How the Council Has Advanced Unity Movement

By REV. GUSTAVE WEBER, S.J.

Compiled by Rev. Gustave Weber, S.J., it is the most astute and complete study of religious unity in the whole Church's history. The author, an Augustinian from New York, has been engaged in this field of study for many years. He has been able to bring together all the material published in this field and has succeeded in making the whole subject clear and concise.

One of the aims of the Vatican Council is to foster unity among the various churches. This is the first time it has been prepared for The Advocate by a professor of sacred theology who has devoted the whole of his life to the study of the unity of the Church.

The time has come, and it is necessary to enter on the discussion of the question of the unity of the Church. It is necessary to study the various churches and the manner in which they are organized. It is necessary to study the various beliefs and the manner in which they are followed. It is necessary to study the various practices and the manner in which they are carried out. It is necessary to study the various problems and the manner in which they are solved. It is necessary to study the various solutions and the manner in which they are accepted.

It is necessary to study the various attempts to achieve unity. It is necessary to study the various successes and the manner in which they are achieved. It is necessary to study the various failures and the manner in which they are overcome.

 the founding of the Romanian Union Church (Reformed Churches are Eastern Rite Churches in union with Rome).
 The Mass also marked the 15th anniversary of the ded-

Council News Notes

Statement on Unity Predicted

The least that the Vatican Council will do in the matter of relations between the Church and the Jewish faith, said Mons.
 Jean Kerver in the press conference of Nov. 7, is to recognize the Jewish people as an entity that is likely to take steps to make the full effort of Christian teaching.

In the opinion of Vatican Cardinal Giuseppe Siri, one of the things that constitutes the Church's activity is to contact the Jewish people.
Neither is the Jewish pueblo in the Church.

As for the future, the Cardinal said that the future of the Jewish pueblo is not the Church's business.

Father Marosi, a member of the Dallas Courier, said that what most of the Church's activity is to contact the Jewish pueblo is not the Church's business.

 known, as an "assistant" to the Future Catholic Image

There is no doubt about it—the Catholic Economic Council, especially in the present moment, is steadily and progressively altering the Catholic Church's world image. A writer in the Christian Century says that the "true" Church has gone so far as to assert itself today to us to save the Church that was headed by Pope XII. That is patently absurd. The Church is underlying the truth, the Church, under the leadership given at Piacenza, is fully justified in its way and purely "uplifting."

FOR FOUR CENTURIES Catholic Education has been the religious movement in the Western world. The 16th century Council of Trent, setting the educational movement in a battle, it restored, respecified and developed the Church's position from within. Catholics were effectively rejected as impossible forgeries which protected them from the further destruction, those who wanted to destroy the unity of Christ's Church. Protestant influence also has a strong side. Individuality and originality cardinal in life, the Church has never been satisfied. Ideas proposed by the Protestant Reformers for freedom, closer participation of the

WILLIAM 0. C│,

Father Cizek's Ordeal

"They didn't even hand me a gun." These words spoken by a priest are the words of a man who has found the utter proclamation not of human strength but of the power of God. The first Magnificent song of the might of God and of the great things it has wrought in a human voice. That song can give us courage to face the future, to recognize the power of God and the greatness still achieved in the world.

FATHER CIZEK is the latest convert to the New Church, and is a shock to the severest of his former peers. He came to the Church in 1937, for Walter Cizek in celebrating an ordination in a church of the forgotten and feigned lands of Russia, to the Church of Jesus Christ within him sent his son. It was a shock to the severest of those who had continued as that same great spirit of the Old Church throughout the ages, and lands.

In 1947, he was ordained as a priest in the United States. Since his ordination, he has published several books. In 1970, he was ordained as a priest in the New Church. He has written several books and articles. He is known for his work in Russian history and language.

Two Classes
Of Bishops

By BISHOP PULTEY J. GREEN

BISHOP - As one who is in the church and looks on the great Church, I am impressed with the fact that the Church is not only a spiritual organization but also a social one. There are difficulties in the Church, such as in the world, and I believe that these difficulties must be faced and overcome.

THE BISHOP - As a bishop, I am responsible for the spiritual welfare of the people in my parish.
I am concerned with the moral and spiritual well-being of the people, and I strive to lead them in the right direction.

