Viet Catholics Cry: ‘Rights Are Injured’

An Advocate News

Yesterday, a group of married Catholics—many wear the crookshaped or carrying a rosary—paraded in a protest demonstration. Some of the demonstrators were dressed in the Pope’s clothes, while some carried signs that read “Pope’s.”

Grasell, the Archdiocesan director of the Archdiocese of New York, will build an annual convention for the national Catholic Laymen’s Movement in June, with workshops planned for the convention.

The workshop itself will be held in June and will focus on various aspects of race relations, including the role of the Catholic Church in addressing these issues.

COUNCIL OF CHURCHES BACKS SHARED TIME: ‘Creative Measure’

NEW YORK — Shared time — the program of the Catholic Education Association of the United States — will be discussed during the 1963 convention of the association in May. The convention is scheduled to take place in the spring of this year.

The council’s General Board met recently to discuss the implementation of the program, which is designed to help parishes and schools share the use of their facilities.

The board approved a resolution that was passed unanimously by the convention delegates, expressing support for the program and asking that it be implemented as soon as possible.

The resolution reads: “The Council of Churches recognizes the value of shared time programs and endorses the principles on which they are based.”

The council also passed a motion that the program be studied further.

Peace Group Told

BOMB IS HERE, PACIFISTS CAN’T SOLVE ITS PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace activists were alarmed by the recent reports of the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam. They called for a halt to all nuclear testing and urged the United Nations to take immediate action to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

Their statement read: “The use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam is a violation of international law. It must be stopped immediately.”

They went on to say that the United Nations should take steps to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and to ensure that all nations abide by international law.

Peace activists also called for a moratorium on all nuclear testing and for the establishment of a system of international control to prevent the development and use of nuclear weapons.

They concluded by stating that the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam is a threat to world peace and must be stopped immediately.
Arab League Culture Pact For Unity or Oppression?

REBIR, Lebanon (NC) — The Arab League's decision to establish a cultural pact for unity in the region has been viewed with mixed reactions. Some have expressed hope that it will lead to greater understanding and cooperation among Arab countries, while others fear it could be used to suppress dissent and reinforce authoritarian regimes.

The Arab League's Executive Council, meeting in Cairo, approved the proposal to establish a cultural council to promote unity and cooperation among Arab nations. The decision was made after weeks of discussions and negotiations among member countries.

Proponents of the pact argue that it is necessary to counter the influence of external powers, particularly Israel, which they say seeks to divide the Arab world and weaken its collective voice.

Critics, however, warn that the cultural council could be used as a tool to suppress free expression and silence dissent. They point to the precedent of Arab League resolutions that have been used to stifle criticism and target opposition leaders.

The Arab League's move comes amid growing tensions in the region, with conflicts such as the war in Yemen and the Palestinian-Israeli conflict remaining unresolved.

Thanks-givings: Holy Day Mass Proposed

WASHINGTON (NC) — Archbishop O'Connell's proposal for a Holy Day Mass to commemorate Thanks-givings is expected to be favored by the congregation.

At a press conference held in the archbishop's residence, Father O'Connell said: "I believe that the Holy Day of Thanks-givings is a time for reflection and gratitude. We should use this day to give thanks for the many blessings we have received from God."

Father O'Connell's proposal was met with enthusiasm by the congregation. "I think it's a wonderful idea," said one parishioner. "It will give us a chance to come together and express our gratitude for all the good things in our lives."

It may not be too late to ask and we don't expect to get an answer — anyway. "What has happened to the Catholic spirit that they were called to be friends of man?"

"There were 130 of them," said a Catholic priest who served on the editorial board of the Advocate. "They were the leaders of Maryland Catholics voted for Alabama Governor George Wallace in the 1964 election. They included priests, religious, laypeople, and students from the Catholic University of America and other Catholic institutions in Baltimore. They met to discuss the situation and to plan action."

