a press conference after his council talk, explaining that the phrase "separation of Church and State" has Official Publication of the Archdiocese of Newark, N. J., and Diocese of Paterson, N. J.

Vol. 12, No. 45 THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1963 PRICE: 10 CENTS

HOPEFUL — The miserable, threadbare garments these South American youngsters are wearing will serve them until a shipment of clothing from American Catholics reaches them after the annual Thanksgiving Clothing Collection. Parishes in North Jersey will serve as collection depots for used clothing, bedding and shoes the week of Nov. 3.

Opens Nov. 3 Annual Clothing Drive Aids Poor in 67 Lands

NEWARK—Archbishop Boland cites the recent flood disaster in Italy in a letter to be read at all Masses Nov. 3 urging participation in the annual Thanksgiving Clothing Collection.

The collection will take place from Nov. 3-9 in the Archdiocese of Newark and Diocese of Paterson. A staggered schedule has been set up in the U. S. this year in order to facilitate shipping of the millions of pounds of clothing.

WRITING FROM the Vatican Council, the Archbishop said, "We could not help but think of you at home when we learned of the Piave River disaster . . . In the face of such tragedy in all parts of the world, the destitute are clothed and warmed from the storerooms of this annual appeal.

"Last year the needy of 67 countries of the world benefited from your generosity in receiving clothing, shoes, blankets, remnants and sewing materials. Every article can literally save a life. More than this, each shows the love of Christ to the poverty-stricken of Latin America, the emerging nations of Africa and the driven souls of Southern Europe and the Near and Far East."

REV. FRANCIS J. Houghton, assistant chancellor, is director of the collection in the Newark Archdiocese. Msgr. John J. Shanley, director of Catholic Charities in Paterson, is in charge of that diocese.

Assistant directors in Newark are Msgr. John J. Kiley, executive director of The Advocate, for press relations; Rev. Robert P. Egan, director of New Jersey Boytown, for parish distribution, and Msgr. Thomas J. Gillhooly of Seton Hall University for radio and television.

THIS IS THE 15th annual collection and it has grown in quantity each year until a record of 17,842,000 pounds was collected in 1962, valued at over $25 million. Catholic Relief Services-NCWC administrators the program.

In both Paterson and Newark, pastors are asked to inform their congregations where and when the clothing may be donated.

A SUNDAY VISIT — Mr. and Mrs. James Spain of Montclair were among 30 Negro couples in the Essex County who opened their homes to visits from 60 white couples Oct. 27 in a program sponsored by the sociology department of Seton Hall University. ## Easter Date, Divine Office Rome Topics

An Advocate News Summary

VATICAN CITY — Voting in the Second Vatican Council this week centered around the liturgical year and the Divine Office. Council Fathers took a beginning step toward a revised world calendar and a fixed date for Easter and approved — without reservation — chapters four and five of the liturgy schema.

CHAPTER FIVE of the liturgy schema, on the liturgical cycle, contained the provision for a world calendar and the Easter date. Both items were included in the 10th and final amendment to the chapter, all of which won approval. The vote on the chapter as a whole was 2,154 for, 21 against and 16 in favor with reservations.

The amendment stated that the council considers the wish for a fixed Sunday for Easter and for a permanent calendar to be of importance and hence, after paying due heed to the consequences that may follow from such a new calendar, declares that such changes shall be studied.

The amendments:

- Put greater emphasis on the pre-eminent role of the Blessed Virgin in the Church's liturgical cycle.
- Stressed the fact that, in close connection with the liturgical year, the Church also makes use of instruction, prayer, works of mercy and penance as elements in the formation of the laity.
- Provided that, if it becomes necessary to make adaptations in the liturgical year because of special local circumstances, this shall be done with the authority of the episcopal conferences.
- Stressed the importance of the observance of Sunday in the liturgical year.
- Pointed up the twofold aspect of Lent as a period of preparation for Baptism and as a season of penance.
- Noted that Lenten instructions should not fail to stress the social character and consequences of sin and to make clear the nature of sin as an offense against God.
- Stated that penitential practices, in accordance with the changed conditions of the times and adapted to local possibilities and conditions, should be urged and commended by the competent authorities.
- Declared the saints are to be honored and their images and authentic relics are to be held in veneration.
- Provided that articles 85 and 86 of the schema be taken out of the main body of the text and be made an appendix entitled "Declaration of the Second Vatican Council on the Reform of the Calendar."

THE VOTE OF approval on chapter four, on the breviary, reflected a change from the Fathers' action on chapter two (on the Mass, including use of the vernacular) and chapter three (on the sacraments). In both cases, the chapters were approved but the number of "approvals with reservations" — "juxta modum" in Latin — was enough to delay final endorsement.

There were 1,638 votes for the fourth chapter; 43 against, and 552 for with reservations.

Previously there had been rumors that a bloc of juxta modum votes was ready to prevent final passage. Before the vote was taken, however, Archbishop Pericle Felici, council secretary general, issued a note of caution. He urged the Fathers to be sparing in casting their votes juxta modum, saying that "such votes are a real cross for the members of the commission."

JUXTA MODUM votes have been used successfully as a parliamentary device by blocs of council Fathers to force reinsertion of elements into a schema which had been dropped by council commissions.

Technically, a juxta modum vote is a favorable vote. When such a vote is cast, the one so voting is required to attach a note explaining his objection. A sufficient number of such votes could prevent a schema from passing and would compel a commission to examine the objections, rewrite the schema accordingly and return it to the council for another vote.

The amendments to the breviary section of the schema, all of which are approved:

- Emphasis on the fact that Christ continues His priestly activities through the Church not only in the celebration of the Holy Eucharist, but in other ways as well, especially in the Divine Office, which offers to the Father both praise and intercession for the salvation of the world.
- Addition of exhortation to those who recite the Divine Office to do so with great fervor and devotion.
- A statement that priests engaged in the pastoral ministry have a special need to recite the Office prayerfully, that the Lord will make their labors effective.

4. PROVIDES THAT the hour of Matins (originally night Office — which consists largely of psalms and readings from the Bible and the Fathers of the Church) should have fewer psalms and longer readings.

5. Proposes the suppression of the hour of Prime, which is a second form of morning prayer and somewhat of a duplication of the principal morning prayer which is Lauds.

6. Provides that an individual who is obliged to pray the Office should be bound to recite only one of the three remaining shorter hours of the day. (The "little hours" traditionally have been Prime, Terce, Sext and None. This amendment and the preceding one would considerably shorten the total length of the Office.)

7. A new article urging priests and all who take part in the Church's public prayer to make it a source of holiness and personal spiritual growth.

8. Declares that the revision of the Latin translation of the Book of Psalms should take ped by council commissions.

so voting is required to attach a note explaining his objection. A sufficient number of such votes could prevent a schema from passing and would compel a commission to examine the objections, rewrite the schema accordingly and return it to the council for another vote.

End Talks on Laity Fathers Begin Discussion On 'Call to Holiness'

By MSGR. JAMES I. TUCEK

VATICAN CITY (NC)—Council Fathers began debate on chapter four of the schema on the Church—entitled "Call to Holiness in the Church"—at their Oct. 25 meeting.

Discussions began following the last speeches on Chapter III, "The People of God and Especially the Laity."

At the same time the Fathers continued voting on amendments to the liturgy schema, passing the final five of 10 amendments to chapter five, which deals with the liturgical year and then approving the chapter as a whole.

CHAPTER FOUR of the schema on the Church contained these general principles:

In the mystery of the Church all are called to holiness. Christian holiness is one for all, whatever their state or way of life. Beginning in faith and Baptism, it grows by grace into abundant fruits.

The one holiness is developed in many ways of life and in many functions. The council exhorts all priests, secular and religious, to fulfill their ministry with holiness, eagerness and strength, on the model of the order of Bishops, who are established in the vocation to the perfect exercise of pastoral charity, and with whom all priests are united in the one Eucharistic Sacrifice.

The council also addresses itself to married persons and parents so that they may help each other in a life of grace with faithful love, and may give a Christian mind and the evangelical virtues to their children.

THE EVANGELICAL councils do not constitute perfection; yet they greatly contribute to the fervor of charity. There are many in the Gospel, although three are particularly praised in the doctrine and practice of the Church: poverty, chastity and obedience.

All the faithful are called to holiness, though not necessarily to the practice of the evangelical councils. Many Christians practice the councils as a stable way of life, approved by the Church, called the State of Striving for Perfection.

Since those who follow the councils are united to the Church in a special way, their spiritual life must serve the good of the whole Church.

Since love for one's neighbor derives from love of God, the function of working for the Kingdom of Christ in souls derives from the profession to seek holiness.

ON ACCOUNT of his primacy in the Universal Church the Roman Pontiff can, for the common good, exempt individuals of perfection from the jurisdiction of the Ordinary. The religious in the performance of their function must show reverence and practice obedience, in keeping with canon law, to the Bishops, by reason of their pastoral authority in the particular churches and of necessary unity and concord in apostolic work.

All the faithful should remember that the practice of the councils, even though it deprives from some goods that are indeed praiseworthy, does not impede, but helps, the development of the human person. The council praises the innumerable men and women, Brothers and Sisters, who adorn the Bride of Christ by their faithful and humble practice of this consecration.

Since the faithful are bound to seek holiness in the spirit of the Gospel, each should strive to persevere and excel in the vocation to which he has been called for the glory of Christ, Who is the Origin and the model of all holiness, and for the holiness of the church.

DISCUSSION ON the chap-

Close Council Vote Rejects Separate Schema on Mary

VATICAN CITY — By a narrow margin, the Fathers of the Second Vatican Council this week decided to treat the subject of the Blessed Virgin Mary within the framework of the project on the Church rather than establish an entirely new schema.

In one of the council's closest ballots, 1,114 Fathers voted to discuss the Virgin in the schema "De Ecclesia," while 1,074 voted for the new schema. Two prelates voted for incorporation with reservations, and three ballots were blank.

Since the action was procedural, a simple majority of the 2,193 voting—or 1,097 votes—was sufficient to decide the question.

THUS, BY A margin of 11 votes, the council decided to treat the Marian topic in a chapter of De Ecclesia, which the council has been discussing for the past month. It examines the nature and structure of the Church.

The stage for the Oct. 29 vote was set last week, when council Fathers heard spokesmen give two views on the proposal.

Rufino Cardinal Santos of Manila urged a separate schema for Our Lady. Franziskus Cardinal Koenig of Vienna followed with a review of the reasons favoring incorporating it into the schema on the Church.

Bishop John J. Wright of Pittsburgh, a member of the Theological Commission, explained the origin of the proposed vote at a press panel. He said that prior to the council many Bishops had written to ask that a chapter on Our Lady be incorporated in the schema on the Church.

After an exchange of views in the council hall, the commission took the question under advisement and again there was disagreement within the commission. It was then decided to resolve the debate by an appeal directly to council Fathers, asking for their opinion by a vote.

IN A PRESS talk last week, Abbot Christopher Butler, O.S.B., president of the English Benedictine Congregation, said the topic of Mary "should not be a subject of division between Christians, but a symbol of unity."

The great interest in the topic, Abbot Butler said, is reflected in some 600 suggestions received by council preparatory commissions. "We feel," Abbot Butler added, "that in considering them two aspects should be stressed, first the progress of Scriptural research and secondly, ecumenism."

At another press conference, Rev. Aloisius Grillmaier, S.J., of Frankfurt, Germany, stressed the necessity in discussing the Mariological issue not to assume a sharp division between "maximalists" and "minimalists."

This, he said, would only cloud the problem and create an unhappy atmosphere for discussion in the council.

Observer Criticizes Schema for Omitting Mention of Churches

ROME (NC) — A Protestant delegate observer asserted here that the ecumenical council's document on the nature of the Church is defective since it gives no recognition to churches not in common with the Holy See.

Dr. Edmund Schlink, professor of dogmatic theology at the University of Heidelberg and delegate observer at the council for the Evangelical Church of Germany, spoke a press conference under auspices of the Catholic Bishops of Germany.

"UNDER BOTH Protestant and Orthodox perspectives," said Dr. Schlink, "the proposal appears more Roman than Catholic. Beyond doubt it would be a disappointment for other Christians were it adopted in its present form as a dogmatic constitution."

Dr. Schlink considers the present proposal unacceptable mainly because it "obviously has an exclusive meaning, inasmuch as it carries no reference to churches outside the Roman Catholic Church. It only mentions individual non-Catholic Christians, which amounts to a misconception of non-Roman Christianity, which consists not only of individual Christians but of churches, whose members are certain to share in divine grace and salvation by virtue of Baptism and the Faith that comes to them through the Gospel."

THE THEOLOGIAN said that the proposal starts from the premise that non-Catholics can become true members of the one Holy Catholic Apostolic Church only as individuals. According to the schema, he said, other Christians though baptized now share but imperfectly in sacramental graces.

"What other meaning then," Dr. Schlink went on to say, "has Roman Catholic ecumenism but to absorb other Christians? It would be an illusion to assume that church unity is achievable in such a manner."

"On the contrary, each conversion of individuals, severing ties with existing churches, deepens the gaps between the churches and causes distrust and resistance."

Dr. Schlink then explained that the ecumenical movement sees its goal not in absorption of separated Christians in one of the existing churches but in a union of all churches claiming the same apostolic origin. Thus they might jointly share the gifts given each of them by God, he said.

AUXILIARY BISHOP Walter Kampe of Limburg, head of the German Bishops' press briefing panel, conceded after the lecture that it "certainly is a defect of the schema" to refer to separated Christians but not also to the separated churches.

He added that these problems perhaps have not matured sufficiently to allow for relevant dogmatic pronouncements.

Ties With Newman Are Recalled At Fr. Barberi Beatification

By JAMES C. O'NEILL

VATICAN CITY (NC)—Pope Paul VI cited John Henry Newman's description of Blessed Dominic Barberi—"He loved England very much"—during the Italian Passionist's beatification ceremonies in St. Peter's on the Feast of Christ the King.

In the afternoon part of the rites, the Pope venerated the relics of the new Blessed Dominic of the Mother of God and entwined his name with Newman's as symbols of the future of the Church of England.

THE BEATIFICATION began with morning rites which included the reading of the official document granting Father Dominic the honors of the altar. This was followed by Pontifical Mass sung by Paolo Cardinal Marella, Archbishop of St. Peter's.

The Pope took part in the late afternoon service in honor of Blessed Dominic, devoting most of his homily on the new Blessed to Dominic's relation with Cardinal Newman.

"It was Father Dominic who, on the night of Oct. 8, 1845, at Littlemore (England), heard the decisive profession of the Catholic Faith by that most singular mind (Newman). The extraordinary importance of that simple event and the ever-increasing greatness of the famous Englishman reflects a shining light on the humble religious."

The Pope noted that Newman's conversion—"which as we all know matured through most laborious and dramatic meditation"—cannot be attributed to the direct merit of Blessed Dominic. Yet, the Pope said, we must recognize in Blessed Dominic two other great reasons for merit.

THE FIRST is that "of having heeded a mysterious, inexplicable vocation, clearly present in his soul from the early years of his religious life, to consecrate his apostolic ministry to England, where the Passionists had not yet set foot . . . and the other merit of having provided the image most likely to win the esteem and the admiration of Newman."

Pope Paul quoted this reference to Father Dominic by Newman just before his recitation: ". . . a simple, holy man, and withal gifted with remarkable powers. He does not know of my intention, but I mean to ask of his admission into the one fold of Christ . . ."

The Pope said it is his belief and hope that he would never forget the significance of the meeting of Blessed Dominic and Newman, and that he expected "to dwell on the mysterious meaning of their meeting in great hope and with prolonged prayer."

The Pope switched from Italian to English to deliver a brief series of thoughts on the English phase of Blessed Dominic's life.

FACING TOWARD the papal altar there hung paintings of the two miracles worked through Blessed Dominic's intercession.

One showed the healing of Passionist Brother Damaso at Ceccano, Italy, of arthritis and bursitis on March 8, 1891; the other the instantaneous healing of Ettore Chianura at Massafra, Italy, of pneumonia on Dec. 28, 1854.

The Holy Father's Week

Pope Paul Cites Scientific Path to God

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI has urged an end to "scientific feudalism" in which branches of science tend to specialize and cut themselves off from each other and from religion.

He made his plea during an audience for a group of Italian doctors.

"RESPECT FOR specific competence," the Pope said, "does not draw unbridgeable frontiers between the religious and medical fields . . . Science and the activities derived from it specialize and, so as not to become submerged in each other, tend to form their own principles and to become autonomous, each in its own sphere, and finally to separate from and to ignore each other."

"This exclusive specialization," the Pope continued, "this kind of scientific feudalism which, according to general opinion, is typical of the culture of our times, needs to find a point of convergence for the various disciplines and a return to a confrontation of the various sciences. Lastly, it needs a synthesis, a kind of higher unity, which the simple encyclopedic approach does not offer. It needs a 'summa,' logically organic and morally vital."

THE POPE assured the gathering that the Church observes and follows the progress and activities of the scientific world.

"Where there is research, discovery, conquest — increasing knowledge and action — there is on the one hand the development of human faculties, and on the other there is the penetration of the work of God and the use of the resources hidden in it," the Pope stated.

"So there is a getting together of the two terms, man and God. This is why we always think that scientific progress, far from making religion vain, helps to find always higher and deeper expressions."

Message on Peace
VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI has urged members of the Pax Christi movement not to stray from their role of spreading the peace of Christ and to be aware of the abuses of the word "peace."

The Pope received members of the international Catholic movement devoted to encouraging peace which was founded after World War II in an audience led by Maurice Cardinal Felin of Paris, president of the movement.

"Let it be clear," he said "that the peace for which you are working is and will always be that which has been so beautifully defined by our predecessor, John XXIII, in his memorable encyclical Pacem in Terris, the peace whose name is borne by your movement: the peace of Christ, Pax Christi."

He warned members of the movement to avoid involving the Church in areas not related to the peace of Christ, and urged the essentially European organization to consider enlarging its scope outside of Europe.

Prayer on Feastday
VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI prayed on the feast of Christ the King with 20,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's Square that Christ will be recognized as the peaceful sovereign of the world.

The Pope said: "The Feast of Christ the King makes us think of the centrality of Christ in world history; a centrality which is always being realized and one which we strive to achieve. "And it makes us think of the consequences if in the world Christ were the peaceful sovereign in love, in fratern-

Cardinal Suenens Speaks At Memorial for Pope John

By PATRICK RILEY

VATICAN CITY (NC)—Pope Paul VI offered Mass in St. Peter's Basilica for the ecumenical council Fathers and a vast throng of laymen, priests and religious Oct. 28 to mark the fifth anniversary of the election of Pope John XXIII.

The celebration of the election of a late Pope is unprecedented.

LEO CARDINAL Suenens of Brussels, in an hour-long eulogy delivered after Pope Paul's Mass, said Pope John "left men closer to God and the world a better place for men to live."

"It is right and fitting that we should ask him to intercede for us now with God, so that our council labors, which he inspired, should evolve and come to perfection."

This public plea for prayers to a man not officially proposed by the Church for the veneration of the faithful astounded many in the hall.

THE LATE POPE'S two brothers were present. Pope Paul shook hands with both of them as he left the basilica.

Cardinal Suenens noted that "on the morrow of his election John XXIII might have seemed to be a 'Pope of transition.'"

"And indeed he was that, but in an unexpected manner that the expression does not suggest in its usual meaning. History will surely judge that he opened a new era for the Church."

CARDINAL SUENENS said Pope John is still "present in our midst" in two ways.

"First of all he is present in his well beloved successor, Pope Paul VI, the august continuer of his work . . . It is clear that Providence has given Pope Paul VI to the Church to give form and substance to the prophetic intuitions of his predecessor."

Applause rose from the council Fathers at these words.

The second way in which Pope John continues to be present, Cardinal Suenens said, "is by reason of the sacrifice of his life, which he offered for the happy outcome of the council's labors."

He recalled that in the course of an audience Pope John gave at Castelgandolfo the late Pontiff referred to some council schemata he had been studying. He read some passages aloud.

"Then, suddenly, he stopped and said: 'Oh, I know what my personal part in the preparation of the council will be, and after a pause he concluded: 'It will be suffering.'"

OF POPE JOHN'S confidence in the power of charity, Cardinal Suenens observed "John XXIII was not so naive as to believe that goodness would solve all problems, but he knew that it would open hearts to dialogue, to understanding, and to mutual respect."