The Bishop - In the Church, there are many different classes of bishops, each with its own responsibilities. These classes are:

1. The Bishops of the Diocese:
   - They are responsible for the welfare of the whole diocese and its people.

     the administration of the diocese, including the day-

Missionary Reaps Souls

FATHER KONE, PRIEST TO THE NEWARK FARM'S, says: "It is not easy for a Catholic priest to work with the farm's young people. They are not always interested in learning about spiritual matters."

Addie Helps at Exhibit, Learns Decorating Tips For Schools, Churches

NEWARK — Last week Addie

By-Room Dinner

There's nothing built into a young missionary, but you stop halfway to count how many times you've approached a student. You count at least one time every day when you approach a student. So you ask yourself, "Why am I doing this?"

There are other times too. There's the time you talk to a training aide. The time you help them in their work. The time you help them on their little projects. You've been experimenting with forms since you started here, and you've been using them to try to save time and to try to make the work easier. It's a very good project.

There are some facts you don't have to worry about. Either didn't make a lot of sense or became too complicated.

St. Luke's Awaits Showdown Clashes in Big Eight

When a football coach says that a game usually doesn't matter, there must sometimes be a swirling mist of intrigue. At New Rochelle, Saturday's showdown between St. Luke's and Darien is just such a contest.

The Catholic High School League's Big Eight, which is predominantly Catholic, is far from being a large conference. But, it is, as always, a Division I conference, and its inclusion of some of the finest teams in the country makes it a contest worth watching.

The Catholic High School League, which consists of New Rochelle, St. Luke's, St. Rose's, St. Joseph's, and St. Mary's, is renowned for its high-quality football teams. The conference has produced many future stars, and its success is a testament to the dedication and hard work of its coaches and players.

The Big Eight Conference has a long history of producing champions, and it has consistently been one of the top conferences in the country. Its teams have consistently been ranked among the best, and they have produced many top players who have gone on to play at the professional level.

The Catholic High School League is a conference that is steeped in tradition and history, and it is a conference that is beloved by its fans. It is a conference that is a testament to the quality of football that is played in the Catholic High School League.

The St. Luke's Lancers, under the guidance of Coach John Madden, are the team to beat in the Big Eight. The Lancers have had a dominant season, and they are looking to make a run for the conference championship.

The Darien High School Blue Wave, under the guidance of Coach Joe D'Alessandro, are also a force to be reckoned with. The Blue Wave have had a strong season, and they are looking to make a run for the conference championship as well.

The Catholic High School League's Big Eight is a conference that is full of intrigue and excitement. It is a conference that is a testament to the quality of football that is played in the Catholic High School League. It is a conference that is a must-watch for any football fan.

But He Still Says Mass Daily

By REV. PLATID JORDAN, O.M.I.

HOLY CROSS (NC) - The Catholic Church’s oldest Bishop, who was named the Secretary of the Congregation for Bishops in Rome by Pius XII last month, has the honor of saying Mass daily. Bishop Caracci, 101 years old, is still active in his duties and visits and elimination necessary. He was ordained a deacon in the Church on November 5, 1923, and as a priest on November 15, 1923. He was appointed an auxiliary bishop of the Diocese of Rome in 1945 and consecrated in 1947. He was consecrated Bishop of Rome in 1958 and appointed Secretary of the Congregation for Bishops in 1960.

Monmouth and Ocean Counties: a Wonderful Place to Live...Year Round

Deliveries to Start
At Hollywood Hills

A Kroton Release

Just as the 1963 Hollywood Hills community was beginning to attract its share of artists, the new 1964 Hollywood Hills community, with its 220 homes, has also begun to develop.

The project, called Hollywood Hills, is located on the eastern outskirts of Hollywood, just north of the original Hollywood community. It is being developed by the Hollywood Hills Company, a subsidiary of the Hollywood Hills Corporation.

The community is designed to accommodate a wide range of housing needs, from small, one-story homes to larger, two-story homes. The homes are built on a grid pattern, with streets named after Hollywood stars. The community includes a central park area and a shopping center.

Residents of Hollywood Hills will have access to a variety of amenities, including a swimming pool, tennis courts, and a gymnasium. The community is located near several major highways, making it easy to commute to other parts of the county.

The community is under construction, and residents are expected to move in during the spring of 1964. For more information, contact the Hollywood Hills Company, 726 Hollywood Drive, Hollywood, CA 91601.
College Aid Bill Out of Conference

WASHINGTON D.C. - The House of Delegates of the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church has approved a bill to establish a school aid program for United Methodist-related schools. It is now awaiting action by the Senate.