"We feel that the St. Boniface Catholic Church in Baltimore is a symbol of the spirit that these people are trying to nurture," said Fr. Peter J. O'Brien, a priest who helped organize the group. "They want to show that the spirit of the Catholic Church is not just for the rich and the powerful, but for everyone."

The group's goals include: preserving the civil rights of all citizens, promoting racial harmony, and ending discrimination. They believe that the Catholic Church has an important role to play in these issues and that Catholic leaders must speak out against injustices. They also believe that the Church should work towards social justice, including the end of poverty and hunger.

"We are not looking for a fight," said O'Brien. "We just want to be heard. We want to be a voice for the voiceless."

Summer Stock on Setonlia's Arena Stage

By MONICA CEBERE

The need for a summer theater in this area, the intermittent activities of New Jersey and a suggestion from a member of the community who said he was interested in acting, gave rise to the formation of the Summer Stock on Setonlia's Arena Stage.

Led by a dedicated group of people, the theater has been successful thus far in presenting plays. The Summer Stock on Setonlia's Arena Stage has included George Washington's Birthday and The Glass Menagerie.

"We are trying to be a part of the community by presenting plays of interest to the community," said the group's representative.

The group plans to continue its mission of providing entertainment to the community.

Corpus Christi Honored By Custom, New Rule

I am glad we have a special Feast of Corpus Christi, apparently established by Holy Week. On Holy Thursday we saw our sacred host exposed publicly, and I thought it was a fitting time to point the way to the Eucharist in a more public way. In the year of our Lord, Jesus went to the Emmaus road with His disciples. We should be happy to see the Lord in the midst of His people, in the Eucharist. It is a lovely thought, to see the word for the rest of the world.

This year we celebrated the Feast in the Catholic Church on Lynden Avenue, with a large group of white flowers covering the altar. The Lord was very much in evidence throughout the church and the entire congregation participated in the mystery of the Holy Eucharist as it was offered.

Almost everyone received and, although it is a little thing compared with what is yet to come, I enjoyed that moment of the "Amen" when the priest said "Corpus Christi."

After Mass the old German custom of the second Sunday of May was followed. The women of the church left the church first, their pretty voices raised a song, "Hail, Queen of Graces," and little girls followed, tossing flowers into satin hymnals. The girls followed, tossing flowers into satin hymnals. The girls were dressed to match the flowers in their hands, forming a beautiful line as they proceeded to the altar of the church. At the altar they knelt, the flowers given to the Mother of the Church, and the flowers were given to the Virgin Mary.

An Invitation to Opportunity

By SUSAN DINNER

See that door ahead? It's open but a crack, just enough invitingly to be noted. Push the door more carefully because it's the door of opportunity. Looking to you Young Administration, carefully open that door and you will find what is waiting for you. Never, ever close the door once you have entered it. If you do, you will never be able to return and you may never find your way back.

When I was given through the Help of Christmas School, my classmates and I were all aglow each June when school was out and we were permitted. We were ecstatic, because we had the most anticipated day of the year.

Yet each year we did that work and were prevented again. The work was a challenge, and all of us were looking forward to working down a large corridor with many doors, seeing what was behind each door.

But always we kept our eyes on the door at the end of the corridor, where was the exit. When we stepped through that door we were amazed. It was then that we found out that the world we thought, meant so much to us, turned out to be nothing.

From our camp came, printing, bunting, decorations, floral, posters, members and workers, but there was no opportunity there for us.

Now it's your turn to push the door that leads you to the world, and the world will be waiting for you. The world will help you to make the most of it if you give it a chance.

Congratulations graduates.

Outstanding Students Plan Unusual Trips

By JOHN TERRY

The Four Pines graduating seniors of the St. John's High School have been planning their trips for the past several weeks. They have chosen to travel to various places around the world as a way to broaden their horizons and learn more about different cultures.

The students have been selecting trips that will allow them to experience a variety of sights and sounds. Some have chosen to travel to Europe, while others have opted for trips to Asia or the Middle East.