THERE WAS a second round of applause when Cardinal Suenens said: "May John XXIII receive, from the heights of heaven, the expression of the council Fathers' deepest gratitude for the singular grace of the council, for his confidence in the episcoppate, which is more than ever unshakably united to the successor of Peter, to Peter who yesterday was called John and who today is named Paul, and to whom we pledge the same love and the same indefectible loyalty."

There was applause again when Cardinal Suenens recalled Pope John's words to observers at the council's first session: "My heart burns with a desire to work and to suffer for the coming of that hour when Jesus' prayer at the Last Supper will be realized for all men."

He said: "It is not easy to make today's world hear the voice of the Church. It is drowned by too much noise. . ."

CARDINAL SUENENS, his voice rising with emotion, recalled how men wept for Pope John "as children for their father, pressing around him to receive his blessing." He went on:

"And the poor wept for him. They knew he was one of them and that he was dying poor like them, thanking God for the poverty that for him had been such a grace."

"And the prisoners wept for him: He had visited them and encouraged them with his presence."

He recalled how a convicted murderer had approached Pope John during his visit to Rome's jail. Could the Pope's words of hope apply to him also, such a great sinner?

"The Pope's only answer was to open his arms and clasp him to his heart. This prisoner is surely a kind of symbol of the whole of mankind, so close to the heart of John XXIII."

Council News Notes

Translation System Approved

Pope Paul VI has given his approval for the installation of a multilingual simultaneous translation system in the council hall to enable council Fathers who find it difficult to follow Latin debates to tune in on them in their native tongues.

Tests are being made during hours when there are no council meetings to establish which arrangement is technically most suitable. The preference appears to be for a wireless setup whereby the Fathers can use individual portable transistor receivers no matter where they might be in the hall.

It is hoped that installation will be completed by Nov. 4. Six languages are to be used: English, French, German, Italian, Spanish and Arabic.

It's only a question of time, most observers feel, before women are admitted to the council as auditors as suggested by Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium. Reaction of the Fathers to the proposal has been favorable.

The present lay auditors themselves, it is understood, suggested the addition of women to their ranks to the council moderators. Further, it is reported that Pope Paul made a reference to the possibility when the first list of lay auditors was submitted for his approval.

One woman, Monique Lahaye, president of the Catholic Women Workers League in France, already has received a unique honor. She was invited to address the French Bishops at one of their general meetings.

Meanwhile, several Fathers have received petitions from the St. Joan's International Social and Political Alliance, a women's group, asking that women be invited to attend as advisers. The petitions also asked a change in the prayers at Nuptial Mass, that special consideration be given to the canons concerning women when Canon Law is revised and that diaconal duties be entrusted to women as well as men if such a change is voted.

Rome is abuzz with reports that something will be done to expedite the work of the council — without infringing on liberty of expression — according to NCWC News Service. NC cited two developments as lending substance to the reports.

One was the meeting held in the office of the papal Secretary of State, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, by the Cardinal members of the Council Presidency and the Coordinating Commission, the four moderators named by Pope Paul, the council's secretary general and the five undersecretaries. The other was the meeting the Pope himself held later with the four moderators.

According to one report, a difference has developed between the council's secretary general and the moderators on controlling repetitious speeches. Another said the Pope is considering conducting future council business by correspondence with the Fathers returning to Rome only for a final session.

Meanwhile, the French, German and African Bishops have reached virtual agreement on a plan to speed up the work.

Their proposal is to reduce the number of weekly general meetings from five to three, the two open days to be used for meetings of various national or regional Bishops' conferences.

After discussion in the conferences, two Fathers would be assigned to present a group's pros and cons of a topic at a general meeting, thereby cutting down on repetition and on talks that stray from the topic.

As one American Bishop remarked, "The work of the council began a year ago and we still have not adopted a single schema. With 17 schemata on the agenda, at this rate it will be 1960 when those of us still alive can go home."

Reforms to overcome "interminable delays" in the Church's matrimonial courts were urged by Archbishop Thomas D. Roberts, retired Archbishop of Bombay, in a written statement submitted to the council.

At a press conference later, he said he had in mind both diocesan courts and the Sacred Roman Rota, the court of appeal in Rome. He said thousands of young people "wait for years for their cases to be settled" and as a result many marry civilly and leave the Church.

Among his proposals was that marriage courts in smaller dioceses abolish themselves and send their cases to regional courts. He also suggested that many cases referred to Rome be handled on the local level.

China is not the only communist country which has prevented its Bishops from attending the council. None of the 10 Bishops from North Vietnam are in attendance. That country should have two other Bishops but the communists have prevented them from being consecrated.

Council Fathers who have their seats on the Gospel side of the council hall in St. Peter's can watch a mysterious amber light on a camera posted just behind a big statue of St. Peter.

The light is bright red when flashed on, and when it is, that means Pope Paul VI is watching!

A suggestion was made by Chaldean Rite Patriarch Paul II Cheikho of Babylon that the non-Catholic observers be given an opportunity to be heard in the council hall at least once a week. He remarked how they "assist reverently at Mass each morning and give evidence of their good will and patience."

The Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity has organized regular meetings for the observers every Tuesday at which minutes are kept. These are sent to the secretariat general of the council and are transmitted to whatever council commission the observers remarks concern.

ROBERT EMMET TRACY is a life-long resident of Louisiana. Born in New Orleans 54 years ago, he was educated in Catholic schools and was ordained in 1932 after studies at New Orleans' Notre Dame Seminary.

He served as an assistant pastor for 14 years, during which time he was active in CCD and Newman Club activities. Elevated to the rank of Monsignor in 1947, he continued his interest in Newman Club affairs and became its national director — succeeding Rev. Paul J. Hallinan, now Archbishop of Atlanta — in 1954.

He was appointed Auxiliary Bishop of Lafayette, La., in 1959, and when the Baton Rouge Diocese was established two years later he became its first Ordinary.

regional courts. He also suggested that many cases referred to Rome be handled on the local level.

China is not the only communist country which has prevented its Bishops from attending the council. None of the 10 Bishops from North Vietnam are in attendance. That country should have two other Bishops but the communists have prevented them from being consecrated.

Council Fathers who have their seats on the Gospel side of the council hall in St. Peter's can watch a mysterious amber light on a camera posted just behind a big statue of St. Peter.

The light is bright red when flashed on, and when it is, that means Pope Paul VI is watching!

A suggestion was made by Chaldean Rite Patriarch Paul II Cheikho of Babylon that the non-Catholic observers be given an opportunity to be heard in the council hall at least once a week. He remarked how they "assist reverently at Mass each morning and give evidence of their good will and patience."

such political and emotional overtones that he asked the council to drop it from the text of "De Ecclesia" — On the Church.

His speech in the council dealt with a passage in the schema's fourth chapter in which laymen are cautioned against the "regrettable separation" of Church and State. Unfortunately, Archbishop Shehan noted, there is an ambiguity in the phrase.

"The word 'separation' has become a fighting word for all of us. We want to get rid of the word 'regrettable' and, if the section cannot be suitably revised, to eliminate it entirely at this time."

The Archbishop said that he favors eliminating it entirely because the whole question of the relations of Church and State are "too important to be introduced into the schema obliquely. If it is to be treated, it should be treated thoroughly."

AT THE PRESS panel, Bishop Victor J. Reed of Oklahoma City and Tulsa said that the American Bishops do not want to speak of Church and State in the present schema, but prefer that it be developed in schema 17, which is on the Church in the modern world.

Archbishop Shehan presented the matter at the council, he said, because the suggestion already had been made that the subject be treated in the schema under discussion.

Archbishop Shehan was the first American prelate to initiate the special Wednesday press conference, at which U. S. Bishops or experts will speak to the press on various phases of the council or allied matters.

Archbishop Shehan also became the first American council Father to celebrate the opening Mass of a meeting since the council's opening in 1962.

Council Newsmaker

Spokesman on Race

The selection of Bishop Robert E. Tracy of Baton Rouge, La., to serve as spokesman for U.S. Bishops at the Vatican Council on racial equality was regarded as especially dramatic for several reasons.

For one thing, it demonstrated to the world the concern of the American Church for this country's race problem.

Secondly, Bishop Tracy is from a state in the South, the section where traditionally the worst aspects of racism have been exposed to the scrutiny of the world.

Finally, Bishop Tracy's own state has been the scene of racial conflict directly involving the Church.

THE ADDRESS was regarded as one of major significance in view of continuing racial unrest at home. Speaking for his fellow American Bishops, Bishop Tracy asked that an amendment to the schema on the Church state clearly that racial inequality — as well as inequality by reason of sex or national and social background — was con-

Message to Algiers

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI has expressed his anxiety at the fighting between Algerian and Moroccan troops in a dispute over national boundaries.

The Papal Secretary of State, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, noted the Pope's concern and hopes for peace in a telegram to Archbishop Leon-Etienne Duval of Algiers.

Date Changed

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Vatican Radio has announced that Pope Paul VI will take possession of his cathedral as Bishop of Rome, the Basilica of St. John Lateran, on Nov. 10 instead of Nov. 9 as reported earlier.

Visitors From Home

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Several thousand pilgrims from the Pope Paul's native town of Brescia in northern Italy were received in special audience by the Pope Oct. 27.

They presented him with vestments and altar vessels to be sent to the missions.

Everything you see here is a witness to Jesus Christ: the sacred monuments, the catacombs, the religious history of Rome, this basilica itself, and St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles whose martyrdom — the word itself means witness — testifies completely to Christ."

Testimony to Christ

VATICAN CITY (RNS) — Pope Paul VI, at a general audience to many thousands of pilgrims from all parts of the world, stressed the duty of Christians everywhere to give witness to Christ in their daily lives.

"We welcome you here today," he told the visitors, "and we are consoled by your faith in Christ, your devotion to the Church, your good Christian life. . ."

"Perhaps coming to Rome, you did not think you were performing such a significant act as giving witness to your religion, your Christian concept of life. Testifying to Christ is the foremost duty of every Christian and by coming here as pilgrims, faithful children of Christ's Vicar, you testify to your own conscience and externally to the world in which we live . . ."

"Everything you see here is a witness to Jesus Christ: the sacred monuments, the catacombs, the religious history of Rome, this basilica itself, and St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles whose martyrdom — the word itself means witness — testifies completely to Christ."

Message on Peace

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI has urged members of the Pax Christi movement not to stray from their role of spreading the peace of Christ and to be aware of the abuses of the word "peace."

The Pope received members of the international Catholic movement devoted to encouraging peace which was founded after World War II in an audience led by Maurice Cardinal Felin of Paris, president of the movement.

"Let it be clear," he said "that the peace for which you are working is and will always be that which has been so beautifully defined by our predecessor, John XXIII, in his memorable encyclical Pacem in Terris, the peace whose name is borne by your movement: the peace of Christ, Pax Christi."

He warned members of the movement to avoid involving the Church in areas not related to the peace of Christ, and urged the essentially European organization to consider enlarging its scope outside of Europe.

Prayer on Feastday

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope Paul VI prayed on the feast of Christ the King with 20,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's Square that Christ will be recognized as the peaceful sovereign of the world.

The Pope said: "The Feast of Christ the King makes us think of the centrality of Christ in world history; a centrality which is always being realized and one which we strive to achieve. "And it makes us think of the consequences if in the world Christ were the peaceful sovereign in love, in fratern-

To Beatify Father Murialdo Nov. 3

19th Century 'Socialist' Due for Honors by Church

By JAMES C. O'NEILL

ROME (NC)—Some of his fellow aristocrats in Turin thought Rev. Leonardo Murialdo was a socialist for advocating an eight-hour day in 1885. But Pope St. Pius X later recognized him for what he was—a very holy man.

On Nov. 3, the Church is paying public tribute to his holiness when Father Leonardo is declared blessed in St. Peter's Basilica.

BLESSED LEONARDO was the son of a financier who was the descendant of a noble family.

Born Oct. 26, 1828, he was the eighth child of Leonardo and Teresa Rho Murialdo. His father died before the boy reached his fifth birthday and his upbringing was supervised by his mother, who took her children to Mass daily.

After finishing his elementary education, Leonardo and his brother Ernesto were sent to study with the Scolopi Fathers at Savona, where they remained for seven years. He excelled as a student.

In 1845, he entered the seminary and on Sept. 21, 1851, he was ordained.

AFTER ORDINATION he was not assigned any specific post and continued to live at home. For a while he continued his studies.

It took almost six years to lead Father Murialdo directly into the career which was to be his life's work. But indications of his special calling showed themselves early in his priestly life.

Among the first was his meeting with a young chimney-sweep who was shivering in rags at his front door. The youngster had come from the north in search of work to help support his mother. The young priest took him into his home, gave him some warm food and a bed.

Gradually the priest's home was transformed into a hospice for street boys who worked for pennies during the day and who at night were taught how to read and write.

AT THE SAME time Father Murialdo brought factory apprentices religious instruction, and visited the city's jails.

In 1857, Don Giovanni Bosco, later St. John Bosco, talked Father Murialdo into assuming directorship of the Oratory of St. Louis, a sort of boys recreational club.

The new director restored the center's chapel and built facilities for day and night school. He also organized athletic teams, a theater and a band. Don Bosco provided him with three assistants: Fathers Rua, Albera and Cagliero. The first two later became superiors general of the Salesian Fathers, the congregation founded by Don Bosco to carry on his work with boys, and the third became a Cardinal.

FATHER MURIALDO remained director of the oratory for eight years. Then he accompanied his brother, Ernesto, to Paris and entered the theological classes at St. Sulpice Seminary. After a year's study, Father Murialdo made a brief visit to London and then returned to Turin.

He took over the operation of the impoverished Artigianelli center for homeless boys and men on a temporary basis in 1866. But it turned into a 34-year job which ended only in death.

Despite efforts to limit the number of boys admitted to the center, the enrollment grew continually. Of 300 youngsters, 250 paid nothing for their keep and the others paid very little. It was only the year before his death that the financial burden of the institution was lifted by the legacy left to him by a Turin aristocrat.

AS THE YEARS went by, Father Murialdo became convinced that the work of the center could only be carried on by a religious congregation. On March 19, 1873, the Pious Turin Society of St. Joseph was founded. It was composed of four priests and two seminarians. The society grew quickly and today numbers over 800 members.

Among many of Father Leonardo's accomplishments in his later years was the founding of the first Catholic workers' union of Turin in 1871.

He proposed reforms governing working conditions, among them: that children be required to attend school until the age of 12 or 14; abolition of night work; establishment of an eight-hour day and laws banning child labor until the age of 16. He also advocated that salary minimums be set by the city to protect helpless workers.

His efforts earned him the contempt of some of his former friends, who accused him of becoming a socialist.

In 1876, he helped found the first Catholic weekly for workers. The paper still exists today under the title the Voice of the People.

HE LIVED until March 30, 1900, when he succumbed to pneumonia. Cardinal Sarlo, who became Pius X three years later, said: "Murialdo is dead. A saint has died." His beatification cause was begun by the Turin Archdiocese and his writings were approved by the Sacred Congregation of Rites in 1918. On April 26, 1961, he was declared Venerable by Pope John.

Interreligious Talks On Birth Problems

NOTRE DAME, Ind. (RNS) — A plea for a White House interreligious conference for a discussion of measures to help underdeveloped countries "deal effectively with their urgent population problems" was made by a noted Catholic theologian and author here.

In his second article on birth control to appear simultaneously in leading Catholic and Protestant magazines, Rev. John A. O'Brien of Notre Dame University here also reiterated a previous proposal that the National Institute of Health conduct "a crash research program in human reproduction in all its phases."

he stressed, "time to end the cold war and to work together as brothers and good neighbors."

Entitled "Let's End the War over Birth Control," the article appeared in Ave Maria, published here by the Congregation of the Holy Cross, and in The Christian Century, ecumenical weekly published in Chicago.

Noting the growing dialogue movement, Father O'Brien said it is now possible for Catholics and non-Catholics to "discuss the population problem, analyze their points of agreement and differences, and solve the problem in a way that will respect the consciences of all."

He pointed out that America's pluralistic society is characterized by a wide divergence of religious faiths. In view of this, he said, "it is obvious that we must learn not only to live together but also to respect scrupulously the consciences of others and work for the common good."

THE RESEARCH professor of theology asserted that the two recommendations "will go a long way toward solving the population problem and will thus end the controversy on both birth control and the population problem not only in our country but also in the underdeveloped countries as well."

"It is time to close ranks,"

Says Christianity Gone From China

HAMMOND, La. (RNS) — Serge Lentz, foreign correspondent and an editor of Paris Match magazine, told the Southeastern Louisiana College Newman Forum here that Christianity has disappeared from Red China.

warehouses and union halls. Only the Buddhists have a significant amount of religious freedom. However, I heard that this is only for show — to paint the government as being benevolent."

Lentz is one of the few journalists who has been behind the Bamboo Curtain in the last decade. Posing as a textile buyer, he toured Shanghai, Peking, and Canton.

"When one asks a peasant what religion he belongs to," he reported, "the answer is 'I used to be a Catholic (or a Protestant, or a Buddhist), but now I am an atheist.'"

WHEN ASKED the extent of religious persecution in Red China, the French journalist replied that it was far "milder" than in preceding years. "But," he explained, "that is because there are very few groups left to persecute."

"The churches have become

"The group which has suffered most in Red China," the journalist said, "is the Protestants. A few Catholic priests remain, but these are the Chinese nationals. And, as you know, Bishop James E. Walsh of Maryknoll is still in jail. From what I could gather, he is not treated harshly, but still — he's just sitting there in jail."

Priest Ends Fast Against Obscenity

NEW YORK — A 48-year-old Jesuit priest ended a fast of more than three days after New York City officials pledged a crackdown on sales of obscene literature to children.

promised by the Mayor included establishing a fulltime police unit to take action against distributors of "hard core" pornography; strict enforcement of licensing requirements and other administrative controls; seeking creation of a special court to deal with obscenity cases; and enlisting cooperation of area district attorneys in fighting the problem.

Rev. Morton A. Hill, S.J., an assistant at St. Ignatius Church, began living on nothing but water at 6 p.m. Oct. 25. He called off the fast the evening of Oct. 28 after Mayor Robert Wagner named Deputy Mayor Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. to head a drive against smut and directed other officials to confer with the priest.

So far, the priest charged, these promises have not been acted on.

Legion of Mary Plans Reunion

NEWARK — The Newark Curia of the Legion of Mary plans a general reunion of the active members of its 19 parishes (parish units) at St. Mary's, Nutley, Nov. 10, it was announced by Rev. Patrick D. McGrath, moderator.

The curia held elections for the second time in its six-year history Sunday, naming Katherine Higgins of Elizabeth to succeed the founding president, Mildred Clark of Orange.

FATHER HILL spoke of his fast and its purposes in a sermon Oct. 27 at St. Ignatius. He said distribution of pornographic literature to children violates "parental civil rights" and leads to such evils as sexual perversion and narcotics addiction.

Father Hill declared that Mayor Wagner last July had promised a four-part anti-pornography program in response to appeals from Operation Yorkville, an interfaith anti-obscenity campaign undertaken here last year.

The priest said the program

Rose Pavlick of Roselle was elected secretary; John Abldoni of Maplewood was named to a second term as treasurer, and William Cosgrove of South Orange is filling out a term as vice president.

Don Bosco Jubilee

RAMSEY — Don Bosco High School here will mark its 50th anniversary in 1965 and a committee of five former directors of the school has been named to map plans for the observance.

Cenacle Apostolate Hears of Cause

PHILADELPHIA — About 100 delegates from New Jersey attended the general meeting of the Missionary Cenacle Apostolate held Oct. 27 at Father Judge High School here.

Rev. Timothy Lynch, M.S.S.T., spoke to the gathering of almost 1,000 laymen from eastern cenacles on the cause for canonization of Rev. Thomas Augustine Judge, C.M., founder of the apostolate, from which developed the Missionary Servants of the Most Holy Trinity and the Missionary Servants of the Most Blessed Trinity.

Holy Day Due; Meat Allowed

Friday, Nov. 1, is the Feast of All Saints—a Holy Day of Obligation on which Catholics are obliged to attend Mass.

Canon Law provides that when such feasts fall on a Friday the rules of abstinence do not apply and Catholics are allowed to eat meat.

The Advocate office will be closed in observance of the feast.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (RNS) — Plans for the Rhode Island Conference on Religion and Race (Jan. 27-28) were discussed here at an organizational meeting of 60 representatives of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Orthodox bodies.

