Patriotism or Perfidy?

On July Fourth a lot of the flag waving, as in usual cases, will be a sham, a compromise, a sheepish gesture of patriotic piety. True patriotism is something alien to millions of Americans because it involves a virtue with definite moral implications, which they do not recognize.

Patriotism obliges all citizens in common conscience and civic purpose public order, social, judicial, equal rights. It for a special personal cause, as our own interests and directed towards our fellow citizens with whom we must share the national good of our country. A sense of national pride, or who is the only cause, can be the blank for hypocrisy. If we are not fighting for a just cause, the American people will lose the war.

Millions of Americans who wave the flag are not patriots. St. Paul's Spiritual Foundation are awed racialists. Racists just as much against我和们 as Nations. It is an idea so inherent to the American character, because Christian social teaching on the equality of men

Autos and Accidents

With the Fourth of July weekend just ahead of us, we can expect to hear the horrible details of the happenings of human beings in the streets. The accidents are the cause of the casualities are purely accidental; e.g., defects in the construction of the car that should be detected in advance. But many of the deaths and injuries will be brought on by disregard and contempt for the rules of safety.

EXCESSIVE SPEED demands its toll in the streets of our community and completely shattered after an all-nighter. There were traveling 60 to 80 miles an hour. Pharmacist Moore, a young man of the rules of traffic and ignored the warnings. A feature article in a prominent weekly warned the citizens of the close relationship between traffic accidents and driving speed. Researchers take a hard knocks to the USA. In the study, they determined whether such driving can be affected by the lethal combination of alcohol and automobiling.

A Sensible Decision

During the past month the people of New Jersey and the nation followed with great interest the case of Mrs. Johnson's Will, who refused to contract to a blood transfusion. The local doctors said it was necessary to save her life and the decision of her husband not to receive the transfusion because of his religious beliefs claimed that it was her constitutional right.

IMMEDIATELY, ON her refusal, the state took steps to remove her from the hospital and eventually she was granted a stay. The decision was made in favor of allowing Mrs. Johnson's right to die. The court then decided that the refusal to receive the transfusion was in accordance with the patient's wishes.

It might be noted in passing that Claims in the case of a similar case in another state is.

IT IS NOT OUR purpose to challenge the sincerity of the Johnson's Will and the decision of the court. It is to be said that the Johnsons are not responsible for the decisions of the court.

We can repeat what was told by the N.J. Supreme Court and affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court. The transfusion is improper because the rights of the unborn child outweighed the religious objections of the patient.

Two Attempts to Arrest Jesus Met With Failure

At the end of our visit to Jordan we met President Nixon. He was in Jordan for the first time, and he said he was, in fact, the first American President to visit Jordan. He said that he was looking forward to the visit, which he called a "great opportunity." He also said that he was impressed by the Jordanian people and their culture.

A great opportunity it was, President Nixon. And so was the opportunity for the Jordanian people to have a President who is interested in their well-being. The Jordanian people have every reason to be grateful to President Nixon for the opportunity he has given them. They have reason to be grateful to God for the opportunity they have been given to have a President who is interested in their well-being.

Intimations for July

The Holy Father's assent and approval is being given to the various religious congregations, as well as to the various religious communities, in order to prevent the spread of heterodoxy. This is an important matter, for the Church must be united and harmonious in its teaching and practice, if it is to fulfill its mission of spreading the Gospel and bringing people to salvation.

The return to the continent is of the utmost importance. The Holy Father has a special place in the hearts of the faithful, and his return will be a source of great joy to all who love and respect him.

The Holy Father's visit to Jordan will be a great opportunity for the Jordanian people to learn more about their faith, and to be inspired to live their lives in accordance with the teachings of the Church. The return of the Holy Father is also a source of great pride to the Jordanian people, who are proud of their Catholic heritage.

Thank you for your kind "Letter to the Editor," the number of which you mentioned in your correspondence with the Catholic Press. A Shepherds of Nazareth: Looks to 21st Century

By REV. JOHN SHEEHAN, C.P.

A shepherd is a watchman, a leader, a protector, a provider. A shepherd must be strong and able to stand against the threats of the world, both internal and external. A shepherd must be a faithful and obedient servant, willing to follow the lead of the Lord at all times. A shepherd must be a wise and discerning leader, able to make good decisions for the good of the flock. A shepherd must be a humble and compassionate person, willing to minister to the needs of the flock.

But in today’s world, the role of a shepherd is more complex than ever before. The challenges faced by modern shepherds are many and varied, ranging from issues of poverty and hunger to problems of violence and conflict. Moreover, the expectations placed on modern shepherds are often overwhelming, requiring them to be experts in a multitude of fields and to be able to respond to a wide range of issues.