Many of the students have been planning their trips for several months, and they are excited to see the world and learn more about different cultures. They have been planning their trips carefully, taking into consideration the cost, the length of the trip, and the destinations.

The students have been saving up money for their trips, and they are looking forward to the experience of being in a new place and learning new things.

The trips will be a way for the students to gain new experiences and learn more about the world. They will be able to see new places, meet new people, and learn about different cultures.

The students are excited to see what the future holds and are looking forward to the adventures that await them.

The mission station is a place where people can come together to worship and praise God. It is a place where people can come together to study the Bible and learn about the teachings of Jesus Christ. It is a place where people can come together to share their joys and sorrows. It is a place where people can come together to help each other.

The mission station is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be. It is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be. It is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be.

The mission station is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be. It is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be. It is a place where people can come together to be who they are meant to be.

We hope you will take part in this mission station. We hope you will be part of the mission station. We hope you will help others find hope and direction in their lives. We hope you will make a difference in the world. We hope you will be who you are meant to be.

Dr. Bennett asks Increase In Interfaith Cooperation

JERSEY CITY — Dr. John C. Bennett, Executive Secretary of the New Jersey Interfaith Coordinating Council, said today that "it is an honor and a privilege to serve the people of this state as the leader of this organization." He added that the council will continue its work in promoting understanding and cooperation among different religious communities.

The council, which includes representatives of all major religious groups, was formed in 1963 to foster better understanding among the various faiths in the state.

Prayer — 'Tide Has Turned'

WASHINGTON — The tide has turned, said Dr. Robert A. Woodruff, president of the American Bible Society, after a recent survey of public schools showed that the use of the Bible as a teaching tool is on the increase.

Dr. Woodruff said that the survey, which was conducted by the American Bible Society, showed that the use of the Bible as a teaching tool has increased in public schools by 50% since 1960.

"The tide has turned," Dr. Woodruff said. "It is now an accepted practice in public schools to use the Bible as a teaching tool.

The survey, which was conducted in 200 public schools across the country, showed that the use of the Bible as a teaching tool has increased in all grades, from elementary to high school.

Dr. Woodruff said that the increase in the use of the Bible as a teaching tool is a reflection of the growing interest in religious education among public school administrators and teachers.

"The use of the Bible as a teaching tool is an important part of religious education," Dr. Woodruff said. "It is a way to help students understand the values and principles of the faith.

Diocese Tells Schools: 'Stop Using Children'

The Diocese of Bridgeport, Conn., has issued a statement to all Catholic schools in the diocese, warning them not to use children as a form of entertainment.

The statement, which was issued by Bishop Joseph A. Coughlin, said: "The use of children as a form of entertainment is not acceptable in Catholic schools.

The statement went on to say that the use of children as a form of entertainment is a violation of the rights of the children involved.

The statement also emphasized the importance of protecting the rights of all children.

"Children have a right to be treated with respect and dignity," the statement said. "They have a right to be protected from harm and exploitation.

The statement concluded by saying that any school that continues to use children as a form of entertainment will face disciplinary action.

Students Honor Msgr. Reardon

AUBURN, N.Y. — Students at Auburn High School, N.Y., have honored Msgr. John P. Reardon, the school's long-time principal, by dedicating a new gymnasium to him.

The dedication ceremony was held on May 22, and was attended by hundreds of students and faculty members.

"We are honored to dedicate this gymnasium to Msgr. Reardon," said Mr. John P. Reardon, the school's principal for 30 years. "He has been a true leader for our school community.

"Msgr. Reardon is a true gentleman," said Mr. John P. Reardon, the school's principal for 30 years. "He has always been there for our students, and for our faculty.

Australis Giving Grants to 10,000 Catholic Schools

The government has announced a $10 million grant program to provide scholarships to students attending Catholic schools. The program is open to private and public schools, but only Catholic schools are eligible to receive grants.