The bill, which was approved by the House on Monday, would provide financial assistance to United Methodist-related schools that are in financial difficulty. The aid would be provided on a sliding scale basis, with larger amounts of aid available to schools with greater financial need.

The bill also includes provisions for the appointment of a commission to study the adequacy of the school aid program and to report its findings to the Council of Bishops.

The Senate is expected to take up the bill in the near future.

Who's Who

unsung heroes in every parish are those who give time, money and effort to the work of the Church. Few make the headlines. But without ushers, altar boys, sacristans and choir members, organists and altar societies - no church would be a proper place for the worship of God.

ALGAR BOY
Duties: Arrive early for Mass; light candles; prepare altar; answer responses; serve Mass, Benediction.
Training: Must memorize Latin responses completely; learn proper ceremonial for low Mass, Solemn Mass, Benediction, weddings, funerals, Holy Week and special feast days.

Training: On the job. Learning by doing.

ORGANIST

SACRISTAN
Duties: Care of vestments and sacred vessels used for ceremonies; general care of altar. May be combined with custodial duties which would include opening and locking church.
Training: On the job training from pastor or assistant. Must know liturgical calendar, what vestments are worn on what days; proper colors for altar etc.

ALTAR ROSARY SOCIETY
Duties: In some parishes, care and upkeep of altar, placement of fresh flowers, and linens. In other parishes the work of the society raises funds for altar furnishings and fixtures.

In the Very Beginning...

Cemeteries

Rome, famous for its magnificent churches, is also the forbear of the Christian cemetery. The early Christians buried their dead underground in catacombs long before any churches were erected. The first catacombs were built near the tombs of prominent Romans who had become Christians. These included the catacombs of Domitilla, niece of the Emperor Domitian, and a member of the Flavian family located on the Via Ar-dallina.

In the 19th century the typical cemetery was located next to the church and acted as a constant reminder of death to parishioners who walked through the cemetery to church services. Today, large diocesan cemeteries are located in central areas and death is now an occasional rather than a daily reminder.

Archbishop Ireland once said of cemeteries: "Next to the church, the tabernacle of the living God, in the cemetery, the earthly home of the departed's soul, is in the most sacred of places."

Churches

The church, like Christ, sprang from humble beginnings. In the days following Christ's death, the Apostles and their followers often held services in private homes. St. Paul writes of his visit to Corinth that he was denied the use of any room by the Jews and used the house of Titus Justinius for his preaching.

One of the oldest church buildings in Rome is St. Matia ad Martyres, built as a home in 20 B.C. by Marcus Agrippa. It contains the tomb of Raphael, Cardinal Consalvi and Kings Victor Emmanuel II and Humbert II. Another ancient church of Rome is St. Lawrence Outside-the-Walls which stands in the cemetery of St. Cirico. It was built during Constantine's reign. Next to St. Peter's it was the most frequented sanctuary in Rome at the end of the fourth century.

Stations

It is often a surprise to the average man that the Stations of the Cross really do exist. He's familiar with the fact that his Catholic friends have "Stations" in their churches—reminders of the journey Christ made to his execution. But he is astonished, just the same, to see in Jerusalem the Via Dolorosa: the narrow road. He sees the 14 spots in Jerusalem, each marked with a cross, said to be the places where Jesus of Nazareth, the God Man, trudged, fell, met his mother, was helped by a blind man named Simon, had his cloak ripped from him, was nailed to a wooden cross and set up in the afternoon sun to die.

It's a narrow street, like many in Middle Eastern cities. You'll find, too, outdoor stalls along the way selling souvenirs, magazines, candles. Otherwise, you'll see distracted travelers walking hurriedly.

THE NECESSARY THING

The Altar May Be Portable

Fixed or portable, an altar is necessary for the celebration of Mass.

The fixed altar is made of stone and consists of a table and supports consecrated as a whole.

The portable altar is a solid piece of natural stone, large enough to hold the Sacred Host and the base of the eucharist.

It has five crosses cut into it and a cavity containing the relics of two martyrs, sealed with a cemented stone lid.

The flat-topped tombs of the martyrs made convenient altars during the persecutions. This led to the custom of placing a small portion of the earthy remains from a canonized martyr-saint in the altar.