THOMAS J. Foley, council president, filed a brief supporting the NAACP. He said the intervention was undertaken because of the moral issue involved in open occupancy.

"The council has taken the same stand in civil rights legislation now pending before Congress and the open occupancy question heard recently before the Detroit Common Council," Foley said.

"The DACC feels the attempt to place this issue on the ballot is attempting to force a decision contrary to moral principle."

As proposed, the ordinance would define certain privacy rights of residents and residential property owners, including the right to select or reject any persons as tenants or purchasers and the right to freedom from interference on his property by public authority.

Petition Congress

WICHITA, Kan. (NC) — The Wichita Diocesan Council of Catholic Men has called for approval of federal civil rights legislation by Congress "which will grant all citizens, irrespective of race and color, equal rights in voting, in admission to schools at all levels, in employment, in housing, public facilities and in public recreation."

The council executive committee adopted a statement which asserted "the chief element involved is a sound and Christian attitude of justice and charity."

Plea From Clergy

CLEVELAND (NC) — Three priests here joined seven Protestant ministers in urging residents to keep calm about mixing of white and Negro students in two area public schools.

First Family Life Institute Completes List of Speakers

ORADELL — Final plans were announced this week for the first Family Life Institute of the Archdiocese of Newark Nov. 10 at 1 p.m. at Bergen Catholic High School here.

and Rev. William Genne, executive director of the department of Family Life of the National Council of Church of Christ.

Ridge will speak on "Family Renewal and the Challenge of American Society."

The speakers at the closing general session will be Cyril Tyson, project director of the Harlem Youth Organization,

Tyson is also a member of the board of directors of the New York Catholic Interracial Council and a teacher at Bronx Community College. He and Mr. Genne will speak on "Family Renewal and the Challenge of Today."

THE SISTERS will hear from Rev. Gerard Murphy, S.J., of St. Peter's College and Dr. Ann Lucas of Fairleigh Dickinson University. They will speak on "Family Renewal and the Challenge to Teaching Religious," emphasizing the role that the Sisters can play both with parents and child.

Devaney Named To NCCJ Post

NEWARK — Howard J. Devaney of Point Pleasant was named executive director of the New Jersey region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Oct. 30.

THE THEME of the institute, sponsored by the Family Life Apostolate of the archdiocese, is "Family Life in an Age of Renewal." It will include a keynote address by Charles Riker of Purdue University and four panel sessions, two for married couples, one for Sisters and one for priests.

Addressing the priests will be Rev. John Lynch, S.J., of Weston College, Mass., and Brother John Egan, F.S.C.H., of Iona College on "Family Renewal and the Challenge to the Priest." This session will emphasize "responsible parenthood," as discussed recently in The Advocate.

Devaney, a former president of the State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, began work with the NCCJ in 1954 and was named acting director January, 1955, and regional director in March of the same year. He is currently serving as consultant for a pilot project in suburban schools, the 18-week Teaneck Teachers' Workshop in Human Relations.

The day will close with a participated Mass at which Msgr. George A. Kelly, Family Life director of the Archdiocese of New York, will speak.

Registrations for the institute must be made before Nov. 2 with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Kane of 1732 Mountain Ave., Scotch Plains.

The NCCJ also announced the appointment of Dr. Donald M. Lombardi of Newark, assistant professor of psychology at Seton Hall University, replacing Dr. Maurice O'Sullivan, now dean of Sacred Heart University, Bridgeport.

At the two sessions for married couples, all of the speakers will be laymen. John Blessington, headmaster of the Whitty (Montessori) School in Greenwich, Conn., and William Birmingham, editor of Cross Currents, will speak on "Family Renewal and the Challenge of the Child." Paul Reiss of Fordham University and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vogel of Glen

THE ADVOCATE is the "extension school" of every Catholic in the Archdiocese of Newark and the Diocese of Paterson.

America Has Its Saints

In less than a year, Catholics in the United States have had particular cause for joy: two of their number, Elizabeth Ann Seton and John Nepomucene Neumann, have been declared blessed, the step immediately preceding canonization. She, a convert who founded the Sisters of Charity; he, an immigrant from Bohemia, who became the Bishop of Philadelphia.

EVIDENCES OF A spiritual inferiority complex among American Catholics have been manifested frequently. They could point with pride to the comparative strength of the Church in this country and the abundant sacrifices on the part of the clergy, religious and laity which brought it about. Yet, that which has been considered a sign of spiritual maturity — canonized saints from among them — was missing.

Then Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, whose zeal for souls brought her from the shores of Italy to live and labor here, became the first U. S. citizen to have her sanctity publicly recognized by the Church. That was in 1946.

Last year Elizabeth Ann Seton, wife and mother was beatified. American by birth, Episcopalian by baptism, she became "the guide and symbol of the splendid company of chosen women consecrated to Christ."

And now the name of Blessed John Neumann, C.Ss.R., enters the select group. He was an active parish priest, later Bishop, whose pastoral charity, while directed towards exterior things, yet contributed to his inner sanctity.

It took an outsider who became one of us for over 20 years to recognize the seeds of spiritual maturity in our land. The book, "Sanctity in America," written by a former Apostolic Delegate, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, is must reading for all who think little of American Catholic life and its ability to produce saints of the Church.

POPE PAUL, himself, in His homily on Blessed John Neumann, said that, "this beatification is an excellent document which in itself dispels the erroneous belief that American Catholicism is not oriented to a singular and sublime expression of sanctity . . ." A sanctity, he said, "no longer individual but collective, no longer restricted to individual cases but shared by numerous groups of faithful, no longer of one but of many, the sanctity of a people."

Human Needs

In proclaiming the first Thanksgiving Day in 1621, the Pilgrims meant "to give thanks to Almighty God for His goodness, mercy and bounty." After 342 years, the basic purpose of Thanksgiving Day is still to honor and thank God for the blessings we as a nation have received. This is our human need.

PEOPLE OF OTHER nations have another human need: relief from misery.

For the 15th consecutive year, the Catholic Bishops of the U. S. appeal to all Americans for used clothing to help alleviate the misery of the millions of men, women and children who inhabit the vast distressed and needy areas of the world.

Used clothing that Americans can share or spare becomes precious beyond words to these millions in dire need. Not only can it provide protection against the weather, but it can often safeguard the very young against crippling or deadly diseases, aid impoverished people to find work or continue working and even enable children to go to school.

Clothing and material contributed to the annual Thanksgiving Clothing Collection are packed and shipped overseas for distribution to the needy in 67 countries where Catholic Relief Services-National Catholic Welfare Conference maintains programs of relief and welfare.

DISTRIBUTION is made entirely without reference to race, religion, color or national origin. The sole criterion is human need. Our need meets their need.

Though away from home this Thanksgiving, the Bishops of our country address their appeal by letter, press, radio and television to all Americans. It is not a Catholic-to-Catholic invitation anymore than it is Catholic-to-Catholic distribution. Our Bishops call out to all to "give thanks by giving."

'Parents Pound on Our Doors'

The above is a quotation from an article in the current issue of a national secular magazine. The article is titled "Trouble Ahead for the Catholic Schools." The article contains the usual "hash" of half-truths and misleading implications designed to promote circulation instead of clarity.

THE IMPRESSION is created in the mind of the casual reader that the Catholic school is sub-standard in buildings, equipment and other physical facilities. The Catholic lay-teacher is singled out as being generally semi-literate or at best semi-equipped for his profession. "Sisters" are "quoted," again giving the impression to the casual reader, that the Sisters generally are a disgusted, disgruntled, almost disobedient lot.

The Catholic school does have problems. So does the public school. The public school in many places is also on double sessions, holding classes in fire-houses, converted barns and even in cellars. The public school also has money problems. The 5,500 children in the public schools of Copiague, Long Island, are now on an austerity regimen. They have to rent or buy their textbooks, no lunch is served, no milk distributed, no athletic program. The Catholic school has many and varied problems, but they do not add up to the almost completely one-sided and distorted picture presented by this article.

It is true, as the article states, that in some Catholic schools classes are overcrowded. But nothing is said about the many more enlightened pastors who will not permit such over-crowding.

IF THE CATHOLIC SCHOOL picture is as grim and as foreboding as presented by this article, then this average pastor poses this question: "Why do parents continue to pound on my door demanding, often screaming for admission of their children to our school?"

In recent years most of these anxious and upset parents have had no tradition of Catholic education in their families. They are either starting a child in kindergarten or first grade or transferring from a public school. In other words, these people are for the first time assuming the burden of the double school tax.

Why? To obtain an inferior "product?" People just do not pay twice for an inferior product or even an equal product. Then why do they continue to "pound on our doors?" This is the intriguing question not even raised by this article: Why?

Centurion's Words Live to This Day

By FRANK J. SHEED

As Our Lord came back into Capernaum, after the Sermon on the Mount, there occurred an episode of which one phrase will surely be used until the world ends — Lord, I am not worthy.

It was uttered by a Gentile, a company commander in the army. The leading Jews of the town asked Our Lord to relieve the man's distress by healing a servant to whom he was much attached, and who was on the point of death.

AS OUR LORD comes near the centurion's house, we hear the words we find with "soul" substituted for "servant" — in every Mass: Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed.

With the words "I have not found so great a faith, not even in Israel," Our Lord will the healing, and it took place in that instant.

The centurion relates himself to the Blessed Sacrament in two ways: his are the words the priest uses at the Communion; and it was in the synagogue built by him for the Jews that Our Lord taught for the first time that we must eat His flesh and drink His blood if we are to have life in us.

FROM NOW ON, Our Lord, accompanied by the Twelve, travels the roads of Galilee, teaching in the synagogues and working miracles without end. Luke gives us one further detail — with them went a group of women "who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities." These not only helped in the journeying — cooking meals on the road perhaps — but they provided money as well.

Listed at this first mention by St. Luke, are Mary Magdalen, "out of whom seven devils were gone forth," Joanna, wife of Chusa, an official in Herod's administration, and Susanna. Of Susanna we hear no more. Mary Magdalen was present at the Crucifixion, and she and Joanna were both at the tomb on the morning of Our Lord's Resurrection.

MARY OF MAGDALA is the one who has had men talking from that day to this. And they have not finished talking. The devil can afflict the body, as we have seen. But "seven devils" suggests something more spectacular in the way of demonic control.

She is named for the first time a few verses after the episode of the sinful woman who, from an alabaster box, anointed Our Lord's feet as He sat at table in Simon the Pharisee's house at Capernaum in Galilee. Was Mary Magdalen this woman? Was she Lazarus' sister Mary, who, from an alabaster box, anointed Our Lord's feet as He sat at table in Simon the Leper's house at Bethany in Judea?

Lazarus and his family may have moved from Magdala to Bethany. Our Lord may have made theirs the one home He was in the habit of visiting in Judea precisely because they were old friends from Galilee — Magdala is near Capernaum. No one knows.

'GOOD HEAVENS, I FEEL JUST LIKE A KID AGAIN'

Remarkable Patience Shown in Negro Drive

By REV. ANDREW M. GREELEY

It has been fashionable to refer to the great Negro protest movement as a "social revolution." In one sense, the name is quite accurate. However, the word "revolution" obscures several of the unique aspects of the movement and ultimately does it an injustice. If a revolution is an attempt to overturn an established social order and to replace it with a new one, then the American Negro is anything but a revolutionary. He does not want to destroy a social order but rather to be admitted into one.

AS PROF. Everett Hughes pointed out in his presidential address to the American Sociological Society, the protest movement is based on the persistent belief of the American Negro that his money is as good as a white man's money, and can be spent on the same things in the same places.

As Hughes observed, if you provide people with college education, permit them to have jobs which offer them a fairly good income, and tell them that all Americans are equal often enough, they will begin to believe that, indeed, all Americans are equal and that they should be treated like other Americans.

The surprise about the protest movement is that it was so long in coming.

BUT IT IS surely not a revolution. It is rather a highly sophisticated form of political action, one that is more extreme than the political action of other ethnic groups only because the moderate kinds of political pressure have not been as successful for the Negroes as they were for, say, the Irish or the Italian immigrant.

It is important to understand the precise nature of this political action; it is both pressure and persuasion.

It must be pressure because no political gains are made without pressure, and because not very many people are going to listen to your persuasion unless you have some muscle to back it up.

On the other hand, it must also be persuasion because social reform must ultimately gain the acceptance of the majority elements in society if it is to work. There are simply not enough Negroes in America to enforce their demands on the country without the consent of large numbers of their white fellow Americans.

THUS THE leaders of the protest movement are in the delicate position of having to say at one and the same time, "See how strong we are" and "See how reasonable our demands are and how sensible we are." They must simultaneously be militant and moderate — militant enough to dramatize their plight and to maintain the enthusiasm of their followers and yet moderate enough to make peaceful solutions possible.

What is remarkable is that so far this approach has been carried off rather well. Indeed, the protest movement has proceeded with a dignity and a restraint that seems almost impossible. The exceptions, the ill-advised actions, the quixotic battles of the fringe members have grabbed the newspaper headlines, of course, but the peaceful and well-disciplined nature of the movement has become so taken for granted that it has ceased to be news.

Nonetheless, the restraint of the Negroes of Birmingham after six of their children were murdered is quite incredible. Surely history will mark this as an extraordinarily impressive display of patience and loyalty to the peaceful processes of American democracy. Yet the sympathetic observer cannot help but wonder how long this remarkable patience can last.

Tax Justice For Farmers

By JERRY COSTELLO

New Jerseyans will have a chance to insure that the Garden State remains just that when they cast their ballots Nov. 5. Tucked away in the long list of special questions — and almost entirely overshadowed by the Bond Issue referendum — is Public Question Six, which provides fairer tax assessments for the state's farmlands.

There is a strong tendency on the part of most voters to dismiss the matter entirely, for reasons not altogether surprising. The list of public questions, to begin with, is forbidding. And discussion on the bond issue has been so extensive that the remaining questions have been all but forgotten.

Finally, the hardy voter who wades through the first five questions is quite likely to feel that since the sixth deals with farms it's not his concern.

NEVERTHELESS, there is a basic question of justice involved. Backers of the referendum — most notably the Citizens Committee to Save Open Space in New Jersey — hope it arouses sufficient support to overcome the combination of apathy and blind "no" votes traditionally inspired by referenda.

The constitutional change sought would direct local assessors to assess active farms of five acres or more on the basis of farm-use value — not on potential value for so-called "higher use" because of the nearness of urban growth.

In more basic terms, it means taxing the farmer on his farm's economic capabilities. He will be taxed for property as it is actually used for farming, not as it might be taxed if a factory or a housing development were located there.

NEW JERSEY'S farm population consists of only 1.5% of the state's total; the 15,000 farms they operate are going out at the rate of 25,000 acres per year.

It is in the fast-growing outer suburban areas where the tax pressure is the greatest.

The farms that remain in communities which used to be almost entirely rural now find themselves hemmed in by split-levels on one side and ranches on the other. The spiraling tax rates accompanying the boom are elbowing the farmer out.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for him to produce the kind of income which he needs to pay the tax and still stay in business.

QUESTION SIX, seeking to provide at least a partial remedy to the situation, has been endorsed by leaders of both parties — including Gov. Hughes — and has drawn only token opposition.

Most of the concern centers about the tax shift involved. If farmland is to pay a smaller tax, questioners wonder, who will provide the additional funds?

Supporters of the referendum point out that residents of cities and close-in suburbs will be unaffected since their communities have no farms to begin with. There will be a shift in communities where farms still continue in the face of urban advances, but it will be a small one. As one county farm agent in a rapidly-developing area pointed out:

"In some of our townships only 10 or 12 farmers are left. Spread out over the thousands of non-farm residents, any tax shift would be minimal."

THE GREATEST danger to the question's passage comes not from opponents but from ignorance and apathy. If the question should be defeated, all New Jerseyans — not only the farmers — will be the losers. Philip Alampi, state Secretary of Agriculture, explained why:

"Once the land is gone, it is gone forever when our farms are lost through rapid development and wasteful usage . . . and we suffer in two ways: the wealth which the state's 'agri-business' enterprises contribute to the overall economy, and the precious open spaces which are gone forever."

The Question Box

Eternal Punishment For One Mortal Sin?

Rev. Leo Farley, S.T.D., and Rev. Robert Hunt, S.T.D., of Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, Ramsey, N.J., are editors of The Question Box. Questions may be addressed to them there for answers in this column, or to Question Box Editor, The Advocate, 31 Clinton St., Newark 2, N.J.

Q I just cannot believe that a person who was a sincere and good Christian all his life, but who committed one mortal sin and died before he could get to confession, is punished for all eternity in hell.

A. Neither can we. In the first place, the case itself seems so implausible. While there is always the unpredictable element in human conduct, the about-face which you describe really taxes the imagination. Love is not something static. A lifetime of love is a lifetime of growth in love. Each day brings its challenge and each challenge accepted and overcome means a deepening and strengthening of the love which binds us to the other.

If there is any pattern to human conduct at all, one does not consciously and deliberately repudiate what in fact has been his whole life (for the sincere and good Christian is one who has loved God with his whole heart, his whole mind, and his whole strength).

If, in fact, a person does commit a mortal sin, we would suspect that it has some history to it; that he was not as sincere and good a Christian as he might have appeared to others. This presumption at least seems to honor more the patterns of normal human psychology.

Granting, however, the unpredictable nature of human conduct — that man in his earthly existence is never confirmed in love; that it is always within his power to renounce a lifetime of love (sin is always something of a mystery) — human experience reveals another pattern of human behavior. Normally these inexplicable reversals of human behavior are followed almost immediately by a keen realization of just what one has done — of the foolishness and madness of the action — which in turn gives rise to a genuine remorse which, in theological terminology, is called perfect contrition.

The very remorse itself, and the firm will never to allow this to happen again, is as good as any other indicator that this person has regained the grace of God, and that his failure to confess in no way cost him salvation.

Q My husband and I were godparents for my sister-in-law's first child. May we be godparents again for her second child?

A Yes, as long as you feel capable of assuming the added responsibility.

Q What should be done about religious cards received through the mail? Christmas is still two months away, and yet I have already received about five boxes of cards which I did not order.

A. Since we have already discussed this question in detail in a previous issue we will limit ourselves to the following practical advice. Any material received through the mails can be returned simply by writing "Return to Sender" on the package and giving it to your mailman.

Q Would it be proper to receive Holy Communion if there is a doubt as to whether a full three-hour period has elapsed since eating?

A. As long as the doubt remains you need not abstain from Holy Communion.

Q We are interested in adopting a baby and would be grateful for information as to how to proceed.

A Contact: Associated Catholic Charities at 31 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J. Phone — MI 2-2274, or 10 Jackson St., Paterson — AR 1-7100.

Q Recently at a lecture in a Catholic university a professor of philosophy seemed to support Chardinism. Wasn't at least one, if not more, of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin's books banned by the Pope?

A. No work of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin has been banned by the Church. In 1962 the Holy Office addressed a "monitum" (a warning or exhortation) to Ordinaries and religious superiors stating that some of the works contained ambiguities which could be interpreted in a sense contrary to Catholic teaching. It urged them, therefore, to safeguard those committed to their pastoral care, especially the young and immature, from the dangers inherent not only in the works themselves, but in the commentaries of Father Teilhard de Chardin's followers.

Recently The Saturday Evening Post ran a feature story on this most impressive yet most controversial priest. Since the controversy has now seeped down to the man on the street, we have prevailed upon Rev. Russell Ruffino to acquaint our readers with the issues involved. Father Ruffino, you will recall, has previously come to the assistance of this column with his clear and penetrating analysis of the evolution question. We will be hearing from him in the very near future.

"The people in your sermon sound exactly like my neighbors!"

Mark Twain's 'Religion'

By JOSEPH A. BREIG

"What a pity that some one did not reach this bitter disillusioned old man with a vital Christianity instead of the dull theological hellfire type which he ignorantly confused with the real thing."

That paragraph is taken from Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's comment on Mark Twain's "Reflections on Religion," published in the Hudson Review, a literary quarterly.

Twain denounced the Old Testament as depicting a God "overcharged with evil impulses."

He ridiculed the Immaculate Conception (he meant the Virgin Birth).

He blamed Christianity for the world's wars, misery and suffering, and said that God's only interest in "man or the other animals" is to torture and slay them, and "get out of this pastime such entertainment as it may afford."

THESE REFLECTIONS strike me as a confused and angry sort of "Out of the depths I cry to Thee, Lord." It is not at all unusual for a person who is hurt and bewildered to yell senselessly.

As Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., expressed it, "Redemption, reconciliation, reunion of man with God are the ingredients missing from Twain's religious reflections." He notes that Twain, at the time of writing, had lost his wife and two daughters, and "these harsh events he seemingly could not understand."

As Dr. Peale said, it is a pity that Twain's reflections were not about religion as it really is, but about a caricature of the real thing.

IT IS CARICATURE of one kind or another that basically good people attack when they think they are attacking religion; and the author of Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer surely was a basically good person.

Rabbi Theodore Friedman, president of the Rabbinical Assembly, noted that Twain wrote that "man is a machine." But, said Rabbi Friedman, "No machine ever waxed indignant with righteous wrath, as does Twain, over man's inhumanity to man."

There is mystery in religion too deep to be entirely penetrated, because divine goodness cannot fully be encompassed by created mind. It is enough for us that God, in His Incarnation, for our redemption, suffers boundlessly more than we, and suffers in each of us because He infinitely loves us.

We are never alone. He is always with us, and never more so than when we feel most deserted. It is heartbreaking that Mark Twain did not, at the time he wrote his reflections, realize that.

God Love You

Daily Witness To Holiness

By BISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN

ROME — The Church is holy. We say this daily in the Creed, but here in Rome we see it in action.

Almost all of the council Fathers are in St. Peter's at least half an hour before Mass begins, most of them at the altar of Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament.

Every morning three priests hear their confessions, while many who cannot be accommodated on kneeling benches kneel on the marble floor.

LET ME TELL YOU the story of one Father, whose name we cannot give for fear of reprisals. We inquired how he read Mass during his years of torture in a concentration camp. He answered that once a week he was given raisin bread. He would take out the raisins, pour a little water on them and, when they fermented, use a drop of wine a day for the Consecration.

These hundreds of holy Bishops in our midst all have one thing in common: they are all either very poor, or at least poor in spirit. Though I dislike being a beggar for these poor apostles and their missions, I suffer it for their sakes and pass on the pain to you.

Two priests in the U. S. recently sent great sacrifices for these Christ-like missionaries. Other holy priests, we know, will do the same. And the laity, instead of giving to those who already have so much, will begin to give to those who have nothing.

If you cannot send anything, say a prayer that some of that holiness may rub off on this beggar for the holy missionaries of the Lord.

GOD LOVE YOU to B.L.P. for $25. "At the suggestion of one of my princely surgeons, instead of a fee for his services, I send you this for your missions." ## Your World and Mine

Laity No Longer Plays 'Voiceless, Passive' Role

By GARY MacEOIN

ROME—Millions of Catholics today live under regimes which have destroyed the Church's traditional external organization — dioceses, parishes, Bishops, priests, public worship at regular intervals.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński of Poland was speaking of what he knew when he advanced this argument to his council colleagues for lay initiative and self-reliance in the Church on a scale beyond anything envisaged in modern times.

Auxiliary Bishop Philip M. Hannan of Washington reached the same conclusion from very different premises: "To establish if a Catholic lawyer, doctor or politician is a good Catholic, you must ask if he goes to Sunday Mass. You judge his actions as lawyer, doctor or politician. Are they the actions of a Catholic?"

THE FATHERS are attempting a task no previous council even contemplated: a clarification — both theological and practical—of the place, dignity and vocation of the laity in the Church.

An immediate complication is that nobody seems quite to know what is a layman. In modern practice, a layman is a Church member who is not a cleric.

WHAT NOW SEEMS more than possible is that the council will begin by considering every member of the Church as simply a member of the people of God, and then proceed to spell out the place, dignity and vocation of every member of the Church as such, reserving for separate treatment the duties or "services" and corresponding authority of those given additional functions either because they share in the sacrament of orders at some level, or because they belong to a religious family bound by special vows.

This would in no way change the legal relationships between

Pope, Bishop, pastor and parishioner. It would, however, have a deep psychological and spiritual impact on the interpretation of those relationships. The change can already be sensed here in a stress by many Fathers on their lack of the specialized knowledge needed by the council to answer questions it is asking itself.

Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium in particular has been saying that the council should enlist lay experts in all fields, the world's greatest scientists, population experts, economists and doctors. When he says lay in this context, he is of course not excluding those in holy orders. His stress is simply that the Church needs those qualified to interpret all the facts of life in a Christian framework, to mobilize all the talents of the people of God.

IN OTHER contexts, the council has been emphasizing the idea of the people of God as spreading much wider than those who go to Mass on Sunday, or even those who formally accept the primacy of the Pope. One can already begin to see a growth in the self-understanding on the part of the Church which Pope John had ardently hoped would be a major fruit of the Council.

The primary effect may not be increased lay participation in the building of the Church as an institution, but rather the bringing of Christ to the temporal order, as well as the smoothing of the path to union for many who today see in Catholicism only a passive and voiceless mass under clerical domination.

Apostleship of Prayer

Council Focus Of Prayers

The intention of the Holy Father for November is again "success of the council" or, to put it in its longer form, "that the decrees of the council may be willingly accepted and put into action by both the clergy and laity."

For this continuous fervent prayer is necessary. The ferment of activity that has accompanied the resumption of the council has focused the attention of the world on the strong personalities who lead the thinking of others.

It is important for us not to overlook the invisible Christ to whose honor and service all this effort is prayerfully dedicated.

He remains silent, pleading, begging us to understand, yet kindly and divine, teaching us a spirit of abandonment, detachment, humility, modesty, patience, self-sacrifice.

Some of the decrees that come from the council may seem difficult, inopportune, unnecessary or unrealistic. Whatever is decided and ordained, may all of us accept and observe the new legislation with humility and zeal, no matter what sacrifices are asked of us, no matter what our own opinions of them may be.

Mission Intention: Oceania

Morning Offering

O Jesus, through the Immaculate Heart of Mary, I offer Thee my prayers, works, joys and sufferings of this day for all the intentions of Thy Sacred Heart, in union with the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass throughout the world, in reparation for my sins, for the intentions of all our Associates, for the reunion of Christendom and in particular for success of the council.

Mission Needs Are Outlined

Editor: Our parish bulletin for Mission Sunday contained an article on mission needs. Here are some helpful answers and suggestions for all of us.

First, they need our prayers, works, sufferings and sacrifice . . . sympathy will not fill all the empty stomachs, nor clothe the naked, nor provide help for the sick . . .

Second, they need many missionaries — and self-sacrificing parents willing to give back to God at least one of their children.

Third, they need people to sacrifice or share the great wealth of gifts God has bestowed on them with love and joy . . .

You Owe It To Your Family!

The New Jersey Layman at Vatican II

By ANNE MAE BUCKLEY

NEW YORK — As the guard in St. Peter's Basilica demanded his entrance pass James J. Norris had to chuckle to himself. "He wonders how the guy with the tie got in here."

It was the opening day of the second session of Vatican Council II and the first time that Catholic laymen were allowed to be present as some 2,500 brightly vested Cardinals, Archbishops and Bishops conducted their historic deliberations. Norris is one of 13, originally 10, laymen who hold official status as council auditors, by appointment of Pope Paul VI before the second sessions began.

A native of Elizabeth, he now lives in Rumson with his wife and five children, and was interviewed this week in his office at Catholic Relief Services-NCWC here, during a brief return from Rome to catch up on his work as CRS assistant executive director.

STILL "A LITTLE overwhelmed" at the honor of being the only American among the auditors, Norris commented on the significance of the invitation to selected laymen to attend the council sessions. "Practically every council Father is pleased about it," he said. "It is significant that so many Bishops urged the inclusion of laymen — Italian Bishops, German Bishops, American Bishops. They have come up to me and told me how happy they are about it."

Although no lay auditor has taken the microphone at a council session, Norris revealed that the auditors speak freely and frequently at meetings of the council commissions, which are held twice a week, as a rule.

"We sit in with the commissions," he explained. "We are working actively now with the Commission on the Lay Apostolate. We are not members of the commission, but we are able to speak up any time we want. The Bishops ask us questions or we just volunteer opinions."

THIS SORT of session is not new to Norris.

Last May he was one of 15 laymen called to Rome and consulted on Schema 17 concerned with the mission of the Church in the modern world. At his desk on the 65th floor of the Empire State Building, he flashed a thick sheaf of papers covered with Latin text and labeled "sub secreta"—roughly translated "top secret." It was Schema 17.

"We spent three days going over it and making suggestions," he said. "Then it went to the Theological Commission and the Lay Apostolate Commission." (Norris was one of two Americans at that meeting; Patrick Crowley, a family life leader from Chicago, was the other.)

The lay auditors now hold their own weekly meetings in their three-room temporary headquarters at Borgo Santo Spirito 8, next door to the Jesuit generalate. "We discuss the schema and talk over suggestions we'd like to make at the commission meetings," Norris explained.

Though silent at the council sessions in St. Peter's Basilica, the auditors occupy some of the best seats in the house. Closer to the altar and the Papal throne than the Bishops, they share a tribune (tier of seats) with the council experts, very near the seats of the council's four Cardinal-moderators.

IF, AS MAY reasonably be supposed, various Bishops suggested names of laymen who would make suitable auditors by reason of their involvement in the international mission of the Church, it was with none other than the Bishop of Rome, Pope Paul VI himself, that the recommendation of Jim Norris originated. Norris is president of the International Catholic Migration Commission in addition to his CRS post, and it was with Msgr. Giovanni Battista Montini, then an aide to Pope Pius XII, that he worked closely to set up the commission.

Asked if he had had a hunch that Cardinal Montini would be elected Pope, Norris replied, "I surely had a hope."
"I have tremendous admiration for his wonderful mind," Norris said of Pope Paul, "and for his warmth and simplicity. He is a very warm person, you know. People sometimes get a wrong impression from his pictures."

IN 1946 NORRIS spent several months working with Msgr. Montini in the Vatican secretariat of state to formulate a plan for resettling refugees — to date the resettlement of 350,000 displaced persons has resulted.

"I used to spend an hour a week with him in his office," Norris recalled. "When I'd come back a week later he would begin, 'Now the last time . . . and pick up exactly the thread of our last discussion on refugees and surplus populations.'"

It was in 1950 that Msgr. Montini called upon Norris to help set up the International Catholic Migration Commission in the name of Pope Pius XII.

To Norris it was quite predictable that it would be Pope Paul who would break with the tradition of centuries to bring laymen into sessions of a Church council. "He always worked with lay people," Norris explained. "He just took it for granted that lay people were part of the Church; there was no feeling of distinction between clergy and laity."

"When we were working on the resettlement program he would have open, frank discussions with me, just as he had with the Bishops concerned with the program. I was part of the operation."

JIM NORRIS is a fiftyish, immediately friendly man whose pure white hair is outgrowing last summer's crew-cut. On his lapel a tiny button of red fabric tokens his elevation in 1956 to the rank of Knight Commander of St. Gregory, in recognition of his services to Church and Pope.

He travels to Latin America twice a year, Africa "maybe only once a year" and to Europe so often he doesn't count the trips. It's all in the business of alleviating the sufferings of humanity around the world, a work that has absorbed him since 1946 when he joined CRS.

When asked what phase of the council's deliberations interest him most, he replied, "Those which affect the broad social mission of the Church."

"THE WORLD is half-hungry," he explained. "There is poverty and destitution everywhere. The Church has an important role to play in alleviating human need . . . Just as it was in the time of Christ, when He fed the hungry and cured the sick. My interest is in the work of the Catholic Church for the needy . . . the corporal works of mercy."

This is a subject of great importance at the council, he indicated. "No matter what subject is being discussed, at one point or another somebody talks of the poor of the world."

During the council coffee break, Norris is likely to be approached by the Bishop of Usumbura Burundi or the Apostolic Delegate from Senegal for discussion of the need of their people for food. He continues his CRS work after council sessions (they end at 12:15 p.m.) and sometimes into the night.

NORRIS MINIMIZES the much talked about difficulty posed by the use of Latin at the council. "The majority of the council Fathers understand what is going on," he said. "You can tell this when somebody says something humorous — they react very quickly."

Norris is a master of Latin and several other languages himself. He usually talks with the Pope in Italian.

He was in Geneva last Sept. 14 when he received his letter.

Norris is reluctant to predict what the council may or may not do in given areas except one. The exception concerns the makeup of the lay delegation. "By all means there will be women auditors at the council," he said. "And very soon."

AMERICAN AUDITOR — Affable Jim Norris of Rumson peruses Latin text of Vatican Council's Schema 17 in his New York skyscraper office. A longtime friend of Pope Paul's, he is the lone American among 13 laymen attending the council sessions as auditors. He is a director of Catholic Relief Services — NCWC and president of the International Catholic Migration Commission which he helped set up with Monsignor Montini who is now Pope Paul.

Newark Bishops Discuss Deacons, the Vernacular

By M. V. McGEE

ROME — In the optimistic getting-down-to-the-essentials atmosphere of the second session of Vatican Council II, Newark's four Bishops discussed such timely topics as the revival of the diaconate, vernacular in the liturgy, and the collegiality of the Bishops.

"The groundwork has been done," Archbishop Boland observed, "and the council Fathers came back to this second assembly more used to procedure, more sure of themselves and what was expected of them."

The Parish Church

"Topic" — the new tabloid supplement to The Advocate — will feature "Your Parish Church" next week, Nov. 7.

ark's delegation which includes Auxiliary Bishop Martin W. Stanton, and Auxiliary Bishops John J. Dougherty and Joseph A. Costello, both of the latter attending for the first time. (Photo, Page 1)

"IN THE INTERIM of nearly 10 months," Archbishop Boland noted, "the Bishops worked hard on questions sent to them from (council) commissions and committees in Rome and in their own conferences in their different countries. There was much streamlining done also in Rome."

"Now," he said with an air of expectancy, "we are going ahead."

An eager pace is kept in the council sessions, the Archbishop indicated. He spoke of the strict adherence to the 10-minute limit on speakers, who are warned by a soft bell near the rostrum when they reach eight minutes. "But it is a cleric standing nearby who more often attracts the speaker's attention by raising two fingers — sign of two minutes left," the Archbishop smiled. "Then the speech is apt to be subject to considerable acceleration in delivery!"

COMMENTING on arguments about the revival of a permanent order of deacon for laymen, Archbishop Boland said there was never a question as to the possibility or usefulness of reviving this minor order in an active way in areas where there is a shortage of priests. The question which is still a subject for discussion is whether or not it should be universal throughout the Church, he said.

On the use of local languages in the prayers of the Mass and the administration of the sacraments, Archbishop Boland said that although a general norm may be determined eventually, its application will likely be left to the decision of regional Bishops with approval of the Holy See.

"There are certain degrees beyond which they cannot go," he explained. "The prayers of the faithful surround the essential — what we call 'the form.' That will remain intact."

BISHOP DOUGHERTY, a widely-respected biblical scholar, found the subject of the collegiality of Bishops an absorbing one. Explaining this point which occupied the council for several days, Bishop Dougherty said: "It is held by many council Fathers that Bishops of the Church today succeed the College (group) of Apostles and comprise a College with the Pope succeeding St. Peter in the primacy, or as head."

"The practical implication of this," he continued, "is shared responsibility by all Bishops for the entire Church — not merely for their particular dioceses."

He said that the question of relationship between the authority of the Bishops as a College—or group—and the Pope as the head of the group and the Church "must await clarification."

A RECURRING theme in the discussion on the laity last week was emphasis on the role of the poor in the Church. Bishop Dougherty said. Speakers stressed the importance of the poor in the preaching of Christ, he said, and expressed hope that the council will clarify the significance of the poor in the saving mission of the Mystical Body of Christ.

"These varied expressions in regard to the hierarchy and the laity," Bishop Dougherty commented, "are to be seen as an effort to fulfill Pope Paul's question: 'Church of Christ! What dost thou think of thyself?'"

BISHOP STANTON observed that although discussions on various topics are prolonged and conducted by Bishops of different backgrounds and ideas, the outcome reveals real harmony.

"It seems at times that there might be too many talks on the schema—proposition—under discussion," Bishop Stanton said. "On the surface there would appear to be a wide divergence of views."

"However, in the interchange of ideas, these are refined, and the final votes usually show practical unanimity."

Bishop Stanton, who attended the first session of the council, said it is functioning more smoothly now.

Even outside council sessions, the Bishops continue to work. Each national group has its own way of arranging for conferences, lectures and information. Archbishop Boland heads the committee which organized the American Bishops' study group.

Often at large national conferences a Bishop will be chosen to speak at the council in behalf of all the Bishops of his area. In this case he will introduce his remarks with "Speaking for all the South American Bishops" or as one said last week, "On behalf of 147 American Bishops . . ."

A MEETING of the council may be, with discussions and its own "parliamentary" procedure. But the accent is on prayer, Bishop Costello pointed out.

As one of the "novelli"—new Bishops at the council—he was impressed by the scene of Bishops from around the world quietly finding their way to the side chapel of the Blessed Sacrament for private prayer before the council session each morning. He spoke also of the fervor of the purple-clad Bishops as they respond in the Dialogue Mass, which he described as evidence of the great bond between them.

"You feel very tangibly the unity, catholicity, holiness and apostolic character of the Church of Christ," Bishop Costello said.

"We can sense the influence of the Holy Spirit," he said, "guiding the council Fathers to formulate a vital teaching for our time based on the directives given by our late Holy Father, Pope John XXIII . . ."

All Saints Lore

An interesting description of All Saints Day customs around the world and through the centuries is presented on the Children's Page, Page 13, this week. Adults will enjoy it too.

ST. MARTIN — On Nov. 3, for the second time, the Church observes the feast day of St. Martin de Porres, who became the New World's first Negro saint on May 6, 1962. This painting of St. Martin is the work of Sister Mary of the Compassion, O.P., a cloistered Dominican Sister of the Perpetual Rosary at the Blue Chapel, Union City. The Blue Chapel was one of the earliest centers of devotion to Martin de Porres.

AMERICANS IN AFRICA — Dr. Joseph C. Foust, 39, and his wife, Helen, are shown with six of their eight children in front of their home in Tanganyika. Like another alumnus of St. Louis University, the late Dr. Tom Dooley who worked in Loos, Dr. Foust sacrificed his U.S. career to work among the destitute in a foreign land.

Doctor in Africa

9 Children, 270,000 Natives . . .

ST. LOUIS (NC) — How does a man with nine children manage to care for his own family as well as 270,000 African natives? Dr. Joseph C. Foust does it at Kisa, a mission post in Tanganyika, where he and his wife are volunteer missionaries.

Mrs. Foust teaches school at the White Father's mission house in Kisa. Their children speak Swahili better than English. One of the nine children is an adopted African baby whose mother died in childbirth.

Dr. Foust and his family were at St. Louis University to receive a citation.

DR. FOUST graduated from medical school in 1948. Upon his release from the Army he practiced in his home town of Ionia, Mich.

Things went smoothly until in 1955 his first wife died, leaving him five small children to care for.

"Only my Catholic Faith and a lot of hard work kept me going," Dr. Foust recalled.

Then he met Helen Bradley. In November, 1957, they were married by Rev. Conard Foust, O.F.M., the doctor's brother.

"IT WAS DURING our honeymoon in the Bahama Islands that I began to realize the direction my life should take," Dr. Foust said. "In some of the more remote regions of the islands we saw the almost unbelievable suffering the people must undergo, and there were no doctors to care for them."

"But you can't just marry a woman, expect her to take over your five children, and then in the middle of your honeymoon tell her you want to go abroad as a medical missionary."

Dr. Foust need not have worried, however, for Mrs. Foust was entertaining the same idea. When they broached the subject to each other, they almost immediately decided to go to Africa.

THEY GOT IN touch with Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, who directs the National Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Bishop Sheen contacted Rev. Gordon Fournier, a White Father and head of the Foundation for All Africa.

After several queries to African Bishops, Father Fournier received a reply from Bishop von Oroschot of Tanganyika. It read:

"We have nothing. We can give nothing. But we need Dr. Foust very much and want him to come."

"EVEN FOR A doctor," Dr. Foust said, "the ravages of disease and malnutrition were shocking. The African, injured to pain and suffering, usually does not come for treatment until it is too late to do anything for him."

In the meantime, Helen Foust, an accredited high school teacher was busy keeping house and educating her children. Three have been born in Africa.