The grants will be used to fund scholarships for students in grades K-12. The government hopes this will help to reduce the financial burden on families and encourage more students to attend Catholic schools.

The grants will be distributed based on the number of students attending Catholic schools in each state. The government will also provide additional funding to states with larger Catholic school populations.

The government has expressed its commitment to supporting Catholic education, which it views as an important part of the nation's cultural heritage.

The government has also announced plans to explore other forms of support for Catholic schools, including tax breaks for parents who choose to send their children to Catholic schools.

While the grant program has been welcomed by many Catholics, some have expressed concerns about the government's role in funding education. Others have praised the program as a way to support a vital institution that plays a crucial role in the nation's social fabric.

We hope this information helps you make an informed decision about the grant program. If you have any further questions, please feel free to ask.
Calls Racial Issue 'The Acid Test'

NEW YORK — A man at the heart of a racial controversy is Alphonso Inseparable. His name has been linked to the deaths of two people, to the issue of racial equality, and to the possibility of his being alcoholic.

Inseparable is a pastor at the Church of the Epiphany, a black church in the Harlem neighborhood of New York City.

Inseparable was charged with murder in the deaths of two people, one of whom was a white minister.

Inseparable's defense lawyers say that he is not guilty of murder.

Father Inseparable said that he had beenアウト of his mind and acted without thought when he killed the two people.

Inseparable's lawyers say that he was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the killings.

Inseparable has been charged with murdering a pastor at the Church of the Epiphany and with murdering a woman at the same church.

The ancient social issue of civil rights has been raised by the charges against Inseparable.

Father Inseparable said that he had acted out of his desire to protect the church and to maintain its sanctity.

He said that he had acted unconsciously.

A GUIDE TO BETTER HOME BUYS
IN MONMOUTH and OCEAN COUNTIES

SUPPLEMENT TO

The Advocate
JUNE 11, 1964

OFF PARKWAY — The House of Ease is the latest concept of the Shapiros, a community to be introduced at Beach Haven West, on Rt. 72, nine minutes from Exit 63 of the Garden State Parkway, under the new retirement program announced by community developers Jerome and Herbert Shapiro. It is priced at $10,990, with minimum down payment.

Second Home Concept Cited

A Chereyman-Carroll Release

BEACH HAVEN (PFS) — Not a shock in the woods but a second home with all equipped and recreation provided. This, according to Jerome and Herbert Shapiro, developers of Beach Haven West, is what most people want in the way of second and vacation homes. The Shapiro have proved at Beach Haven West that this concept is valid.

Citing a recent National Association of Home Builders report which discussed the increasing popularity of second homes, the Shapiros pointed out that second homes account for 6% of the annual home construction in this country. Construction of vacation homes may increase to 200,000 units annually by the end of the 1960s.

To date approximately 1,100 families have moved into Beach Haven West, living on 17 miles of man-made lakes, almost all of which have depth enough for the navigation of sea-going yachts. Seven model homes are offered, ranging in price from $6,990.

Buyers at Beach Haven West, the Shapiro said, are mature persons, usually in their late 30s or early 40s who are looking for a place to spend weekends with their children and for a year-round home for retirement later.

The Home Builders report outlined a hypothetical "ideal" vacation community. According to the report, it should not be more than 10 miles or 100 minutes from a city area. Beach Haven West is 90 minutes from most areas in New York, New Jersey, and 45 minutes from the Philadelphia-Camden-Trinity area. Families who have homes at Beach Haven come from such distant points as Pittsburgh, Dover (Del.), Washington and Cleveland.

All homes at Beach Haven West are fully completed, suitable for either year-round or summer vacation living.

Construction details indicate: Hot water electric range, double galley head with individual room thermostats, mahogany paneling, the baths, hardwood floors, built-in kitchen cabinets, counter-top work areas, full air conditioning and brick fireplaces.

School System One of Finest

A S.O.T. Release

TOMS RIVER (FFS) — The school system here is recognized as one of the finest in the state, and is so rated by authorities.