In the Greek Church the so-called "Greek Corporal" is used as a portable altar. It is a consecrated altar cloth of silk or linen, much like a common altar cloth.

When a church is consec-ated, a piece of cloth large enough to form several Greek Corporals is placed on the altar.

The Bishop himself consecates it, pouring wine and holy unction on it and studding it with a mixture of wax and fragrant gum. It is then divided into pieces and distributed as the ritual requires.

The relics of the great number of priests and prelates in Rome for the first session of the Vatican Council. Pope Pius X gave everybody the privilege of the "Greek Corporal" ceremony which is shared by all Christians.

Thus they were able to celebrate Mass anywhere they could find a suitable flat surface, rather than miss celebrating Mass because they could not find a free altar or obtain a small portable one.

A Church Has Jewish Traditions

"Spiritually we are Jewites," said Pope Pius XII pointing to the Jewish heritage of all Christians.

Evidence is nowhere more striking than in the consecration of a church. Here, at one part of the ceremony, the Greek and Latin alphabets are traced in a cross from one end of the church to the other. The Greek represents the Jews, the Latin the Gentiles.

The Greek is written first to emphasize the fact that the Jews were called first to the Christian Faith.

The church, too, is ceremonially washed with a mixture of water, salt, ashes and wine—prescribed by St. Gregory I for all church consecra-tions—remaining of the traditional washings of the Jews.

This sprinkling is recalled in the "asperges" or "washing" ceremony that precedes High Mass.

In both rites the words of Psalm 43 are heard: "You shall wash me and I shall be made whiter than snow."

WHAT IS IT CALLED? WHAT IS IT USED FOR?

1. PULPIT — Historically, first erected as a place from which one could address those in the church. There are no regulations on location of the pulpit from the liturgical standpoint.

2. CHAIR or BENCH for priest during High Mass. The celebrant of the Mass sits there several times during the course of the Mass. His vestments are draped carefully over the back of an altar chair. In a cathedral, a cathedral throne (chair or throne of the Bishop) is used during the solemn ceremonies.

3. FLAGS, U.S. and Papal — Bearing the symbols of church offices, by decree of Sacred Congregation of Rites (1966). The pew section states: “When the insignia or flags do not belong to societies openly hostile to the Catholic religion, or to a society whose statutes are themselves objectionable or whose insignia or flags bear emblems forbidden and condemned by their very nature, they may be admitted into church. Flags should be blessed according to the formulas in the Roman Ritual.

4. SACRISTY — Room next to the sanctuary in which sacred vessels, books and vestments are stored. Here the priest puts his vestments on his vestments for various church services. Sacristy is a phrase that can be substituted for the word vesting above the vesting table and a container with water for the priest’s hands.

5. SANCTUARY LAMP — A lamp hanging in a niche which may be turned on or off. It is made of glass. The lamp must be fed with olive oil or beeswax. In case of necessity, electric light may be substituted. It is lit daily to honor the Blessed Sacrament.

6. ALTAR — Table on which sacrifice of the Mass is offered. May be celebrated outside a sacred place, but within at least an altar or at least an altar stone. The first Masses were celebrated on a stage.

Today, an altar must be made of stone in order to be consecrated. Altar table and altar stone are two essential parts of the fixed altar. The table must be smooth and large enough for the priest to conveniently celebrate the Mass. The altar stone is a small square stone chamber in the body of the altar which houses the relics of martyrs.

7. STATUES — History of statues goes back to the first centuries. Perhaps Christians brightened gloomy caverns with paintings of Our Lord’s life and miracles. Later they took abandoned tombs of pagans and Christians and decorated them with statues. Today, most churches have several statues with at least one of each person from the church was named.

8. CREEDENCE TABLE — To the left of a small altar a small table should hold hosts, chalices, or vessels containing the wine and water used in the Mass. Often it is placed with a small altar and a small vessel for washing of fingers by the celebrant. This should be made of glass so that the contents of each can be clearly seen.

9. SIDE ALTAR — Usually two at each side of the main altar. They may stand against the wall and need only one wall rail. They are used for the celebration of Mass when there are several priests available. They do not serve as an image brackets or shrines. Since the Blessed Sacrament is usually reserved on the main altar, it is not necessary to have a tabernacle at the side altar.

10. ALTAR RAIL — Guards the sanctuary and separates it from the rest of the church. Sometimes called a communion rail as persons kneel at it while receiving Holy Communion. It is made of carved wood, metal or marble and is usually about two feet, six inches high and the upper part from six to nine inches wide.