Money is a constant problem. The 30-bed Kisa hospital Dr. Foust set up costs $10,000 a year to run. Proper supplies are also hard to come by. "Every once in a while I get a crate of diet pills," Dr. Foust said, "and diet pills aren't much help in a country scourged by malnutrition."

Personal expenses come from "fees" the doctor charges his patients. "The Wanyakusas are a proud people," Dr. Foust said, "so I charge them a penny for vitamin pills, $3 to fix a broken leg, and so on. That way they don't think they are getting something for nothing."

For an enjoyable vacation and something different . . .

Sacrifice for Missions Unites Us With Christ

You are asked to "sacrifice" rather than to "give" because giving is not necessarily Christ-like. No one is Christian who does not reproduce the Calvary of Our Lord in his own life: It is only in dying with Christ that we rise with Him.

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith does not wish your gift without your more intimate fellowship with the Giver of life, truth, love.

To suffer together creates a greater unity than just to work together. You will love Christ in the missions more if you sacrifice something for Him.

Remind yourselves of the divine command: "Go into the world, preach the Gospel to every creature." You, yourself, may not be able to preach to the 1.5 billion pagans, but you can sacrifice in their behalf.

Send your sacrifice to the Holy Father's own Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

Priest to Return

... In Six Months
About seven "jeep hours" southwest of Brasilia, Brazil's fabulous capital, is the city of Goituba, the most distant mission outpost of the Conventual Franciscan missions in that country. A N.J. priest Rev. Julius D'Eustachio of Perth Amboy, is the first resident pastor in the history of the city.

Before Father Julius went to Goituba, many of the outlying villages did not see a priest for years at a time. The people of Bom Jesus, for instance, had not been visited by a missionary for almost a year when Rev. William M. O'Donnell and Father Julius' assistant, Rev. Demetrius Tansey, made a stop there.

Father William writes that "The people of Bom Jesus were really glad to see us. While I practiced my Portuguese on a few unsuspecting children," he goes on, "Father Demetrius heard confessions for three and a half hours. Afterwards he celebrated Mass and distributed Communion to about 70 people."

"After Mass we were treated to dinner and most of the afternoon was spent baptizing children. One of the children to be baptized was eight years old. However, the parents cannot be blamed too much, both on account of their religious ignorance and the scarcity of priests."

"The simplicity and rustic piety of the people made a great impression on me. They treated us kindly and with typical Brazilian hospitality. Perhaps, someday, God willing, they will have a resident priest of their own. But, for now, they cannot expect Our Lord's sacramental presence again in their humble chapel for at least six months."

Clinic in Korea

Expands Services
As populations grow in the missions and as additional people wish instructions in the Faith, missionaries have to build new churches, schools and hospitals. And, too, the demand for additional missionary accompaniment is such growth.

Bishop Henry of the St. Columban's Foreign Mission Society, in 1959 invited five Brothers of John of God to go from Ireland to Korea to found the community's first foreign

PAVLA Names Brazil Director

CHICAGO (RNS) - A field representative to help coordinate the work of some 240 Papal Volunteers for Latin America (PAVLA) has been named here.

Rev. Victor R. Fernandez, S.J., national PAVLA director, said Camy Harland, 25, of Cincinnati, will be the first coordinator serving in Brazil. Later field representatives will be appointed for Peru and Central America.

Miss Harland will coordinate PAVLA's Brazilian activities between volunteers and Church authorities. Some 50 PAVLA workers are serving in 10 Brazilian projects. Miss Harland has been a volunteer in Brazil for more than a year.

mission. They soon found their first buildings too small for the increasing number of people seeking physical care, and so they built a large modern clinic which opened recently.

This clinic, open six days a week, is swamped with tuberculosis sufferers. In some communities more than 80% of the population is afflicted with this disease.

While some patients can pay small amounts for care given by the Brothers, more than 60% are unable to pay anything at all. But friends of the community have helped so that not only all patients receive treatment, but facilities have been expanded.

Working with the Brothers for the first year was a young Irish doctor, James Carr, and succeeding him is Dr. James Walsh. Both volunteered to serve a year. Fellow missionaries are enthusiastic over the accomplishments of the Brothers, and their poor patients shower them with gratitude. The Brothers ask your help and prayers that their work will survive and prosper.

Aid Declined In Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (NC) - The government of Uganda has turned down a large amount of free U.S. government surplus food offered by Catholic Relief Services-NCWC.

A CRS-NCWC representative, Rev. Louis L. Meyer, C.S.C., tried for several months earlier this year to work out an agreement with officials in Uganda, a former British protectorate, in East Africa now independent.

Objections to the CRS-NCWC program stemmed from resentment over the U.S. race problem, difficulties with transportation costs within Uganda and the danger of disrupting the local economy. The central government turned down several offers to help cover transportation costs.

Latin America Parley Set

CHICAGO (RNS) - An international conference here to awaken Catholics in this country to the life and needs of their Latin American neighbors, Jan. 19-23, is expected to be attended by about 2,500 Bishops, priests, nuns and lay leaders from North and South America.

The five-day meeting will be conducted by the recently formed Catholic Inter-American Cooperation Program for the Bishops' Committee for Inter-American Cooperation. The conference will enlist the support of Americans of all beliefs.

Subjects to be discussed include the history of the Catholic Church in Latin America, the present resurgence of the Church in that area to meet vast social and economic problems, and ways in which North Americans can help in solving these problems.

OFF TO SEMINARY - Luciano Cruz Rosa of Paterson receives a ticket for a flight to La Paz, Bolivia, where he will enter the seminary, from Mrs. Elsie Martinez, president of the Rosary Altar Society at Our Lady of Providence Mission, Paterson, and Benito Morales, treasurer of the Holy Name Society. Also present is Rev. Stanislaus B. Chang, administrator of the mission. A graduate of Blessed Sacrament School, Paterson, Rosa is also receiving assistance from that parish.

Clothing Drive Support Urged

Following is the text of a letter from Archbishop Boland on the annual Thanksgiving Clothing Collection.

During this week of Nov. 3 to Nov. 9, we ask you to give of your belongings in the Catholic Bishops' Thanksgiving Clothing Collection of 1968.

Each parish of the archdiocese shall be a receiving center of your charitable contributions for the naked and homeless of the world. Here at the council we could not help but think of you at home when we learned of the Piave River disaster in Italy. In the face of such tragedy in all parts of the world, the destitute are clothed and warmed from the storehouses of this annual appeal.

LAST YEAR the needy of 67 countries of the world benefited from your generosity in receiving clothing, shoes, blankets, remnants and sewing materials. Every article can literally save a life. More than this, each shows the love of Christ to the poverty stricken of Latin America, the emerging nations of Africa and the driven souls of Southern Europe and the Near and Far East.

In making this appeal, we are assured of and bless the leadership of our parish priests and the selflessness of so many of our people in the long hours they will give to the task of sorting, packaging and shipping the many tons of contributions that will sustain the reputation of Christ-like love you have established over the years.

LEBANON: WHERE CHRIST ONCE WALKED

Christ upbraided the cities which saw his miracles and didn't do penance. He said: "For if in Tyre and Sidon had been wrought the miracles that have been wrought in you they had long ago done penance in sackcloth and ashes"... Tyre and Sidon are cities in what today is Lebanon, a country where Christ once walked. At Job-Jannine, a large village with 500 Melkite Catholics, the poor people, rich in faith but poor in material resources, are trying to rebuild a church damaged by earthquake. With their own hands, they are trying to reconstruct the walls, pay the floor, reinforce the roof with cement, plaster the walls and build new pews and confessionals. They have been able in many years to collect only a small sum of the money needed. They ask us to help them to the extent of $4,900. Will you please help them a little bit or a lot? Please send the help now.

CONCERNING CHAPELS

From medieval times, the Gothic church tower has risen to Heaven, symbolizing the prayers rising to a transcendent God. When he was Archbishop of Milan, the present Pope, Paul VI, gave a new direction to church building. He encouraged contractors to construct chapels in new housing projects, symbolizing as it were Christ at the heart of home life, radiating grace. Through the 18 Near and Middle East countries entrusted to our care by the Holy Father, many chapels have been built by your generosity. Perhaps someone would like to build a MEMORIAL CHAPEL to a loved one. Cost: $2,000 to $6,000. Or perhaps furnish a chapel with a needed item such as:

Detroit Campaign Aids Burma Lepers

DETROIT (NC)-A group of people here has been responsible for some remarkable cures of leprosy, despite the fact that the disease is rarer than horse-drawn carriages in this city.

Clerks, secretaries, factory workers, writers, teachers—they call themselves the Leprosy Relief Society. Down in Burma, some 9,000 miles away, Rev. Caesar Colombo, PIME missionary, agrees that the name fits group members perfectly.

LEPROSY (or Hansen's disease) is common in Burma, according to Father Colombo. In his leper colony at Kengtung, target of the Detroit group's generosity, close to 1,500 patients live inside the compound and another 2,000 or more camp nearby.

"Leprosy can be cured," he points out, "provided you have the necessary medicines. You can prevent it, too, if you can get the vaccine. And the poor victims who come here to live must have food to sustain their strength."

PIME Fathers in Detroit, headquarters of the society's American province, began spreading the word of Father Colombo's work in Burma, and the Leprosy Relief Society was born.

In a recent letter Father Colombo declared: "As you know, we are close to the Red China border, and because the communists believe in wiping out leprosy by shooting the lepers, many have fled. Even those patients who should be discharged don't want to leave because they feel safe in the colony."

The Leprosy Relief Society has headquarters at 121 East Boston Blvd., Detroit. It has three plans by which members can aid Father Colombo's patients.

A year's supply of medicine for a leper, $10; a year's supply of food, $5 a month; or a year's supply of both food and medicine, $6 a month.

Reveal How Reds Planned to Exploit Papal Encyclical

WASHINGTON, D.C. (RNS) — A communist document has been disclosed here, reportedly containing notes by Gus Hall, U. S. Communist Party leader, setting forth how the party could take advantage of Pope John XXIII's encyclical Pace in Earth.

Ten pages of notes claimed in essence that "we have a good thing going for us" as a result of the issue of "Peace on Earth" last April, according to a report by the Washington Post.

"We should see this message as a new instrument to press for our policies on every front," Hall wrote.

Br. Anthony A Jubilarian

WEST NEW YORK — Brother Caudius Anthony, F.S.C., librarian at St. Joseph's Boys High School here, will celebrate his golden jubilee as a member of the Institute of the Brothers of the Christian Schools Nov. 1.

BROTHER ANTHONY

A Mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated in the Brothers' community chapel by Rev. Mark J. Dooley of St. Michael's, Cranford, a cousin of the jubilarian. A reception will follow the Mass, attended by members of the society and relatives and friends of Brother Anthony.

Brother Anthony received his religious habit Aug. 14, 1913, and made his studies at Manhattan College and Catholic University. He taught in Christian Brother elementary schools in New York City, Long Island and Detroit before coming to St. Joseph's.

Delinquency Survey

Religion 'Dropouts' Are Cited in Study

PHOENIX, Ariz. (RNS) — A report on juvenile delinquency prepared for Catholic Charities of Arizona said that most problem youths may be classified as "drop-outs" from religion, or as being "deprived" of their faith because of lack of parental precept and example.

The report said that of 1,520 Catholic boys and girls detained at the Maricopa County Home, only 29 indicated they were attending, or recently attended, a parochial school.

The report was prepared by the Rev. Joseph M. Carlin, S.J., on behalf of Catholic Charities.

He urged the state to provide residential treatment facilities for adolescents who have been professionally diagnosed as border-line cases of emotional illness.

The Jesuit said he found that troubled youths had several things in common, including shame and confusion, loss of hope, a sincere desire to do better in the future and an inability to adjust their lives without considerable aid and understanding.

Referring to sexual misbehavior, Father Carlin said it "is facilitated by absentee parentism, where both parable to the press. Hall began his notes by listing some of the points in the encyclical he considered "favorable" to the Communist Party.

Then Hall gave his interpretation of the encyclical's significance for the communist cause.

He said the party must shift its position to take advantage of the Roman Catholic pronouncement. Finally, he enumerated what gains for "peace" — that is, communism — can be accomplished among Catholics and other special groups.

HALL NOTED first that "there is no Red-baiting — there are some sections that express sharp differences and opposition to the communist viewpoint, but no direct Red-baiting."

Other points which Hall interpreted as favorable: "It takes a stand for peace in a new manner." "Some of the strongest sections are those against racism and colonialism . . . especially against colonialism," and "It gives the working class a new recognition as a fact in life."

"It takes a stand for capitalism, but with restrictions and great pressures for reforms and corrections," he noted. "It speaks indirectly about the features of socialism and communism in a positive vein . . . it opens the door to a positive attitude to peaceful co-existence."

Hall said the encyclical seemed to be "a new and a fresh look at the new epoch by an important world leader and movement," one representing "a readjustment."

He called this readjustment "a qualitative leap, the tipping of the scales that gives us new leverage and the escalated dividends. This qualitative leap offers a bonus for the forces of progress" — meaning the forces of communism.

To take full advantage of it, said Hall, the party must "restate our position."

"Whereas the party still disdains religion, it should now become more friendly with religious institutions and religious people. We must make a clear distinction between religion as a belief and the Church as an institution — if we are going to become a vanguard party that leads, by and large, religious people," he continued.

"We should send a special letter to the Catholic leaders in various cities referring to this encyclical, suggesting speakers and debates around the document, around the communist position and around the sections where the Pope indicates we have a positive contribution to make," said Hall.

Catholic Men Offer Talks

NEWARK — The Civic Affairs and Social Action Committee of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men this week announced a program of lectures for parish and fraternal societies.

Joseph A. Puzo, committee chairman, said 21 topics are available, either on an individual or panel discussion basis. Topics include federal aid to parochial schools, business ethics, the encyclicals of Pope John XXIII, the population explosion, migrant workers, labor-management relations and politics.

The program was approved by Archbishop Boland before leaving for the second session of the Vatican Council. It was drawn up under the guidance of Msgr. Thomas F. Mulvaney, ACCM moderator, in cooperation with Rev. Aloysius J. Welsh, director of the Pope Pius XII Institute of Social Education.

Speakers are drawn from the fields of government, education, labor and professional groups and the members of the clergy.

Canada Upholds Lord's Day Act

OTTAWA, Ont. (NC) — The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that the Lord's Day Act does not violate a section of the Canadian Bill of Rights guaranteeing freedom of religion.

John J. Robinette had appealed a lower court ruling upholding the conviction of two men for operating a bowling alley on Sunday contrary to the act.

Robinette said the act imposes a Christian religious observance on all Canadians.

Seton Prof. Dentists Elect Dr. Tobin

JERSEY CITY — Dr. Daniel F. Tobin, dean of Seton Hall College of Dentistry, was elected president of the American Association of Hospital Dental Chiefs at a meeting which was held in Atlantic City last week.

Dr. Tobin succeeds Dr. Frank Houghton of New Orleans.

The AAHC represents hospitals in 22 states and the District of Columbia as well as service hospitals all over the U.S.

Back From Vietnam

Congressman Praises Fr. O'Connor Reports

By JOHN J. DALY JR.

WASHINGTON (NC) — The second ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said here Vietnam's Buddhist uprisings began as a legitimate religious protest but now are being exploited by communists.

Rep. Clement Zablocki of Wisconsin, in an interview after his return from a two-week study mission to the Far East, had high praise for the reporting of Rev. Patrick O'Connor, S.S.C., whose dispatches have appeared in the Catholic press. He said the veteran Far East reporter of the NCWC News Service has been reporting "much more honestly" on the religious issue than most other sources of news in Vietnam.

ZABLOCKI, chairman of the House subcommittee on the Far East and the Pacific, led an eight-member group of legislators which visited Vietnam and other sensitive areas of southeast Asia.

His conclusions, which he said are largely shared by other mission members, include these on the issue of persecution and Catholicism:

"There is no evidence of religious persecution of Buddhists.

• It is erroneous to describe Vietnam's government as "Catholic" and to imply that the recent disturbances stem from Catholicism.

• The U. S. press corps in Saigon seems young and inexperienced, seeking chiefly sensational stories, and failing to confirm many of the details. Visiting newsmen sent on special assignment get more accurate accounts on the alleged religious issue.

(Father O'Connor, although critical of several aspects of the Vietnam government's conduct in the Buddhist controversy, has reported that the charge of a "Catholic-dominated" government which systematically persecutes Buddhists and favors Catholics is untrue.)

ZABLOCKI SAID that interviews in Saigon resulted in reports that backed up early Father O'Connor dispatches, such as government-financed construction of Buddhist pagodas and government agreement with initial Buddhist demands — only to have them revised by Buddhists.

He said the first Buddhist protest in Hue was a legitimate uprising over injustice.

"Since then, the communists have exploited the issue," Zablocki said.

"We must remember that Vietnam is a police state, a situation that has come about because it is a state engaged in civil war. My own impression is that if the Vietnam government did not use what we consider 'harsh' measures against alleged Buddhist demonstrations, the communists could paralyze the country."

ON THE ISSUE of a "Catholic government," Zablocki said that "nothing is more erroneous." He produced a statistic, also earlier reported by Father O'Connor, on the religious composition of government leadership. It claims that less than 25% of the government's staff is Catholic.

Zablocki, whose group spent three days in Vietnam, said he will urge to the full House Foreign Affairs Committee that a highly respected private individual or a team of investigators be sent to Vietnam to prepare an exhaustive report on the Buddhist issue.

Readers Answer

Readers of The Advocate were selected at random from the Newark Archdiocese and Paterson Diocese and asked their opinion of the article on the 60 white couples who had accepted invitations to visit Negro Catholics in their homes. The article appeared on page 1 of last week's issue.

Mrs. John A. Bergman, Lodi: "I think the idea is a splendid one provided the people who are going to be the visitors are properly instructed. I think the Negro couples should be properly prepared for the right attitude toward these visits. In other words, the Negro couples should be prepared to know that these white people are not being high and mighty but are visiting their homes to know them better and not to invade or look down on them."

"It's a good place to start for where else can we get understanding except by meeting with people? I would be interested to see what the reaction of both sides was and if from this others will think it's a good idea and carry on further. If people have the courage to persist in this, then out of it the feelings will spread and will probably help in work relations."

Barbara Sommers, Jersey City: "I think it's a very good idea because this shows that the Church isn't biased in any way and that we are trying to break down this racial barrier. It also shows that two races are compatible."

Interracial Visits Viewed

Clochette Lardiere, Newark: "I think the idea of white couples visiting Negro couples is good. People won't really accept the Negro until they get to know them. Outside of working with them or belonging to an organization where both races are represented, interracial visits are one way of getting to know one another."

"If you were brought up in the suburbs, you probably haven't had as many opportunities to know them. I feel it will be hard for some people to visit at first, but once they get to know them, they'll get along better."

Dorothy A. Liptak, Rutherford: "I think eventually there will be a closer association between the Negro and the white. The birth rate of the Negro is constantly increasing and the whites must learn to accept them willingly."

"In countries all over the world, such as Brazil, other Latin American countries and many of the islands, various races are able to live harmoniously and it's just a matter of time before most individuals can. Negroes are getting more education and becoming prominent citizens. True acceptance of other races will undoubtedly be achieved in another generation."

NEIGHBORLY GREETING — Mother Stanislaus, R.H.S.M., of Marymount College, Palos Verdes Peninsula, Cal., is given a friendly but unexpected hello from Cy. The sea lion is part of the "oceanarium" located across the street from the college.

I Was Thinking...

Literature, Decent or No; It's Your Decision

By RUTH W. REILLY

At the October meeting of the Newark Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, Essex Suburban District, Luke Walsh and Thomas Gooket of Our Lady of All Souls, East Orange, were guest speakers. Their topic was "The Decent Literature Campaign."

We all know of the campaign. Each parish has its workers who band together to ferret out offending storekeepers.

I think the majority of us are "back of the program 100%" and for the most part do not patronize offending storekeepers, at least for the few weeks or months during which the drive is stressed. However, I do not think most of us realize what big business indecent literature is and how casually it operates right under our noses. There is a great need for militant, sustained, united action to combat it.

WALSH AND GOOKET hadn't realized just how extensive it is either until they got into this action personally, and then the more they saw the more incensed they became, until now they are two dynamic, dedicated fighters in this field.

Between them they gave us a background of the work that is being done. This is not exclusively a parish project, nor a Catholic project. It is a municipal and area project. Adjoining towns, countries and even states work together on it.