Home owners at Holiday South, a Hovnanian Brothers community, are loud in their praise of the area's schools. An elementary school is located across from the development.

"Both the high school and the new intermediate school are on single sessions," says Harry Hovnanian, speaking for the Hovnanian brothers, "and there is school bus service to the high school, intermediate and parochial schools.

"St. Joseph's in Toms River maintains an exceptionally fine Catholic elementary and high school.

"A unique accomplishment by Toms River authorities," continues Hovnanian, "is the fact that, in spite of such a noteworthy school system, the tax rate has been kept among the lowest in the county. This unusual combination of benefits is attracting growing families to Holiday South. The public is also served by an excellent hospital at Toms River.

A Charenno-Carroll Release
MANTOLANKING, N.J. (AP) - Interest on the part of New Jerseyans and New Yorkers in cooperative apartments - as demonstrated by more than six inquiries during the opening weekend of Lands End at Mantoloking - has aroused the attention of building organizations and real estate exerts. Herein, widely accepted throughout the U.S., the co-op concept has gained a strong foothold in New Jersey.

According to Louis Sedrish, developer of Lands End, the 54-unit cooperative community is to rise on Rt. 35 in historic Mantoloking between the ocean and Barnegat Bay. This renewed interest in cooperative apartments can be traced to the fact that Lands End has its broad market within the area of "second home" buyers.

ASBURY PARK (PFS) -
The careful convenience of the apartment and the luxury details of the private home have been skillfully blended by B.J. Lucarelli and Co. in completing the Carlton House, a 12-story apartment house on fashionable Deal Lake Drive.

According to Joseph Lu-carelli, the typical "private home details" which have been built into the Carlton House include central air conditioning with individual controls, a sun-deck terrace with most apartments, a guest-tenant sun and card room, oak parquet floors, built-in wall ovens, furniture-finish cabinets in the kitchen, venetian blinds and screens, wood double-hung windows.

In addition, doorman service, landscaped grounds with sheltered sitting facilities, luxuriously appointed lobby and a complete building communication system including telephones in the elevator bring the tenants a new dimension in apartment living.

Rentals at the Carlton House start at $150 for a studio apartment. Other apartments include those of one and two-bedroom design.

"This ingrained desire to own their own home either now or in the near future has made it difficult for cooperative builders to gain widespread acceptance until now." He pointed out that "since the cooperative concept is a sound one, it will gain acceptance in New Jersey, but not in the "second home" market."

This was the reasoning,
Sedrish explained, behind Lands End. The entire foundation of the apartment company's planning was the removal of the co-op unit from its lofty $20,000 to $20,000 price perch, and instead, creating a new market within the "sec-area by developing apartments that can be purchased within the $4,500 to $7,500 price range.

M. L. SHAPIRO / BUILDERS AND DEVELOPERS SINCE 1926!
A Church for the Future

By ANNE BUCKLEY

What kind of church do you build in this time of renewal of the Liturgy?

What kind of church do you build if you are building now, at the height of the period of change in the Church?

Rev. James F. Johnson, administrator of St. Anthony’s, Northvale, is faced with this challenge, with this opportunity, if you will. He and architect Gerard Joseph Oakley of Bergenfield have seized upon it, with the result that the church under construction in that outpost of Bergen County will be the most unusual parish church in North Jersey.

The doctrine of the congregation as the People of God is very present in the design. The conception of the church as the assembly place of the People of God is basic. The theological reality of the Mass as a banquet, a sacrificial meal, with the priest as host, is emphasized in the arrangement of the sanctuary.

"Functional" is the way they describe the design, meaning that it is faithfully keyed to the worship for which it is being built.

"It will be impossible to go to Mass here on Sunday and not realize what is going on," says Father Johnson.

It is also flexible, designed for easy adaptability to whatever changes may come in the future.