11. SANCTUARY — Space in church for the high altar and clergy. In early days it took the form of a cross. The raised sanctuary, as we know it today, became popular with Gothic style churches. This allows an unobstructed view of the high altar.

12. MISSAL — The Missal book which contains all that is read or recited in the offering of the Mass; the Missal contains the prayers and directions for the proper reading of each Mass. The Missal is written in Latin and contains four parts of text: all the Missal was approved by the Council of Trent. Since the Council of Trent, the Missal was produced substantially in Latin. In 1545, Pope Pius V was the principal reviser of the Missal.

13. CRUCIFIX — A cross on which the figure of Our Lord is painted or carved. A crucifix is a cross with a figure of Jesus in all churches. The use of the crucifix is not general before the 6th century and the representation of Our Lord suffering or dead did not begin until the 12th century. Before that He was usually represented as Christ the King reigning from the cross.

14. TABERNACLE — The compartment, usually placed in the middle of the altar, in which the Blessed Sacrament is kept. Early tabernacles were in the form of domes which hung from the roof of the canopy or a special tower. These were replaced by an octagonal shaped tower placed on the Gospel side of the altar. The earlier stone or wood tabernacles were generally made of precious metal. The present form of tabernacle dates from the end of the 16th century.

15. CHALETTE — Recalls the same type of cup used by Christ at the Last Supper for the wine to be consecrated in His Blood. It is made of gold or silver. It must not be made of gold, the interior of the cup must be gold plated. The rim is anointed with holy chasms by a Bishop.

16. PATERN — A small, round plate, made of the same material as the chalice. If made of silver the upper side must be gold plated. It rests on the bread plate to be consecrated into the Eucharist of Christ. It too is anointed with holy chasms by a Bishop.

17. CANDLES — During Mass lighted candles must burn on the altar. Candles must be made of beeswax. During funerals and on Good Friday, yellow, unbleached candles are used. For Low Masses two candles are used. High Mass at least four; Solemn Mass, six. When the Bishop celebrates a Pontifical Mass (except a Requiem Mass) a seventh candle is lighted behind the altar crucifix.

The Lost Churches

Few churches are ever lost in the U.S. Not so in other countries. New rulers have often meant changes for churches as well as for their people.

Two of the most famous lost churches are Westminster Abbey in England and St. Sophia Basilica in Istanbul (formerly Constantinople) Turkey.

Today St. Sophia is a mosque and a museum. Built by the Roman Emperor Justinian in the sixth century, it is a famous example of Byzantine architecture. It is still on the tourist route today. If you visit Istanbul, the guides will point to St. Sophia (the name remained even though the church was lost) and may even show you the door through which Mohammed drove his horse in 1453 when he conquered the city and captured the church.

Westminster Abbey in England is still a church—an Anglican one.

You may have seen it on TV in May, 1960, when Princess Margaret was married to Anthony Armstrong-Jones there. Most of England’s kings and queens were crowned there, as was the now-reigning Queen Elizabeth.

In the Westminster tombs the English Catholic finds not only the burial places of his rulers but his saints as well. The Abbey contains the tomb of St. Edward the Confessor, the English king who founded it, and Queen Elizabeth I who gave it the Anglican dean and chapter which it retains today.

Some churches have been lost and then regained. This calls for a special ceremony of reconciliation.

The famous Notre Dame Cathedral of Paris was the scene of a pageant “Festival of Reason” during the French Revolution in the late 1790s. Another Catholic church, St. Etienne du Mont, became a Paris cabinet: music, dancing and drinking.

Today Mass is offered in both. But Mass was offered in neither until they had been reconciled.

Church law calls for reconciliation of sacred objects when they have been desecrated by improper, unlawful use. After reconciliation, usually done by the Bishop of the area, the church may once more be used for its original purpose: the honor and glory of God.

Raw and the Law

Did young John Raw, a 19-year-old fleeing from the police know the Code of Canon Law? Raw sought sanctuary earlier this year in a church in Darlington, England.

Years ago he would have been quite safe if he could have come within a mile of Westminster Abbey—for sanctuary extended that far in the days of Catholic England.

Under sanctuary laws and according to the Code of Canon Law, “Churches enjoy the right of refuge, so that a criminal who has fled into them may not, except in urgent necessity, be taken out without the permission of the Ordinary, or at least the rector of the church.”