For the second section of the presentation a large table covered with magazines was placed in the aisle. One speaker walked up and down among us and showed random pictures and articles from them. The display was made to startle us into a fuller awareness of this moral danger in our midst.

ALL THE magazines had been purchased in neighborhood stores in the area. These books are not kept in a back room nor under the counter, but are displayed on the open racks usually on the lower shelves.

Most of the magazines exploit sex and the female body, but the "latest thing" is the showing off of the male body. The articles are aimed toward young and unformed readers. For the most part they are gross and lurid presentations of sex. One article, complete with step by step pictures, explained how to give yourself a hypodermic needle! "And" our speaker said, "they tell us one picture is worth 10,000 words."

There were questions and answers touching on current and pending legislation directed to this problem. We also discussed the unusually high price of these magazines and the high mark-up designed to tempt storekeepers to handle them.

What can we do?

WE CAN WATCH the literature our children bring into the home. Don't be afraid to open any mail that may be questionable. A child may enter a magazine advertised contest to win a bike and get on a mailing list for some of this material.

We can spark or encourage the formation of a Judeo-Christian group to combat indecent literature in our town, and once formed urge it to band with county groups.

We can mean our Legion of Decency Pledge when we make it and follow through on it.

I was tremendously impressed with these young men. By example they clearly demonstrate a facet of the great work waiting for the layman to accomplish. I hope each one present, and my readers too, will catch a spark of their fire and enter into this battle with them.

Changes Announced At Caldwell College

CALDWELL — Mother M. Dolorita, O.P., mother general of the Dominican Sisters of Caldwell, announced four faculty changes made at a meeting Saturday by the Board of Trustees of Caldwell College. In addition, two faculty members were elected to the board.

Sister Loretta Claire, O.P., social studies professor, was named assistant to the president; Sister Maura, O.P., assistant professor of theology and philosophy, was made assistant to the college dean.

Sister Margaret Thomas, O.P., registrar, was named dean of admissions, and Sister Edith Magdalene, O.P., was named new registrar. Sister Edith has been associated with St. Dominic's Academy, Jersey City, for 13 years.

Sister Maureen Elizabeth, dean of women, and Sister Margaret Ann, librarian, were elected to the board of trustees of the college.

Gets Award From Pope Paul
NEW YORK (NC) — Mrs. Albert R. Spillman here has been awarded the Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice decoration by Pope Paul VI.

The honor was accorded to the former vice president of the National Council of Catholic Women in recognition of her work with Catholic Relief Services — National Catholic Welfare Conference in resettlement of refugees in the Brooklyn and Rockville Centre Dioceses. Bishop Edward E. Swannstrom, CRS — NCWC executive director said.

To Hold Bazaar
CALDWELL — The annual fall bazaar of the Dominican Sisters of Caldwell will be held in the Caldwell College auditorium here Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Sister M. Patricius, O.P., is chairman.

To people

and to their sons and daughters

METROPOLITAN has developed a new series of policies covering expense of hospitalization which will be issued at all ages 65 and over. These policies can mean a great deal to the peace of mind of senior citizens and their families in time of need brought about by age or sickness.

The premiums on these policies may be paid by the older people themselves—or by their children who may have the ultimate responsibility for hospital bills. And—under present income tax laws, these premiums are treated as medical expenses of the taxpayer or his dependents for purposes of income tax deductions.

Take a Thought, Then Think

By SUSAN DINER

I was thinking... As a Young Advocate how many times have you used those words? While thinking what did you discover? What did it lead you to do?

Just about anything you do involves thinking, whether it's playing, studying or walking. Seldom, if ever, does a person spend any length of time completely idle. Your hands may not be doing anything, but your mind is working. Perhaps your thoughts wander to Saturday's ball game, a party, coming tests or what you want to be.

TAKE AN IDEA and really think about it. Think about it from all angles—look up at it or down at it; sideways or around the corner to the back of it, even look inside it; what your friends might think about it or your family; perhaps your parish priests or a perfect stranger.

One thought leads to another and another. By the time you stop thinking about that particular subject you've learned a lot. You've also exercised that muscle called a mind.

MAYBE WHILE you were thinking you asked yourself some questions you couldn't answer. Then what did you do? Perhaps you've shrugged it off or asked someone. Perhaps if you were really ambitious you did a bit of research. At any rate you probably learned more than you thought you would.

Thinking is great. But if it doesn't lead you to some kind of action, it's useless.

EVERY WEEK Ruth W. Reilly writes the "I Was Thinking..." column on the facing page; a form of action resulting from a bit of thinking. Poets, writers and philosophers became what they are because they put their thoughts on paper. However, nobody would have been able to write if someone didn't first think about a process making it possible.

We enjoy electricity, rapid communication, good health and a longer life span because people thought and are still thinking. Thomas Edison had a dream about an electric light, but it required much thought and action before electricity became a reality. Every invention results from a thought, a dream and action.

What are you thinking about Young Advocates, and what are you going to do about it? A good idea, cultivated and nourished with thought, can mean a great future for you and others, or it can mean a better, more intelligent you.

BOOKS ON PREMISES — St. Elizabeth's of Hungary, Linden, is one of many schools in the Archdiocese opening its own library. The purchase of over 1,200 books, records and other aids was made mainly from the Paulist Press. The library is staffed by a volunteer group of mothers. Three of the mothers, Mrs. George Sweet, Mrs. John Dudas and Mrs. James McGee, are shown left to right with Sister Jane Francis, O.P., principal, and Rev. Louis Seiser, O.S.B., pastor. Also in the picture are students during one of the assigned library periods.

New Twist for Halloween

BAYONNE — Our Lady of Assumption School here like many other schools observes Halloween in a manner slightly different from the customary roaming of ghosts, goblins, witches and skeletons. Students dress up as saints. Sister Catherine, who teaches the fifth grade, said some students "never really realized that Halloween is the day before All Saints Day."

Each student has selected either their patron or favorite saint and has been working the past two weeks to learn more about that particular saint. If the student didn't pick his patron, then he has to tell why he picked the saint he did.

The class will have a party on Halloween when each person will have to give a biographical sketch of the saint he chose to the rest of the class. Sister Catherine said the students are "very happy and they feel it is very different. They have even gotten together at each others homes to do some studying and for most of them it has turned into a family project."

Reminder!

St. Ann's, Newark; Sacred Heart, Jersey City, and Holy Trinity, Westfield, were the first three grammar schools to report the number of subscriptions sold in the Advocate's School Crusade.

Young Advocates have only a few more days to take subscriptions for The Advocate and earn extra dollars for themselves. The drive closes Nov. 4.

Msgr. Tuite Advocates Libraries

SOUTH ORANGE — At the September meeting of supervisors of elementary schools Msgr. Joseph P. Tuite, superintendent of schools in the Newark Archdiocese, encouraged them to open school libraries.

Msgr. Tuite said, "the library is the heart and soul of the curriculum... it inculcates good reading habits... and encourages students to good leisure activities and supplements their interest in various and allied fields."

In line with this request, schools throughout the diocese have been working toward the suggested end of each school having its own library. St. Elizabeth's of Hungary School, Linden, is one.

St. Elizabeth's library schedule includes assigned periods for each class, a story hour for the kindergarten and first grade and periods for reference work.

Patrol Honored

PASSAIC — The safety patrol of St. Anthony's School here received a plaque from the American Legion at a presentation ceremony Oct. 25. Nearly 20 schools had competed for the award earlier this year.

A CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM

— These words of Christ express the power that belongs to children the world over. The two children above are part of the vast army of young ones that said the rosary during October. Devotion to the rosary during November will free many souls for heaven and continued devotion throughout the year will bring an untold number of graces to the faithful.

November...

A Month to Honor All Saints, All Souls

At dusk Nov. 1 bells toll throughout Central Europe. Families immediately gather in one room of the house, extinguish all lights except for a lighted candle and pray for the dead.

In other parts of the world, one can see a line of flickering lights slowly moving through a cemetery. A procession of townspeople reciting the rosary is led to the cemetery chapel by a priest.

After saying the liturgical prayers for the dead, the priest blesses the graves; the people then visit the graves of their loved ones and place candles there. Protective glass lanterns enable the candles to burn through the night.

MANY SOUTH American countries observe All Souls Day as a public holiday. Puerto Ricans dressed in their finest clothes walk miles carrying flowers to the cemetery as a public expression of love for their dead.

Young Filipinos on the evening of All Saints Day go from door to door asking for gifts in the form of cookies, candy and pastry as they sing a song representing holy souls freed from purgatory and on their way to heaven.

In Poland as in the U.S., people bring the parish priest a list of the names of their beloved dead. The black-edged list is placed on the altar and those listed are remembered by the priests at Mass.

THESE ARE a few traditions ushering in November which is dedicated to honoring the feasts of All Saints (Nov. 1) and All Souls (Nov. 2). Although these dates are firmly established as part of the calendar for the Catholic world, it wasn't always so.

It wasn't until the fourth century when St. John Chrysostom gave annual sermons on the first Sunday after Pentecost that all martyrs were honored. Yet it took slightly over 600 years after the death of Christ before the feast of all martyrs was introduced universally. It was Pope Boniface IV who proclaimed May 13 as a public holiday.

Pope Gregory III said this day was one to honor Christ, Mary and "all the apostles, martyrs, confessors and all just and perfect servants of God whose bodies rest throughout the whole world."

ANNUALLY pilgrims flocked to Rome for the spring celebrations. Such large groups swelling the town meant the consumption of larger amounts of food than was available.

It wasn't until 844 that Pope Gregory IV made two changes affecting this feast. One was to officially change it to include all saints not only martyrs and the other was to move the feast day to Nov. 1. Since November followed the harvest, feeding the pilgrims was much easier.

On All Saints Day we honor those already proclaimed to sainthood and those saints yet unknown to the world. But it wasn't until the 13th century that Pope Sixtus IV established the feast as a holy day of obligation for the entire Latin Church.

FROM THE BOOKS of the Old Testament outlining prayer for the departed souls as a need and a duty, to the 11th century, when the practice finally began to spread, the movement of honoring all the departed ones was slow. It took another 300 years before All Souls Day was officially proclaimed for the Western Church.

During All Saints Day and All Souls Day and throughout November special indulgences for our dead may be gained by saying the rosary and performing other spiritual acts. —S.D.

Wilmington Census

WILMINGTON, Del. (NC)—Some 9,000 Catholic laymen will conduct the largest census in the history of the Wilmington Diocese starting Nov. 24.

The census will seek to determine not only the size of the Catholic population but its social and economic status. Takers will visit every dwelling in the diocese. The aim of the census is to obtain data on which to base plans for Catholic education and other programs.

DEMONS AWAY — The owl is winking because he knows that Halloween gets its name from Allhallow's Eve but has nothing to do with the feast of All Saints. Addie said it's a tradition of pre-Christian times when demons, witches and evil spirits were believed to roam the earth greeting the coming season with much noise and playing tricks on the people. Humans picked up the custom of offering sweets and other foods to pacify them and joined them roaming the streets in weird dress in order to escape their pranks.

THE TIME IS TUESDAY — Addie is beating a drum to remind all Young Advocates about a wonderful American privilege. We are citizens of one of the few countries where free elections are allowed. Citizens of many countries are either refused this privilege or have no real choice. Young Advocates may not be able to vote in the election Tuesday, but you can remind your parents of this great privilege inherited from our forefathers.

'Dig Tunnel of Hope,' Priest Tells CYO Members

NEWARK — Almost 2,000 persons from CYO units throughout the Newark Archdiocese heard that it is their "mission to dig a tunnel of hope through the black mountain of the world's problems" Oct. 27 at a holy hour which opened National Catholic Youth Week at Sacred Heart Cathedral.

Rev. Thomas E. Davis of Immaculate Conception (Montclair), speaking on the youth week theme of "The Young Catholic in the Lay Apostolate," urged the youths to transform the world by bringing the practice of their faith out of the sanctuary and into the marketplace.

HE POINTED OUT that the current Vatican Council seeks to renew the life of the Church. "But if there is to be any effectiveness in this renewal, it must first start in the lives of the members of the Church," said Father Davis, former Essex County CYO director.

"If too many today have found the Church of Christ elsewhere," he added, "could it be that they have been unable to find it in the lives of Catholics — clergy and laity alike?"

"Too long have the laity, like a sleeping giant, confirmed in their complacency by the clergy, been satisfied to sit instead of stand, to listen instead of speak, to react instead of act . . . You young men and women are what Christ referred to as the salt of the earth, the yeast in a loaf of bread. It is your mission to dig a tunnel of hope through the black mountain of the world's problems."

IT WILL NOT be done by talk, he said, but by good example. "They must see what it means to be a member of the Mystical Body of Christ, what it means to belong to the family of Christ. Show them therefore in your obedience, in your thoughtfulness, in your respect for others, in your proper language, in your purity. Show them what it means to be a member of the Mystical Body in your kindness, in your generosity, in your selflessness. Show them in season and out of season, and only then will there be a renewal in the Church. Do this and you can change the world."

He urged them not to be deterred by setbacks. A true champion would be able to survive defeats. Despite their youth, they would not be judged by what they have accomplished, but by their potentialities to do things. "Christ took a few fish and fed 5,000. You bring Him your talents and He can change the world."

BANNER DAY — Msgr. James A. Hughes, vicar general of the Newark Archdiocese, presents CYO Communion Crusade banner, left to right, Carmen Salvatore, Anna Meldling and Maureen Farrell of Blessed Sacrament (East Orange). Eight banners, which will circulate through the parishes during the year, were blessed at a holy hour at Sacred Heart Cathedral Oct. 27.

JOURNALISTIC INTEREST — Msgr. John J. Kiley, executive director of The Advocate, and his brother, Charles Kiley Sr. of Westfield, assistant to the managing editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, discuss their newspapers as Charles Jr. lends an attentive ear. Charles Sr. was keynote speaker at a session of the New Jersey Catholic Institute of the Press journalism school Oct. 25 at East Orange Catholic High School.

In Press Rating

Nine Schools Place on Top

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Forty-one North Jersey high school publications were among those honored by the Catholic School Press Association in its annual survey and rating of high school and college newspapers, magazines and yearbooks.

The association, with headquarters at Marquette University's College of Journalism, cited 79 publications of distinction among the 700 newspapers, magazines and yearbooks rated this year.

IN ADDITION, 420 were rated "All Catholic" and 178 took "First Honors." Of the 41 from North Jersey, nine gained the top honors — two as newspapers of distinction and seven as yearbooks of distinction.

St. Dominic's Academy (Jersey City) led the winners, taking a distinction award in both newspaper and yearbook groups with Trumpet and Dominica, respectively. The other newspaper of distinction was Margold of St. Anthony's (Jersey City).

THE OTHER yearbooks ranked among the best were: Crusader, Bergen Catholic; Green Years, DePaul; Immaculata, Immaculate Conception (Montclair); Veritas, St. Mary's (Rutherford); Lumen, Mt. St. Dominic's Academy (Caldwell); and Keys, Pope Pius.

Twelve newspapers which were named All-Catholic include: Chips, Academy of Holy Angels (Fort Lee); Baylard, Bayley-Ellard; Emerald, DePaul; Harvester, Holy Family Academy (Bayonne); I. C. 'Hi-Echoes, Immaculate Conception (Lodi); Clairion, Immaculate Conception (Montclair); Corona, St. Mary's (Rutherford); Marian Echoes, Morris Catholic; Argosy, Mt. St. Dominic's Academy; Lakeview, Our Lady of the Lake (Sparta); Q. P. News, Queen of Peace, and Reveille, Holy Trinity (Westfield).

THREE MAGAZINES were named All-Catholic: Crosier, Bayley-Ellard; Reflections, East Orange Catholic High School, and Blueprint, Holy Angels Academy.

Eight All-Catholic yearbooks named were: Alogon, St. Aloysius Academy (Jersey City); Santon, St. Anthony's; Beth, St. Elizabeth's Academy (Convent); Felician, Immaculate Conception (Lodi); Chimes, St. John's (Paterson); Auxilium, Mary Help of Christians Academy; Shield, Morris Catholic, and Petrean, St. Peter's Prep.

In newspapers, first honors were given to ECHO Echoes, East Orange Catholic, and Lawn Lights, Marylawn of the Oranges. Seven yearbooks which took first honors included: Bonaventure, St. Bonaventure's; Cecilia, St. Cecilia's (Kearny); Josephine, St. Joseph's (Paterson); Bosconian, Don Bosco (Ramsey); Marylawn, Marylawn of the Oranges; Marian, Our Lady of the Lake, and Blueprint, East Orange Catholic.

Programs for Teens Show Variety

By ED WOODWARD

Activities and programs of interest to teenagers are going on in all corners of North Jersey and they stretch from the practical — a workshop on how to get a job — to the theoretical — a special college course in advanced mathematics.

At Christ the King (Jersey City), teenagers can learn about preparing for the business world in a workshop which will be directed by Rev. Francis Ellis Hertz Nov. 4-8.

Following a survey of Jersey City's industrial firms, the program was set up to acquaint teenagers with the requirements for entering the business world.

See Salute to Catholic Youth In Tabloid Section

Topics will include guidance from parents, school and church, what the employer expects from applicants, how to take an aptitude test, attitude and personality traits and maturity, getting along with people and motivation.

IF YOU DON'T have a place to go, make one. That seems to be the idea of the Senior Catholic Youth Club of St. Theresa's (Kenilworth). The unit commemorated National Catholic Youth Week by beginning work on a lounge for the young adults of the parish.

Bernard Dubroski, leader of the CYC's Young Christian Workers unit, explained that the idea came from that group's study of the problem of suitable recreation for young adults.

Following the YCW's traditional observe-judge-act plan, they saw there was a need; they decided what should be done about it; and now they are acting. The lounge will have a living-room atmosphere with a hi-fi, television, book rack, chess set, etc.

Donations of furniture are being sought in order to open the lounge for Thanksgiving, according to Robert Bodnar, CYC president.

MORRIS CATHOLIC High School is planning a couple of firsts. A history fair, which will feature New Jersey in conjunction with its tercentennial in 1964, will be held in January. Twenty American History students attended a history workshop at Butler High School recently to prepare for the fair.

Another addition at the Denville school will be a literary magazine, which will be published during the second semester. During Thanksgiving week, a drive will begin to select a name and to enlist financial support.

The English department will supply the content — which will be essays, short stories, poems, reviews and the like.

FOUR ST. PETER'S Prep students have started a program of advanced mathematics which is being offered by the City University of New York.

Seniors John LoBue, Edward Lagowski and Thomas Milkowski are studying at New York City College and William Dwyer, a junior, is at Brooklyn College. The program, which is sponsored by the National Science Foundation, will run through June 20 on Saturday mornings.

SHORT TAKES — Dads and daughters will promenade in the Holy Angels Academy (Fort Lee) gym Nov. 23 in an annual Sodality square dance.

William Mortenson, Thomas Milkowski and Edmund Burke, all of St. Peter's Prep, and Barry Bohan of Don Bosco (Ramsey) have been named semi-finalists in the National Merit scholarship competition. Representatives of 40 colleges and universities are expected to take part in a college night at St. Benedict's Prep Nov.

Winifred Waldron of Our Lady of the Valley High School and Mary Murphy of Benedictine Academy (Paterson) have been named to the court of the queen of the annual Xavier High School military ball Nov. 22 in New York City.

Catholic Young Adults Set Convention Nov. 3

NEWARK — Awards will be presented and officers will be elected and installed at the 13th annual Newark Archdiocesan Young Adult Council convention Nov. 3 at the Hotel Robert Treat here.

Registration will begin at 2 p.m. for the afternoon-evening program, which will open with a prayer by Msgr. John J. Kiley, archdiocesan CYO director, and a welcome by Rev. William P. Devine, council moderator.

DURING THE afternoon, outgoing chairman Mary Norton of St. Cecilia's (Kearny) will give a progress report and officers will be elected. They will be installed at nearby St. John's Church where Benediction will also be celebrated.

In the evening, four Eagle of the Cross awards will be presented to council members by Msgr. Kiley and the CYO's Pro Deo et Juventute (for God and youth) medal will be given to a Catholic layman of the archdiocese for an outstanding contribution to the cause of youth. Jeremiah O'Callahan, a Jersey City attorney and a Knight of St. Gregory, will be the principal speaker at the dinner.

Other outgoing officers include Marge Grycock of St. Michael's (Elizabeth), Rose Amato of St. Vincent's (Bayonne) and Francis Boyle of St. Anastasia's (Teaneck).