The basic feature of the design is radial seating. St. Anthony’s will be a church in the round, with pews arranged two-thirds of the way around the sanctuary, in the center of which will be the freestanding altar. In no area of the church, planned to seat 500, will the depth of the pews exceed 10.

There will be a minimum of statuary; the stations of the cross will be artistically simple. Every design feature is carefully planned to focus attention upon the altar, the place of sacrifice, which will be bathed in light filtered through the colored panes of peaked “lantarn dome” clerestory crowning the sanctuary like a skylight, and surmounted by a 70-foot aluminum spire, intended as a beckoning landmark.

There is no exterior center doorway — that place of prominence is occupied by the baptismal, which is thus placed in the direct center aisle path to the altar. The theological mystery is demonstrated: at Baptism the catechumen is cleansed and made a member of Christ’s Mystical Body; then he is admitted to the “sacrament of the love and strength of Christ’s Eucharistic gift.”

Long immersed in the significance of the public worship of the Church, and now excited about “the bright days of the future in the Liturgy,” Father Johnson can even reconcile himself to the labor difficulties which recently slowed construction to a crawl for more than a month. The new feast days occasioned by the Vatican Council’s Constitution on the Liturgy and the U.S. Bishops’ implementation studies of it, are coming rapidly. Some adaptation of the design of St. Anthony’s may be possible even before construction is substantially underway.

The design, says the forward-looking Oakley, “proves that we’re ready.”

Study of the scale model and the floor plan of the church does indeed reveal many features easily adaptable in the things liturgists are talking about and predicting. With a low tabernacle on the altar table, for example, Mass facing the people would be entirely workable. There is ample space behind the altar for a sedilia, a chair from which a priest might preside — again the idea of a host at a banquet — in the Mass of the future. Behind that area is the choir, with space enough for the arrangement of a chapel for the reservation of the Blessed Sacrament, should that rubric be adopted in the future. Illumination of the simple altar railing would be easily done, if the concept of unity of priest and people were to be carried to the point of such a directive.

St. Anthony’s is also building an eight-classroom school addition to accommodate the boys’ department which will be staffed by the Franciscan Brothers of the Poor, and a split-level rectory for three priests attached to the church at the very. The entire project will cost $600,000; the church, which will be air-conditioned, is expected to be built for an economical $200,000.

Originaly the school wing was to be ready this fall and the church early next year, but in view of the work hait the completion dates are uncertain now.

Architect Oakley is frankly excited about the church, making no secret of the fact that Father Johnson’s thinking is largely responsible. Oakley plunged happily into the work of designing a church based on the idea of “getting as many people as possible around the altar and as close to it as possible.” He is impressed by Father Johnson’s goal of making the church a vehicle of education of the people in the spirit of the Liturgy as it is now being renewed and reemphasized.

Father Johnson, along with his assistant Rev. Benedict F. Militello, is excited about the church too — not only as one interested in liturgy and architecture and the partnership that is possible between them, but also as a pastor of souls. “In our new church,” he says, “both priest and people will be made much more conscious of the privilege of jointly offering Mass.”

Fun of Being

A Christian

REST OF SOUTH WORLD, by Rev. Bernard Basset, 12th Monthly, 150 pages $2.75.

As he did in "We Neighbors," Father Basset, through his character, presents the idea that Christianity is a joyful thing in which common sense is more important than dogma.

The title itself indicates that the Christian has the best of both worlds—the natural and the supernatural. And the book abounds in stories that are filled with wit.

In "We Neighbors", this common sense is dispensed by a Mrs. Carey, an incurable motormouth who knows the whole world and can spin a yarn for hours. In this book, you like you walk along—desiring, wishing, watching for your next adventure.

The rest of the selections, on the other hand, are typical of what their authors have said, not what they can do, but what they can do.

Some even sound like bad caricatures. James Baldwin at one point claims that sex is at the root of it all, and Russ Barnett boasts of his state's belief in the dignity of man while pleading the case for segregation.