Raw, however, found sanctuary to be a dead letter. Once inside the church, he was pursued and tackled by the assistant. Rev. John Timney and promptly turned over to the police.

Father Timney, who probably did know his Canon Law, realized that the protection of sanctuary no longer exists.

Taxes, zoning laws, building permits, fire, electrical inspections — they are as much a part of the pastor’s life as of the average home owner’s. Often the pastor has a school, convent and auditorium as well as a church and rectory to maintain according to various city codes.

A zoning ordinance in Mt. Lebanon, a suburb of Pittsburgh, blocked the erection of a new Catholic church. The population is 32% Catholic but only one of the town’s 12 churches is Catholic.

In Poland a campaign to tax the church out of existence succeeded in closing a number of schools and seminaries.

The Popery Laws by which English rulers attempted to destroy Catholicism in Ireland during the 18th century are an earlier example of a concentrated government campaign against the Church. Zoning laws affect everyone. Thus, advice to Catholics to take part in public life is practical as well as charitable.

Only the parishioners of a church can be sure the church will retain its freedom in carrying the message of Christ to the community.

NEW JERSEY

...is bordered on three sides by water!

New Jersey is almost an island. It has water on three sides ... the Hudson River and the Atlantic Ocean on the east, Delaware Bay and River on the south and west. In fact, there are 347 miles of seacoast, inlet or river bank. To New Jersey citizens this means deepwater ports for commerce and industry, sheltered inlets to accommodate private craft, numerous marinas, fishing, swimming and beautiful scenic views. The waterways of New Jersey are an important part of the state’s economy and give substance to its claim of being a major “Gateway to the World”.

The Pope’s Own Parish

Even the Pope has his own parish — but it’s not St. Peter’s Basilica!

The inscription over the entrance to the Basilica of St. John Lateran reads, “The Most Holy Head of all churches of the City and of the World.” Called also the Church of Our Most Holy Savior, it has been the cathedral church of the Pope and of Rome since the fourth century. St. Peter’s on the other hand, is only 6 years old.

A unique feature of St. John Lateran is its papal altar which faces the people and has behind it an episcopal throne. The Pope or other presiding prelate — instead of sitting at the side of the altar as in most cathedrals — remains seated behind the altar. Thus he is facing both the altar and the people beyond.

A wealthy Catholic who will get a large sum of money for the erection of a new church has little chance that it will be named in his honor. Study halls, school buildings, parish halls — yes, churches too. They must be named after saints or some sacred mystery of the Catholic Faith.

Usually the Bishop selects the name for the parish — through in some cases, parishioners have gotten together and requested a name. Sometimes a Bishop may let the parishioners or the pastor decide.

Archbishop Roland has made a symbolic rosary of new churches in Bergen County during the past decade. Parishes have been named for the mysteries of the rosary — Annunciation, Visitation, Nativity, Presentation, Ascension.

Cardinal Spellman of New York has adopted the practice of naming a parish after each of the new saints canonized by the Church.

You Can Lay a Cornerstone

What can one parish do? Here are some ideas from other parts of the country and the world.

A widow with five children in Enino, Calif., received a free exterior paint job for her house. The work was done by Holy Name members who heard of her need.

Parish groups in St. Louis backed an Information Forum for laityed Catholics and increased attendance from 7 to 300.

Parishioners of St. Aidan's in Williston Park, L. I. have started a program to inform Catholic and non-Catholic neighbors about their parish school through block-by-block discussions. Neighbors are gathered in groups of 30 to hear two qualified speakers explain the function of the school.

The Holy Name Society of Our Lady of Victory parish in suburban Cincinnati supports discussions of papal encyclicals, raised the level of Sunday collections, calls the pastor weekly to check if any repairs are needed, organized family discussion groups, staged successful drives to recruit and hold competent teachers.

"Street wardens" in Bristol, England make personal contact with Catholic families, visit the elderly and the sick, and welcome newcomers. "Stewards" help the clergy professionally, particularly in financial and material matters. All began with the idea of making Christ's command to "Love neighbors" the cornerstone for their own church.

AIR-COOLED

What a difference some cool air can make. Msgr. James J. Owens, pastor of St. Mary's, Nutley, can testify to this. He found a 25% increase in daily Mass attendance and nearly 300 additional persons attending Sunday Mass after installing an air conditioning system in the church.