Crucial Contests Due

WAYNE — Crucial games dot the schedules of Big Eight Conference teams this week-end, but none holds more importance than a visit by Our Lady of the Valley here Nov. 3 to meet DePaul at Wayne High School field.

The visitors, who will bring a 3-0 record — the best in the conference — into this game, could bolster their hopes for a possible title with a victory. DePaul, the defending champion, may prove a mighty barrier.

A SECOND vital conference clash that day will serve as a test of strength for St. Luke's, which has a four-game victory streak and a 2-0 conference record. The Lucans will entertain a fast-rising Morris Catholic team.

Two Big Eight members will meet public school opposition Nov. 2. Bayley-Ellard at home with Hackettstown and Immaculate Conception at Verona. Oratory will have its best chance of the year of avoiding another 0-8 record when it visits Mater Dei of New Monmouth the same afternoon. St. Mary's will be at Essex Catholic Nov. 3.

Valley (4-1) saw its undefeated skinn cut, 13-0, by Clifford Scott Oct. 26, but the Orange team still hasn't lost in the conference. DePaul (3-1) recovered from its loss to Immaculate Conception with a 22-6 trimming of Kinnelon on Oct. 26.

A DePaul victory could tangle the conference into a hassle for second place with Immaculate Conception slipping away to the title.

ST. LUKE'S (4-1) can stay alive in the title chase with a triumph against Morris Catholic (3-2). The Lucans made it four in a row with a 19-6 victory against Our Lady of the Lake Oct. 27 while the Crusaders were squeaking past Bayley-Ellard, 20-14.

Immaculate Conception (4-0) added Harrison to its victim list, 24-7, Oct. 25, but it may be a little harder-pressed to stop Verona (2-3), which is bound to be smarting from a trouncing it took from Summit Saturday. The Lions, with the running of Ed Vay and Pat Quarto, should be too much for the homeside.

Bayley-Ellard (0-3) has not cracked the victory column yet and it doesn't appear ready to do so this week against a Hackettstown team (3-2), which is its usually strong self.

Oratory's losing streak has now stretched to 24 games after a 19-6 loss to St. Mary's, but this could be the end. Mater Dei (0-3) is in its first varsity season and it may not be able to halt the Orators.

After breaking into the win column, St. Mary's (1-3) may slip back to the losses again this week against Essex Catholic (2-2). The Eagles have advantages in size, depth and scoring punch over the Gaels.

Champs Top CYO Slate

JERSEY CITY — Although defending Hudson County CYO champion St. Paul's (JC) is out of the running for a second title, it still heads the league schedule Nov. 3 at High School Field.

After losing three straight, St. Paul's has won three to move into a fight for the runner-up and third-place slots. St. Paul's tripped St. Andrew's (Bayonne), 12-6, Oct. 27 and will bid for its fourth straight win against Star of the Sea (Bayonne) in the third game of a Sunday tripleheader at 4 p.m.

Holy Rosary (JC), which dropped a 6-0 decision to Queen of Peace (North Arlington), and Mt. Carmel (Bayonne), a 30-0 loser to undefeated and unscored upon Sacred Heart (JC) will open the program at 2 o'clock. In the second game Queen of Peace will take on St. Andrew's.

In a doubleheader under the lights Nov. 6 at Bayonne City Park, Sacred Heart should have its toughest assignment of the season. Coach Jack Bridges' Black Knights will face St. Michael's (Union City) in the second game at 7:30 p.m. In the opener, St. Aloysius (JC), undefeated but three-times tied, will play neighborhood rival Our Lady of Victories (JC). St. Aloysius defeated Star of the Sea, 19-2.

Joe Light led St. Michael's to a 20-0 win against St. Paul of the Cross, which has yet to win. Light scored two TD's added an extra point and tossed his eighth touchdown pass of the season.

Sacred Heart rolled to its seventh straight shutout as league-leading scorer Bob Garbie tallied three times.

Pirates Plot Title Defense

NEW YORK — Seton Hall University is ready to defend its metropolitan intercollegiate cross-country title at Van Cortlandt Park Nov. 5, after a slight scare Oct. 26 when Herb Germann collapsed from heat exhaustion in a 27-28 loss to Rutgers.

Herb had been running second to teammate Bruce Andrews when he fell 500 yards from the finish at Cameron Field. Taken to St. Mary's Hospital (Orange), he was kept overnight and released with a clean bill of health. The meet itself had been transferred from South Mountain Reservation due to the drought.

ANDREWS AND George Germann, Herb's twin, ran 1-2 against Rutgers, but the Scarlet took five of the next six places to clinch the one-point victory. Several boys on both teams complained that they were affected by the smog which hung over Cameron Field.

The Germanns, Andrews, Tom Tushingham, Kevin Hennessey and Joe Kroh give Seton Hall a solid six-man entry for the Mets against expected stiff opposition from Rutgers, Manhattan and Fordham. Seton Hall goes into the meet with much the same record it had last year when the Pirates also lost to Fordham and Rutgers in dual meets.

St. Peter's College won its third dual meet in a row last week, 23-33, from Jersey City State, with Richie Mariono, Tom Kraft and Dick Harvey trailing the Gothics' Jeff Stehli over the line.

Eagles Installed as 'Turkey Trot' Choice

By ED GRANT

ELIZABETH — Having beaten back the best cross-country teams New Jersey has to offer, Essex Catholic's newly-crowned NJCTC champions will show some opposition from Philadelphia and New York in Roselle Catholic's "Turkey Trot" at Warinanco Park Nov. 2.

West Catholic of Philadelphia, winner of one section at the N.Y.U. invitation meet earlier this season, and Sacred Heart of Yonkers, New York Archdiocesan champion, are the outsiders who will try to hand the Eagles their first defeat of the season.

Familiarity with the course, among other things, will make Essex the favorite over these two teams, which rank among the top five along the eastern seaboard. The field for the "A" division will be completed by the three clubs which trailed Essex in the NJCTC meet, Christian Brothers, Seton Hall and Roselle Catholic.

After Essex' easy victory in the New Jersey Catholic Track Conference championships Oct. 26 on the same course, it would be a rash prognosticator who would pick against the Eagles in this meet, or in the Seton Hall Spike Shoe affair Nov. 9 and the NJSAAA championships Nov. 16.

IT WAS NOT just that Essex had a 45-point margin over its nearest foe, Christian Brothers, but also that the record low score of 34 points was accomplished with no help from two senior regulars, John O'Leary, who placed 25th, and Larry Rooney, who failed to finish. Subs Jim Rebenack and George Bauer filled the gap by placing ninth and 12th.

Greg Ryan of Essex led the pack home in the good time of 12:34.8, third fastest over the course this season. Teammates Don Hobbs and Frank D'Allesandro placed fourth and fifth, respectively. All of the Eagles ran 13:14 or better with a team average of 13:02.

WITH FRED Lane and Art Martin running 13:24.8 and 13:25.1, times which would have put them in the first-20 in the varsity race, Essex Catholic posted an easy junior varsity win with 25 points to 63 for runner-up Seton Hall. Ryan had little trouble taking the individual crown. He ran a front race most of the way and his nearest rivals, Bob Kennedy of Our Lady of the Valley and Johnny Eager of Christian Brothers, did not make their moves until the last mile.

IN ADDITION to the Turkey Trot, which will also have a "B" division race for NJCTC schools and a public school division for Union County schools, there are several other races coming up this week.

The first is the Union County championships Oct. 31, in which Roselle Catholic, fourth in the NJCTC meet, is picked for second behind Westfield.

The Tri-County Catholic Conference meet will be held Nov. 1 at Van Saun Park, Paramus, with Bergen Catholic, fifth in the NJCTC meet, a probable shutout winner in the four-school field. DePaul is co-favored with Passaic Valley in the Passaic County meet Nov. 2 at Garret Mountain, while St. Aloysius, the "B" division winner in the NJCTC affair, rates with Kearny, as co-favorite in the Hudson County meet Nov. 5 at Jersey City.

On Hudson County Honors

St. Michael's, St. Peter's Leveling Sights

JERSEY CITY — The chances of a Catholic team competing in a post-season championship battle between north and south Hudson County titlists could be enhanced greatly in a pair of games at Roosevelt Stadium this weekend.

St. Michael's (UC), which has vaulted into strong contention for North Hudson honors, will visit Dickinson in the first contest Nov. 2. St. Peter's Prep will take on a tough Lincoln squad in an almost do-or-die match for each side the following afternoon.

IN TWO OTHER attractive independent encounters listed Nov. 2, Delbarton will go after its sixth straight victory this season and 10th over two years when it entertains Blair and St. Benedict's Prep will visit East Side. A fifth independent match has St. Joseph's at Marist Nov. 3.

Unwilling to be counted out after a loss to Emerson, St. Michael's (4-1) has come back with two big victories in as many weeks. The latest Irish victim was Memorial, 13-7 — their first success against the Mem since 1958.

St. Michael's shouldn't have much trouble with a Dickinson team which dropped its fourth straight Oct. 27 to Lincoln, 40-0.

HOWEVER, THAT result puts the pressure on St. Peter's Prep (1-0-2), which must tangle with that red-hot Lincoln (3-1-1) team. The Petreans were idle last weekend.

Delbarton, directed by its standout quarterback Mickey Guerrero, easily rolled past Newark Academy, 48-7, Oct. 25 to raise its record to 5-0. Delbarton appears to be headed for an undefeated season and Blair (0-5) doesn't look like a formidable obstacle.

For the second straight week, St. Benedict's piled up 40 points, this time allowing 13 in a rout of Peddie School Oct. 25. East Side (1-3-1) does not show an impressive record, but the Newarkers have played a tough schedule.

Each added three touchdowns to his lead with an extra point for 70 points as against 66 for Quarto.

Bill Jordan of St. Cecilia's snapped a third-place deadlock with Jim Koshlap of DePaul by scoring two TDs to raise his total to 54 points, six better than Koshlap's 48.

The leaders are:

Boystown Leads Grid Division

KEARNY — Joe Herrans, the number two scorer in the AI Bioris Football League, scored 14 points to lead Boystown to a 26-6 victory against the West Orange Rebels Oct. 27 and into sole possession of first place in the league's inter-county division.

Boystown will close out its home season with the Union City Comets here Nov. 3 at 2 p.m. at Kearny High School Stadium.

The victory Sunday pushed its record to 4-2 with two games remaining on the regular-season schedule.

Saints, Crusaders Approach Climax

ORADELL — Even though the Tri-County Catholic Conference just got moving in high gear last week, the climax of the season is at hand. St. Cecilia's will come here Nov. 3 to meet Bergen Catholic with an opportunity to clinch the championship.

Meanwhile, Don Bosco will be at Queen of Peace in a second league game. The loser faces certain elimination and the winner can hope for a remote chance of a share of the title.

Bill Jordan's running and the passing combination of John Grosso to Charlie Rott proved too much for the Dons, who won the crown last season. Don Bosco (2-3) was making its conference debut.

THE SAINTS will be completing their T-CCC campaign with this game and will be turning their attentions to a possible state championship after nailing down the league laurels — if Bergen Catholic (4-1) permits such an action.

And, the Crusaders have shown in its past two games that they can be tough in the clutch. While they only topped Pope Pius, 13-6, they had enough to start their T-CCC season on a successful note. With Tom Scott in the lineup, the Crusaders have an ever-present field goal threat which could prove decisive.

QUEEN OF PEACE (3-2) scored its second straight success Oct. 27 — a 6-0 decision against Marist — and the Queensmen would like this victory to at least give them a good chance of making second place in the final standings. Queen of Peace gave St. Cecilia's a much tougher battle than did Don Bosco.

Pope Pius (0-4) came within a touchdown of that elusive first victory, but failed against Bergen Catholic. However, the Eagles showed their best defensive effort of the season and they may surprise Seton Hall (1-2-2) with a much closer game than it expects.

Sign Editor Reports Letters Back Stand on Rockefeller

UNION CITY — The editor of Sign magazine said this week that letters on a controversial photo-editorial criticizing Gov. Nelson Rockefeller "are running three to one in our favor."

our code of life has properly drawn the rebuke of Americans of all faiths. Rockefeller should withdraw from consideration as a presidential candidate.

Gov. Rockefeller, an American Baptist, was divorced by his first wife last year. In May he married Mrs. Margaretta Murphy, an Episcopalian, who was divorced from her first husband five weeks before the wedding.

Father Gorman said about half of the mail was from non-Catholics. THE PHOTO and caption—a "departure" from the magazine's normal editorial policy, Father Gorman said—appeared in Sign's October issue.

Bars Candles In Cemeteries

SCRANTON (NC)—A warning against use of candles in cemeteries throughout the Scranton Diocese has been issued because of the prolonged drought.

Auxiliary Bishop Henry T. Klonowski said he acted to supplement fire restrictions issued by civil authorities. The Bishop particularly warned pastors to caution their parishioners who will be visiting cemeteries in connection with All Souls Day observances.

To Address Convention

WASHINGTON — Auxiliary Bishop John J. Dougherty of Newark, president of Seton Hall University, will deliver the keynote address at the National Catholic Educational Association convention to be held in Atlantic City March 31-April 3.

convention's second general session. Ribicoff, President Kennedy's first Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is a proponent of federal assistance for private school pupils.

Archbishop Celestine J. Damiano of Camden will celebrate and preach at the opening Mass.

Jewish Award To Star-Herald

PHILADELPHIA (NC) — The Catholic Star Herald, weekly newspaper of the Camden Diocese, will receive the annual human relations award of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Jewish Committee here Nov. 9.

Msgr. Salvatore J. Adamo, editor, will accept the award.

PATERSON MEN MEET — Msgr. Joseph M. O'Sullivan, moderator of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Men in Paterson, welcomes Judge Victor Kilkenny of Jersey City to the biennial convention Oct. 27 at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel. John C. Wegner, president of the DCCM, is at center.

St. Anne's Plans Open House

FAIR LAWN — St. Anne's Church here will open its church, school and some rooms of the convent for a tour to be conducted by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Nov. 3.

Visitors will assemble in the church basement between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m., where tours will be formed.

In the sacristy, Rev. Randolph Gibbons, O.F.M., moderator of the CCD, will don the vestments of the Mass and a confraternity member will explain their origin and significance.

Refreshments will conclude the hour-long program.

St. Paul of the Cross Puts Renovated Church on View

JERSEY CITY — Rev. Francis A. Hennessey, pastor of St. Paul of the Cross, has announced an open house tour of the completely renovated church Nov. 3 from 2 to 5 p.m.

A staff of guides provided by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine under the direction of Rev. James A. McKenna will conduct the tour. Parishioners will have an opportunity to get a close-up view and explanation of all of the new features of the church.

These include modern altars, attractive Stations of the Cross and paintings in contemporary style, as well as chandeliers which highlight the ceiling's painting of the Holy Trinity. The project was supervised by Renard Panzironi.

Non-Catholics are invited to the open house. There will be an explanation of church furnishings, altar, statues and the Sacraments of Penance and Holy Communion.

Refreshments and a question period will follow the tours.

Civil Rights Backed By Paterson Council

PATERSON — The biennial convention of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Men, held Oct. 27 at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel here, endorsed equal rights in all opportunities and education for all Americans.

In separate resolutions, the council asked for support of every effort to end racial discrimination and called for equal benefits for all school children in any plan of federal aid to education.

THE COUNCIL emphasized the moral obligation of supporting the just claims of all citizens for equal civil rights. On school aid, it asked that provisions be made in any education law, within constitutional limits, for aid to parents of children attending church schools. The council specifically mentioned long-term, low-interest loans to non-profit schools.

John C. Wegner of Paterson was reelected to a two-year term as president. James McErlane of Morris Plains was named as secretary and Paul Charney of Ogdensburg as treasurer.

The speaker at the convention was Superior Court Judge Victor Kilkenny of Jersey City, who spoke on the weakening relations of man to his Creator in this country, as exemplified by the recent Supreme Court prayer decision.

FOR SERVICES RENDERED — Arthur F. Whitley, president of the School of Law alumni association of Seton Hall University, presents a plaque to Msgr. Thomas M. Reardon, pastor of St. James Church and former liaison officer and spiritual director of the school, at the Oct. 24 dinner given by graduates in the Hotel Essex House, Newark. The dinner was attended by over 175 alumni and their guests, including 24 members of the judiciary.

NDEA Amendment Advances

WASHINGTON (NC)—The Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill to end inequities against private school personnel in two programs of the 1958 National Defense Education Act.

Sponsored by Sens. Winston L. Prouty of Vermont and Kenneth Keating of New York and unanimously favored by the Labor and Public Welfare committee, the legislation would permit private school teachers to get the same stipend presently given public school instructors enrolled in federal language and guidance institutes.

It also would permit a student who borrowed federal funds while in college and then became a college or private school teacher to get the same forgiveness of debt presently given to borrowers who become public school teachers. This amounts to a total of 50% of the debt at a rate of 10% a year.

School Prayer Fight

NEW YORK (NC) — School officials and affiliates of the American Civil Liberties Union are locking horns in many parts of the nation on the issue of public school prayer, the ACLU says.

The Civil Liberties Union reported on school prayer controversies in its weekly Feature Press Service.

The report spoke of widespread "resistance" to the U.S. Supreme Court's rulings of June, 1962, and June, 1963, against prayer and Bible reading in public schools.

It said this resistance "has caused affiliates of the American Civil Liberties Union across the country to press legal action against local school boards who refuse to comply with the high court decision."

Town Defies Ban

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Mass. (RNS) — This town of 3,400 persons in the Berkshire Hills is the only one of Massachusetts' 351 communities which has directed its public schools to open each day with prayer and passages from the Bible.

Owen B. Kiernan, commissioner of education, called the school committee's action "an irresponsibility without parallel in the history of the state." He said he is turning the problem over to Atty. Gen. Edward G. Brooke. However, Assistant Atty. Gen. Donald Whitehead has held that enforcement of the law in such a case is a responsibility of local police.

Approved Prayer

CONCORD, N.H. (RNS) — Voluntary prayer and Bible reading in New Hampshire's public schools have been approved by John C. Driscoll of Portsmouth, chairman of the State Board of Education.

Driscoll said he saw no conflict between the New Hampshire law and the June decision of the U.S. Supreme Court. Reversing a stand previously taken by the state board, he ruled that teachers and school children are free to participate in voluntary religious exercises.

Tax-Paid Training

ST. LOUIS (NC) — Some 3,500 parochial school students in St. Louis County Catholic schools are receiving tax-supported speech and hearing correction training under a landmark program here.

Originally set up for benefit of public school pupils only, the program was opened to non-public school pupils by a ruling on Church-State issues handed down in February by Missouri Atty. Gen. Thomas F. Eagleton.

The training is provided by the St. Louis County Special School District. Parochial school students receive the therapy in their own school buildings from a visiting therapist.

SCHOOL CRUSADE time (Oct. 21-Nov. 4) is a good time to renew.

AT THE CONTROLS — Sister Mary Elizabeth, O.P., principal of St. Mary's High School, Rutherford, mans the control panel for the school's new language laboratory, a gift of the Parent-Teacher Association. A demonstration of the lab was given at the Oct. 24 meeting of the PTA. Watching the operation are James Dull, president of the PTA, and Msgr. Charles C. Demjanovich, pastor.

UN Program

On Nov. 21

SOUTH ORANGE — A symposium on the United Nations will be held Nov. 21 at Seton Hall University. It will be attended by student representatives from 19 colleges and universities.

The theme of the program will be "Freedom From Ignorance." It will take place in the Theatre-in-the-Round of the new Bishop Dougherty Student Center. Representatives from the UN, the Peace Corps and foreign college students will lead the discussion.

Look, Post Mentioned

Parochial School Articles Derided by Superintendents

WINDSOR, Ont. (NC)—U.S. and Canadian Catholic school superintendents took issue here with two recent national magazine articles which they said have "tended to obscure the present vitality and vigor of our American Catholic educational system."

The school superintendents, in a statement adopted at a three-day meeting at the University of Windsor, took issue with articles on Catholic education in Look and the Saturday Evening Post.

THEY SAID the distorted image conveyed by these articles could lead many to conclude that the "traditional commitment" of the Church will change and that today's Catholic schools will become obsolete and cease to exist.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," they said.

"The Catholic school is as much an imperative now as it was during the 19th century (when it was established by a decree by the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore)," the statement continued.

The educators, while admitting that Catholic schools face many grave problems, said that they are the same problems facing all educators.