Nevertheless, the role of the shepherd remains a vital one, for it is through the shepherding of the flock that the Church continues to fulfill its mission to lead, protect, and serve the faithful. And so it is that we look to the future with hope, confident that the shepherds of Nazareth will continue to lead the Church into the 21st century, guided by the wisdom and compassion of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Churches Distribute Housing Pledges

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—The bishops of the Southern states and the District of Columbia have subscribed to a new campaign which aims to increase housing for the poor. The campaign, called the "Churches Distribute Housing Pledges" campaign, is an outgrowth of the "Churches for Housing" campaign which was launched last year.

A statement read at all diocesan meetings of the bishops was a message of the Catholic bishops to the people of the United States. The bishops urged the reelection of President Johnson and Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

The bishops said that the reelection of the president would be a step towards the realization of the goals of the "Churches for Housing" campaign.

The statement concluded with a call to action for all Catholics to support the reelection of President Johnson and Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

Michelangelo's Pieta is 69 inches high and weighs about 6,000 pounds. He had it brought to St. Peter's Basilica during the night, or though he feared it might not be accepted now that the Cardinal who had commissioned it was dead. Later the artist made another nocturnal visit to the basilica — to curve as the hands across Mary's breast and before the words, "Michelangelo Bonanassa Piereo Pieterb" (Michelangelo inscribement of Florence Made This). It was the only work he ever signed; he did it after over-hearing visitors speculating about the identity of the statue's creator.

Unnumbered millions have looked upon the Pieta in its side chapel at St. Peter's over the centuries. But in 1962 came the electrifying announcement that Pope John XXIII would, in a sense, give the masterpiece

... to the world by sending it to the 1964 World's Fair.
Packed painstakingly in shredded plastic material, crated and addressed from Pope Paul to Cardinal Spellman, and insured for $10 million, the Pieta was shipped from Rome to Naples, then landed in the dock of the Cristobal Colombe for the voyage to America. By barge and truck it was moved to the Vatican Pavilion at the fairgrounds in Flushing Meadow, where it is ensconced behind a wall of glass and has already been seen by nearly three million people.

Michelangelo completed his Pieta in 1499, seven years after Columbus discovered the New World to which it has now come, and where it daily reduces to thoughtful silence the fair-going horde who flock to it from the noisy world of tomorrow.

\"Pieta\" Means Pity ...

O all you that pass by the way, attend and see if there be any sorrow like to my sorrow.

Nowhere in the New Testament are we told that Mary took into her arms the lifeless Body of Her Devine Son after He was taken down from the cross.
But for centuries artists have been striving to rep-serve such a moment because it expresses so poignantly an idea — the silent sorrow of the mother, the horror of His suffering as He repined Himself for another, the fulfillment of the prophecy of Simon when she brought her Baby to the temple and learned that her heart would be "pierced by a sword.\" The tragic companionship of the scene with the earlier one when she cradled Him in a stable.

Michelangelo was hardly more than a boy when he carved from a huge block of carrara marble the classic Pieta. He had come from Florence to Rome at the age of 11 in 1466 and shortly afterwards he was commissioned by Jean Cardinal de Villiers de la Grange to make a statue for St. Peter's Basilica, specifying that "it shall be the most beautiful work in marble in Rome, and that no living master shall be able to make a statue better or more alike.\" Crises through the centuries have regarded the work of the commis-and prophecy.

There is the genius of composition: Michelangelo maintained grace by designing the form of Christ on a smaller scale than that of Mary — and recalled that the God-Man had once been contained within the body of the virgin. There is the miracle of fluidity caused from solid stone. Mary's soul creases like soft chiffon, Christ's hair falls gently over the curve of her arm. His hand and leg hang with limp finality.
His flesh bulges above the pressure of her hand. And there is the immense feeling: the quiet stately grace in the face of the sorrowing Madonna, the dignity, holiness, obedience, and sacrificial love of the di-Christ — and the pity of the redeemed who look upon it.

Michelangelo went on to design the doors of St.
Peter's Basilica, to adorn the Sistine Chapel, to carve the Hors and the David. But later he returned to the Pieta throne,ucciing it over and over, very like a prayer, until he died at the age of 80.

By JOE DOYLE

NEWARK — Sending a non-nonsense message and bringing the temperature down to a more palatable pitch, the students of Elizabeth High School's Drama Club, under the direction of Miss Helen Bradshaw, are preparing for the first of a series of productions which will keep students and faculty on the alert this fall.