The late Rev. John Laforge, S.J., is shown as he took part in the 1953 March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom, talking with A.M.E. Bishop George W. Bobbitt. Three months later, the long-time crusader for Negro rights was dead at 83.

Still the Gray

BRAND, WHITE AND GRAY, ed., with an Introduction by Kay Boyle and Word, 368 pages $5.95.

By JOHN R. GOLDSMITH

"To summarize to say about the civil rights problem is to say many things a newsman said recently. I don't think he's right, but important things seem to be going on. For instance, by the same token, Michael Rynne, whose writing presages the "more" aurea Rynne has extolled. One hesitates to think of their predilections, if the council goes four or more sessions.

How does one go about finding a way to be an author in the Pope's own chambers?

Of course, maybe Michael Rynne is Xavier Rynne, in which case the strain will be on the writer, rather than the editors. However, it's not likely the two are one. Rynne, we are told, is the name de plume of a Catholic diplomat who has served in a variety of important posts. He thinks Pope Paul played a bigger part in converting the council to poetry.

Rynne's recent articles on the Holy Father, however, are the latest of a series of articles in which he comments on Christian attitudes and traditions. He quotes the pontiff in the Holy Land and also thought the heat off the council's furies.

Rynne sees the second session as a success as a result of the decree on beatification. He labels the curia and forced the vote on collegiality

So you pay your money and take your choice. For myself, I would like to incline my confidence in Xavier Rynne. For one thing, he is objectively again writing from the council hill. For another, the accuracy of his book has been attested by more than one Bishop. Aside from that, he provides a more even account of council doings than many of his predecessors. He objects to the pope's use of authority in the face of intracurial insurrection and the playing of the Italian card in the Roman Catholic Church. He claims Paul should decide against collegiality and have the council in Rome.

Unfortunately, BradorDan. in concluding this new anthology of "20 points of view on the race question," has chosen polemic as his weapon. The weapon is wrong and the ammunition is a dud. As the title suggests, Daniel's selection is split between the debate as well as the middle. In his preface, he suggests, too, that the reader must make one "informed about the basic moral and philosophical questions involved."

It doesn't, with the exception of pages by the late "Father Laforge (on the southern Negro's search for identity) and by Rev. Eldon Evans, O.P. titled The Selective Conservative"

Hammer, we had for the first time an era as free from the sexual sacrifices that have characterized the whole book on the same occasion. The Hammer books were never con- considered respectable, and the films, unlike the Bogart-Powell impersonations of Spade and Green, were both seamy and dull.

Bond is a different sort of deserted character, a hero drawn to playboy speci- fications. He is an elegant, adventurous, alluring, and humanly flawed or, a man so unique that he even has a conscience. He has a licentiousness in the way in which one would expect a man with such a temperament. He is a lone wolf, in a sense, and Spade does whatever may please his impulses. His ideals are not only sexual; in one scene, he assists in a cold-blooded murder, with a gun on a man, that is designed, successfully, to produce audience laughter. The film, despite its decorativeness, is very good cinema, full of wit and spectacle, and made by director Terence Young, with a flashy virtuosity in his handling of the material.

"Russia," based on this novel, describes Bond's con- tinuing war with the scoundrel, the Russian, which for its own, somewhat obscure ends, pits British and Russian might. The book is out of this of a shoe, and a fight in which British Lt. Miela tries to destroy the German with this device has been set to be fought in London.

As far as the sex (bedroom scenes, belly dancers, to-the-ears fights between beauties and Gun girls) goes, it is not so much that Bond is always either thinking about it or engaging in it. Like the rest, this is the material with which the filmmaker clearly hopes to enter- tain, has a certain moral suasion, is an erotic, not sexy. In "The Russian," it is not so much the sex which is shown, but the eroticism with which the sex is shown.

For lovers of the nude, there are some beautifully cut and lighted fight scenes, some in close quarters, some spread out over a desert landscape. This is also, regretfully, the last film for the late Pedro Armendariz, who created one of his most memorable roles in "The Power and the Glory."