"THEIR SOLUTION requires all the ingenuity we can muster since we operate the largest private school system the world has ever known—and we do it with free-will offerings.

"Thus we are proceeding with confidence to develop programs in curriculum research, in the use of modern education techniques, in employee relations, in the recruitment and training of teachers both religious and lay, and in improving the teacher-pupil ratio in our schools," the statement said.

Catholic schools meet the needs of today's youth, they said, and "placing our trust in the providence of God, we are confident that they will continue to be dynamic centers of Christian education."

Msgr. Bennett Applegate of Columbus, Ohio, was elected president of the superintendents' group.

Continues Injunctions On Street Closing

HACKENSACK — The temporary injunction granted to four Rutherford residents against the use of streets surrounding St. Mary's Grammar and High Schools for play areas has been continued by Superior Court Judge C. Conrad Schneider.

However, Judge Schneider stipulated that police should continue to direct traffic during the play hours before and after school and at lunchtime and request motorists not to use the street.

ST. MARY'S children have been using Chestnut St. in front of the school for 40 years, though the borough council has not been able to get approval of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles for its official designation as a play street.

This year, St. Mary's agreed to a change when the council approved a re-routing of traffic to make more use of Chestnut St. Objections were made to each transfer of the play street until the children are now back on Chestnut St. The four objecting residents live on three different streets around the school.

After the injunction was first granted a temporary emergency ruling of the council to close the street, parents of St. Mary's children paraded the crosswalks on Chestnut St. during the play hours. No date was set for a final hearing.

Course in Latin

There are no entrance requirements, registrations will be accepted until Nov. 7. Tuition is $40.

ROTC Cadets Honored

At St. Peter's, Seton Hall

Some 69 ROTC cadets were honored in ceremonies at Seton Hall University, South Orange, and St. Peter's College, Jersey City.

At St. Peter's, Maj. Gen. John F. Smoller, commanding general of the Second U.S. Army Corps, presented Distinguished Military Student badges to 18 seniors during his official visit to the college Oct. 21.

Seton Hall presented these badges to eight students, while another 50 received academic achievement awards from Msgr. Edward J. Fleming, executive vice president, and Lt. Col. Andrew Budz, professor of military science.

The Distinguished Military Student badges are given to cadets who are in the upper third of their class in military science and in the upper half in academic standing. On condition of maintaining this status, they are eligible for regular Army commissions on graduation.

Other honors presented at St. Peter's included the summer camp award to Cadet Maj. Vincent M. Maulella of Glendale, N.Y., who placed second among 1,700 cadets from the New England-New Jersey area at Fort Devens, Mass.

Period Furniture Winning Fall Favor

Homemakers will find that this fall more than ever furniture is designed to blend different moods and periods into a harmonious decor. Starting from scratch, replacing worn pieces or adding to present furniture, the shopping is made easier because of the variety, adaptability and beauty of new designs.

Designers of upholstered furniture often hark back to the Victorian age for inspiration this season. Loveseats, sofas and lounge chairs feature the diamond tufting and rich fabrics that were once the symbol of "gentility."

BUT THE STIFF horsehair pieces that once graced front parlors have been modified for modern comfort. Today's cushioning is deep and buoyant. Latex foam rubber is the material frequently used, often with a fluffy layer of down or polyester fiberfill on top to create the soft, high-crowned profile.

Fabrics include rich-hued velvets, antique satins, damasks, creweled designs and silk-like blends. Many are pre-treated for soil and spot resistance. The lush expanded vinyls are very much in evidence and are particularly easy to keep clean.

Colors range from burnished golds to tortoise shell shades such as black pearl and java brown. Reds are much in evidence — sometimes in combination with green and mustard.

Oak, that sturdy old-fashioned wood, is in the forefront this season. Birch, ash and teak are also used extensively, while walnut is less frequently seen than in former years.

MUCH MORE attention is being paid to the backs and sides of furniture, which is no longer made to be ranged against the walls. Sofas with exposed wood frames can often be used as room dividers because of their attractive look from any angle.

Chairs, too, are handsome in profile with curving arms, curved legs and soaring backs. Most of the loungechairs have hidden swivels. Many are set on pedestal bases of polished metal. And a great number are accompanied by handsome ottomans.

Not all the fall lines are period pieces, of course. Contemporary styling is much in evidence, but it has more latitude than in previous seasons. Many of the modern pieces are Victorian in shape but with recessed bases to lighten the weight of the furniture and make it easier to fit into smaller-scaled rooms.

Gas Powered Laundry Pays Its Own Way

Automatic home laundry equipment quickly pays for itself. A leading manufacturer recently estimated that families using automatic washers and dryers at home can save approximately $300 a year as compared with sending their wash to a commercial laundry.

For example, a $225 automatic washing machine with an average life of 10 years will be used in a typical home seven times per week. Normal service and repair expenses over the life of the machine will average $32.

AMORTIZING these costs over a 10-year period means that equipment costs about seven and a half cents per load and utilities add another six to seven cents per load. Most coin-operated laundries charge about 20 cents a load to which must be added cost of transportation to and from the store. This then shows a minimum cost for each load of around 26 cents at the coin-operated laundry.

By comparison, the cost of sending laundry to a commercial laundry has gone up 50% since 1949. Many of the better commercial laundries charge seven cents a pound for wet wash or 56 cents for an eight-pound load.

The homemaker who does her washing at home will save a minimum of 12 cents a load — or 46% — over what it would cost her to use a coin-operated machine. Compared with a commercial laundry, her savings are around $135 annually.

A room, once complete decorated and furnished, looks so naturally beautiful. So in keeping with your home. But how does it get that way? Most homemakers have a clear idea of their wants and wishes, but translating room-ideas into actual settings takes considerable training and experience. Interior decorating is a courtesy service of Huffman & Boyle available at all six New Jersey showrooms.

The Hannon Philosophy In Family Business

NEWARK — At 380 Broad St. here just north of the Lackawanna Railroad, there's a comparatively new two-story blond brick building which expresses the confidence a father and his five sons have in the future of the small business concern.

Many years ago when each day was a struggle for survival, the senior Hannon made up his mind that some day he would have a beautiful store on Broad St., and that his family would all be a part of the business. Though normally a man of gregarious nature, Hannon humbly allows that his success secret has been the raising of a large family, training them all in the business, and a unified effort toward the achievement of a common business goal.

Hannon learned the carpet business starting at the loom. He was born in Yonkers, N. Y., and at 16 went to work in the old Alexander Smith rug plant there; Alexander Smith not being an unfamiliar name to him since both his parents and grandparents were employed there.

At first he tied loose rug fiber ends and later became a weaver, and while still a young man he left Yonkers and went to New York where he worked himself up from stock boy to rug salesman in the department store. Later he came to Newark and worked for L. Bamberger and Co. and Kresge's before going into business for himself.

Everyone Needs Own Corner

Few members of any family are exempt from paper work. Whether it's for school, office or household, paper work requires a work center.

The efficiency of a work area depends on how well it is organized. All materials needed for the job should be within easy reach . . . cookbooks, budget books, scratch pads, bills, etc.

The Home Furnishings Industry says the basic necessities include a desk with ample drawer space (and preferably with a mar-resistant finish), a comfortable chair scaled to the proportions of the user, and a good lamp. At least one other storage piece is helpful, and if space is limited, a hanging wall cabinet serves the purpose.

E.R. Cole Features New Designs

PARAMUS — Now featuring one of America's most unusual collections of gracious contemporary interiors, E.R. Cole continues to create enthusiastic approval for furniture that combines function and comfort with beauty—but beauty without frippery.

Staff designers at E.R. Cole wholeheartedly agree that the tempo of modern times be subdued in the home with accessories, wood and fabrics that tend to relieve tension rather than heighten it.

Color, too, plays a vital role toward this aspect of home decorating; and, it is interesting to note how monotony can be avoided by skillfully coordinating solids and patterns to harmonize with taste and spirit, rather than clash in an atmosphere charged with the pomp of a circus.

Most important of all, however, are the basic pieces selected for dining, living and bedroom which should reflect intelligent borrowing from the past as well as the adventure-some, excitingly new and beautiful concepts of our American designers today.

E. R. Cole furniture, located on Rt. 4 here, although primarily in the contemporary vein, is designed with the desirable versatility to take on the character of many period styles — including the new Mediterranean influence — with no more expense than the simple addition of accessories, wall decor, lamps, etc. that contain the styling of the period which is desired.

Anniversary Plans Completed

NEWARK — Mel Horn of Linoleum and Carpet Factory Outlet has completed plans for the coming observance of the company's 48th anniversary.

In all their display rooms in Newark, Springfield, Denver, and Asbury Park will be found nationally famous quality brands in the linoleum, carpeting and tile field such as, Goodyear, Armstrong, and Congoleum-Nairn, in linoleum; Aldon, Magee, Downs, Hightstown, Barwick, Gullistan, and Philadelphia in carpeting; Kentile and Robbins in tile.

Horn says he is looking forward enthusiastically to making this event a memorable one for the many thousand of customer-friends. Also to make known to others why for 47 years in a continuously owned family business, they have enjoyed the gratification that can come only from serving — with fair dealing, a highly competent consultant service, and top craftsmanship has added thousands of friends to Linoleum and Carpet Factory Outlet.

Hampton House Of Montclair

MONTCLAIR — Hampton House of Montclair has been serving this and other suburban communities for almost 17 years. During this period the aim has been to build a reputation as a store known for elegant selections, according to Carl E. Fish, president. Selections, styling and standards of doing business with the public have always been the prime concern, he continued.

With a firm foundation in the furniture business, Fish established Hampton House. He worked for his father who established the first furniture store in Morristown. This exposure and later seven years with the furniture department of L. Bamberger and Co., became the motivating forces to enter into the industry.

Associates of Fish who know his ardent love for golf, doubt that he played while attending the recent furniture show in High Point, N.C., his interest in furniture being even greater than his love for golf.

Focus on Beds In King Sizes

Healthful sleep equals luxurious comfort, as home fashion for fall focuses on king-size beds and king-size bedding, mattresses, like people, now come in a variety of sizes.

Recommendation is that the 5-6 or over man (or woman!) needs a king-size bed for proper restful sleep, but such is the human preference for comfort, and particularly for comfort combined with shopping values, that the king-size bed will by no means be the exclusive prerogative of the tallest.

Increased interest in king-size mattresses and box springs, accompanied by steel frames and headboards in an extensive selection of materials, not only reflects the desire for healthful, comfortable sleep but also the current trend in home decor.

King-size headboards offer scope to designers who are borrowing from early New World styles, from Spanish-Mediterranean, Italian, French, traditional and even Victorian moods to create a more opulent look for living.

Best news for homemakers is that bed linens, blankets, bed-spreads in the desired king sizes are now available in an ever greater range of colors and patterns, for an important assist in making attractive home decorating easier.

Easy Ironing

Even though many garments today are made of fabrics that do not require ironing, it is surprising what a tough-up pressing will do to make them look their best.

The new automatic electric steam-dry irons do the job easily. Many have special settings for synthetic and wash and wear fabrics. Higher settings take care of cottons, linens, silks and woolens.

Why accept second best!

JFK, Cardinal Laud Theme

In Youth Work

Vice President Cites Value

WASHINGTON (NC) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has hailed the 13th annual observance of National Catholic Youth Week which will conclude Nov. 3.

"I wish for you a successful observance which will help to prepare our young people for the tasks that lie before them he said in a message to the week's sponsor, the National Council of Catholic Youth, which is located here.

NOTING THE week's theme is "The Young Catholic in the Lay Apostolate," he commented:

"It is of vital importance to our country that our youth have before them constantly the ennobling traditions of the past.

"New times and new problems demand new approaches to the world. But these approaches must not discard or exclude the moral values which we have inherited from those that have gone before us."

He added that these moral values can best be taught "by active participation in the organization which exists to serve the aspirations of human beings."

ANOTHER statement issued in support of the week came from television news personality David Brinkley who said youth today are subject to "ugly publicity" which gives many persons a false picture of them.

"As a journalist," he said, "I may be more aware than some others that young Americans are far more sound, wholesome and devoted to their God, their country and their families than all of the ugly publicity would lead us to believe."

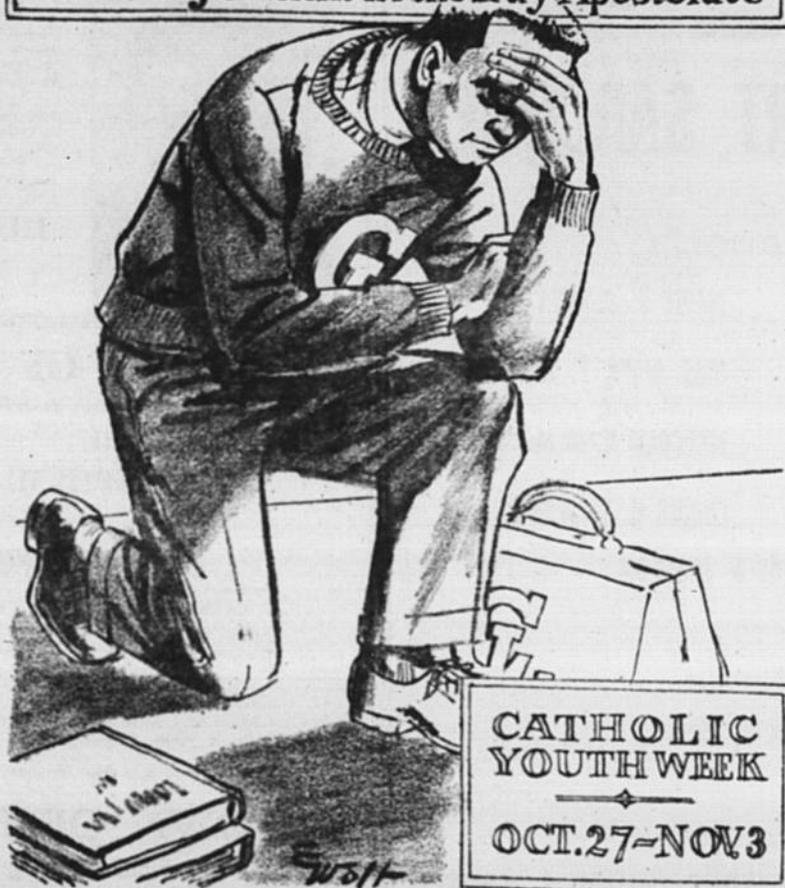

WASHINGTON (NC) — The 1963 observance of National Catholic Youth Week has been saluted by President Kennedy and Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston. Some eight million Catholic young people in parishes, Catholic youth organizations, grammar and high schools, colleges and universities throughout the nation are expected to take part in the observance.

"Your annual observance is a valuable reminder of the important role the young people of America play in community and family life and of the great good they accomplish," the President said.

Lord, Point the Way!

The Young Catholic in the Lay Apostolate

IN COMMENTING on the theme, President Kennedy said: "The role of youth in lay apostolate is a real and special one. They are in a position by their example to influence society according to Catholic Christian ideals and to act as a link between the Church and civil society."

He added: "I hope the activities you have planned for this week will spread an awareness of the responsibility of our youth toward the major institutions of society—family, Church and State — and also in recreational, educational, economic and political affairs."

He concluded his message by extending his "Sincere wishes for a fruitful and successful observance of this week by all young people of the National Council of Catholic Youth. May they meet and conquer the challenges of today's society."

CARDINAL Cushing called the observance theme "appropriate and challenging."

"Appropriate because of the emerging importance of the laity in the life of the Church. Challenging because the young people who will be influenced by your messages to them will find in it a reminder of their present responsibilities as Catholic citizens and of their future potential in a social order which will depend so much for its survival on their fidelity to the teachings of the Church," the Cardinal said.

"I pray with you and your fellow workers that your zealous labors for our young people may bear abundant and permanent fruit," Cardinal Cushing wrote in his message.

A SALUTE TO CATHOLIC YOUTH WEEK

OCTOBER 27 — NOVEMBER 3

Congratulations to the CYO on the 13th Annual Observance of National Catholic Youth Week.

As a boy I was a member of the CYO in Morrisstown and benefited from its many worthwhile activities.

May the CYO continue to provide the moral and spiritual leadership that will make today's youth the inspired leaders of tomorrow.

The task of equipping our youth for the challenging responsibilities that face them in our complex, ever-changing society requires the mobilization of both our public and private resources. Youth is the nation's most precious asset and the sound development of this human capital is essential to the preservation of our democratic form of government. The CYO is making a tremendous contribution to the national welfare by helping our young people develop into men and women of character and purpose. The CYO programs are of inestimable value in preparing our young people to assume a useful place in society and fulfill their obligations to God and their neighbor.

The CYO has been a far-reaching influence for good to countless boys and girls with resultant benefit to the whole nation.

JOSEPH G. MINISH

Colorful Floor Coverings Are Also Practical

When it comes to decorating the floor for fall, wall to wall carpeting and area rugs each have their champions — but on one point both sides are agreed. Wall to wall or area rug, the floor covering must be colorful.

Color on the floor has been steadily gaining in popularity as new fibers and finishes introduce soil and stain resistance and easy cleaning to make colorful carpets practical. This fall color takes the floor in deep, rich tones.

Vibrant reds and blues reflect the Mediterranean influence. Bold greens and blue-green combinations, shades of yellow and orange and even vivid pink make color news for carpeting.

More akin to the neutral hues but still with richness and depth are smoky charcoals, earthy browns, olive, rust, gold and bronze. Interesting textures add to the opulent air in carpeting.

Home Furnishings Remove Barriers Of Time, Culture

Furniture fashion circles today are ruled by an international set, a democratic design circle that knows no language barrier, no limitations of time or culture.

The origin of one fashion favorite was a sun-bathed Spanish town, another was to a historic manor born. Some were conceived by ancient seas; others came to life by a struggling people fighting for survival in a new land.

Whatever the ancestry, this worldly clique of style-setters requires two things of a design: it must be good. Be it stark or elaborate, homespun or aristocratic, it must represent design excellence. Secondly, it must have a public demand.

The diversified tastes of the American public created the demand; the beauty and quality of furniture offered today is testimony enough to the design worthiness.

If any one look, any one feeling bespeaks that proverbial last word—that look is itself eclectic, wordly, assimilating elements from many sources.

It results from subtle blending, but never matching. It is artful but not contrived, imaginative but never startling. It is the look seen in major lines where woods, finishes, hardware and trim play many variations on a basic theme.

Such a look costs more in planning and care than it does in money. So it is that home decorating, with or without a professional decorator, is no less an art than it was when selections were few and quality came only with a high price tag.

To realize this art, reminds the Home Furnishings Industry Committee, the homemaker of today has all the advantages of a modern furniture industry. It is through this industry that the best of all furniture worlds are made perfectly at home in America.

Details Dominate

Mediterranean influence on fall furniture is expressed in a wealth of architectural detail. Lattice or fretwork effects, graceful columns and arches, framed panels and moldings emphasize the classic, architectural feeling at home.

DO YOU KNOW...

NEW JERSEY

...produces nearly 6 million eggs every day!

The poultry industry in New Jersey is the state's most important source of farm income. We can boast of having more than 3,000 commercial poultry farms ranging in "population" from 3,000 to 150,000 egg-producing chickens. Approximately 10 million chickens supplied nearly 2 billion eggs last year, which brought a gross income of over $60 million. Cumberland County led all others with Monmouth, Ocean, Atlantic and Hunterdon Counties following in that order.

To New Jerseyans, the slogan "fresher by miles" is a meaningful one and we are supporting an important segment of our economy when buying New Jersey fresh eggs with the Seal of Quality.

Bel-Aire Homes Add More Living Space

A Cherson-Carroll Release

LODI (PFS) — Bel Aire Homes, one of the largest custom home builders for lot owners in the East, is incorporating new ideas, and expanding on old ones to make their homes more comfortable and more convenient.

According to Earl Martin, Bel-Aire Vice President, "Changing needs for the American family are being created by a trend towards larger families and a demand for more livable space in homes."

AMONG THE examples of innovations which lot owners can get in the new Bel Aire homes are more storage space created by use of built-ins and more closets, and by more judicious use of "natural" storage space in such places as utility rooms and garages.

Many homes are being readied by Bel Aire, with carpents replacing garages, and the cost savings being diverted into better facilities for recreation and family rooms.

MARTIN ALSO said that the demand for separate dining rooms is greater than at any time since Bel Aire started custom building. This is another facility included in many of Bel Aire's new models.