The opening show, "Brigadoon" by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 30. The production is being put on by a group of students who have been preparing for months.

The students have been working on their lines and are trying to perfect their acting skills. They have been rehearsing every day and are very excited about the upcoming performance.

The cast includes several students who are new to the theater scene, as well as some experienced actors who are returning to the stage. The play will be presented at the school auditorium and is expected to draw a large audience.

"Brigadoon" is a musical with a unique plot, featuring a small town in Scotland that is located in a time capsule. The villagers are isolated from the outside world and their customs and traditions are preserved.
Basis Also Hurts Whites. Family Life Group Told

WASHINGTON—The effects of the so-called "race problem" on children—white as well as black—were a major subject for a recently convened conference of the National Catholic Lay Congress.

The conference, held in a hotel next to the St. Louis Cathedral, was attended by representatives from all U.S. states and by leaders of Protestant and Catholic organizations. The conference's purpose was to examine the role of the family in promoting racial harmony.

According to the conference, the effects of segregation and discrimination on children can be significant. The conference urged families to be aware of these effects and to work towards promoting racial equality.

The conference also discussed the need for more research on the topic of racial integration within families. The conference concluded with a call for increased efforts to promote understanding and cooperation between different racial groups.

Outstanding Senior EYES Political Scene

By JOHN VERRAN

Great Falls, Mont.—Jim Eys, 25, a junior at the University of Montana, has been alerted by the Republican Party to run as a candidate for the Senate seat vacated by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., in the 1972 elections. If Eys wins the primary, he would then face the winner of the Democratic primary, S. Michael Potts, D-Mont., for the Senate seat, which is being vacated by retiring Sen. James L. Clark, D-Mont.

Eys, a law student at the University of Montana, is a journalism graduate who has served as editor of the student newspaper. He has also worked as a reporter for the Billings Gazette and as a editor for the Great Falls Tribune.

Eys, a member of the Republican Party, has been involved in political activities since high school. He was a member of the Republican Student Chapter and served as president of the chapter.

The Republican Party is considering Eys as a candidate for the Senate seat because of his background in journalism and his experience in political campaigns. Eys is seen as a strong candidate because of his ability to bring in young voters and his ability to appeal to a broader range of voters.

Eys is expected to face a tough primary battle with S. Michael Potts, D-Mont., a former state senator who has been active in Montana politics for many years.

The winner of the Republican primary will face the winner of the Democratic primary in the November general election. The Democratic primary is expected to be a close race between S. Michael Potts, D-Mont., and John Doe, D-Mont., a former state senator.

Eys is hopeful that his strong showing in the Republican primary will help him win the general election. He believes that his background in politics and his ability to appeal to a broad range of voters will give him an edge in the general election.

The Republican Party is expected to announce its decision on Eys as a candidate for the Senate seat in the coming weeks. The party is likely to make a decision based on Eys' performance in the primary and his ability to appeal to a broad range of voters.

NEW YORK — Catholic hospitals have been urged to join their 37,000 employees a national movement to prevent tuberculosis, the American Lung Association has announced.

The venture came from the Rev. Thomas C. Crowley, associate executive secretary of the American Lung Association in the Catholic hospitals department.

"The hospital associations are well on their way to a complete program to control tuberculosis," Mr. Crowley said. "One of the hospitals that has been outstanding in this movement has been the Catholic Hospital of St. Luke's in New York. The hospital has been very successful in its own activities, but it has not been able to do much to help other hospitals."

"We are doing our best to help other hospitals, but we need the cooperation of all hospitals to be able to do this," Mr. Crowley said. "We are trying to get all hospitals to work together and to use the facilities of the American Lung Association to help them in their work."

Mr. Crowley said that the American Lung Association is assisting hospitals in the following ways:

1. By providing information and literature on tuberculosis prevention.
2. By offering consultation services to hospitals.
3. By providing funds for tuberculosis prevention projects.
4. By providing training programs for hospital personnel.

"It is important that all hospitals cooperation in this movement," Mr. Crowley said. "We need the cooperation of all hospitals to be able to help other hospitals."

He added that the American Lung Association is planning to offer more assistance to hospitals in the future.

NEW YORK TIMES — Father John G. Byrne moved into his new home at 5:15 a.m. on June 27. He'd have to start work on his new duties soon, but not before he had a chance to look around.

Father Byrne celebrated the first Sunday Mass at the new church on June 28 at 9 a.m. There will also be weekday services on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 7:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

The plot of land on which Father Byrne will eventually build his parish church is a small one. According to the New York Times, it is "a plot of land that is quite small but it is a plot of land that is quite suitable."
