Of THE ADVOCATE

When the United Nations body and the Holy See met in a joint session on the subject of world hunger in the United Nations, the world's attention was focused on the economic and social problems of mankind.

The meeting was held at the United Nations in New York. The Holy See was represented by Msgr. H. J. L. Meehan, undersecretary for international relations of the Holy See.

The meeting lasted for several hours and was marked by a spirit of cooperation and goodwill.

The session concluded with a vote of thanks to the Holy See for its participation in the meeting.

Summary

The meeting at the United Nations was an opportunity for the world's leading religious leaders to discuss the problems of world hunger and to share their insights and perspectives.

Conclusion

The United Nations and the Holy See are committed to working together to address the global challenges of our time.

Briton Predicts Marriage Law Changes

LONDON (VNC) — The secularization of society and the desire for change in the laws on marriage and divorce are making an impact on the British legal scene, according to a recent report by the British government's Department of Health and Social Security. The report, which is based on a survey of public opinion, predicts that the government will soon introduce legislation to allow for greater flexibility in marriage and divorce laws, particularly regarding the rights of women and children. The report suggests that the government will also consider the possibility of introducing same-sex marriage legislation in the future.

Sees Trend to Better, Bigger Schools

By JOHN P. DAILY, JR.
WASHINGTON (CNS)—It won’t be long before the Diocese of Cleveland begins to see a trend in higher standards in its schools and closer ties with Catholic schools in other dioceses.

"We will continue to review the standards, to try our best to achieve what we believe are the goals," said Bishop Edward B. O’Hare of Cleveland.

The new approach is reflected in the second annual report on the Catholic schools of the diocese published this month.

The report, "A Pleasure," states that the diocese is concerned with providing better education for its children.

The report shows that the diocese has made considerable progress in providing better education.

Open to Criticism

Recently, some prominent clergy have been quite critical of the Supreme Court for acting as though they had the right to legislate moral precepts from the bench. This prompted an open letter to those critics from California's Archbishop Ceprano, suggesting that "the religious leader of all faiths is the conscience of the community and therefore...should not be subject to the Civil Constitution of a Republic." This statement was perhaps the most controversial piece of writing that the Court has ever issued. This issue is today's topic. The President will discuss the issue of religious freedom and its relationship to the Supreme Court's decisions. He was joined by other religious leaders from different parts of the country.

The Good Shepherd

In many of the classrooms in the United States, there is a small group of students who are being taught religious education. These students are usually too young to understand the complex issues involved in the debate over religious freedom and the role of the Supreme Court. They are forced to learn about these issues at a time when they are not fully prepared to understand them. It is important that we work to provide these students with a proper education so that they can make informed decisions about their own lives.

The Good Shepherd

Some people believe that the Supreme Court has been too lenient in its decisions regarding religious freedom. They argue that the Court should have taken a more active role in protecting the rights of religious groups. However, others believe that the Court has been too aggressive in its decisions. They argue that the Court should have been more careful in its decisions to avoid interfering with the rights of the states and the injunctions of the Constitution.

The Good Shepherd

In conclusion, it is clear that the Supreme Court has a crucial role to play in the debate over religious freedom. Its decisions will have a significant impact on the lives of millions of Americans. It is important that we work to ensure that the Court's decisions will be fair and just to all Americans.

The Good Shepherd

Neighbour Identified, The Crowd is Stunned

BY FRANK J. HENRY

Our Lord spoke the words of the Father of Husbandry when He charged, "Let no one who is married be guilty of committing adultery..." These words, which He directed to the heads of the church, have been carefully observed for centuries by the faithful. Our Lord's teaching was not only a matter of personal morality, but of fundamental principles of public order and social control. He taught that adultery is a sin against society, and that it is a violation of the natural law, which is based on the natural order of things. The Church has always been committed to the protection of marriage and the family, and has always been willing to defend those principles.

The Good Shepherd

The soil of the church is the soil of the world, and the Church is called to be the guardian of the unity and the peace of the people. The Church is called to be the prophetic voice, the voice that speaks the truth, and the voice that calls the faithful to repentance. The Church is called to be the servant of the poor, the servant of the hurt, and the servant of the oppressed. The Church is called to be the voice of the voiceless, the voice of the voiceless, and the voice of the voiceless.

The Good Shepherd

In the end, the Church is called to be the servant of the world. The Church is called to be the servant of the world, the servant of the world, and the servant of the world.
He Commanded.

Would Help Farmers To Bargain on Prices

ST. LOUIS (CNS) — The National Cattlemen's Beef Association has named several techniques that will push for collective bargaining and support reasonable markups and guaranteed value of their products when necessary.

Lacking a meeting of disinterested parties, the association backed a 20-27 plan which forcefully put a basic issue for the consumer of beef in the hands of a bargaining unit. The plan has already been adopted by several state associations.

ONLY COLLECTIVE bargaining will protect the consumer, the cattleman and the country as a whole, said Bishop Joseph J. Murphy of Buffalo, N.Y., in an address to the 52nd annual convention in St. Louis.

Farmers and livestock organization will have to come together to protect their interests, he said, but it is a specific fact that must be made for the consumer, the Bishop said.

If farmers wish to bargain, they must bargain together, he said.

Med., James A. Hughes, 4th grade, will represent the village at the District of the Conven- tion for the New Jersey Friends, Church here Sept. 12. He is a member of South High School in Home. He has been the highest student in his grade for the last three years. He has won the annual Honor Award for participation in a program of sport, study and cooperation.

Hughes, who has also served as president of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hughes, 4th grade, and a member of the New York office of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

TAKING PART in the dis- trict wide event, Oct. 29-Dia- mond is a student at the State University of New York, B.E. in Architecture, and a member of the Central Presbyterian Church. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Diamond, who have been involved in many campus activities. The student is a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.

The task is not just in the study of the national or international conditions, but in "the educational process," he said.

The study of the national or international conditions, Bishop Hughes said, is not just in the study of the national or international conditions, but in "the educational process," he said.

"The educational process is the way to reach or "the recovery and realize the unity we strive for on earth. It is in" in order to reach our goal, he said, to study the ways in which the industrial conditions are being worked out, to realize that the unity we strive for on earth is not just in the study of the national or international conditions, but in "the educational process," he said.

CINCINNATI, O. — The Sisters of the Most Precious Blood will be present in all of the parishes only if the people of the city cooperate. The religious sisters will have their presence in the same parishes each year. The church will be in closer touch with the people.

A poor of 19th-century Sisters agreed on this. The Sisters of the Most Precious Blood will be present in all the parishes in the city only if the people cooperate. The religious sisters will have their presence in the same parishes each year. The church will be in closer touch with the people.

If this cooperation is not forthcoming, the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood will withdraw from the city and the church.

Fr. Edward Maroney, O.F.M., general superior of the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood, said that the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood had been invited to the city of Cincinnati to bring their message of peace and understanding to the people. The Sisters of the Most Precious Blood are known for their work in providing education, healthcare, and social services to those in need.

Children Are Joy to Parents

By Ruth M. Keiley

In the Advocate will long live the sainted Mrs. Henry McHugh, a little boy held high above the crowd, the Parmalee Medal for the first time in New Haven. At 7:30 p.m. on the opening day of the convention, the Parmalee Medal was awarded to Mrs. McHugh, the foster mother of the young boy who received the award.

The Parmalee Medal is awarded for excellence in education, and it was noted that Mrs. McHugh has been a dedicated and outstanding educator for many years.

The picture is a beautiful representation of the Parmalee Medal and the values it stands for. It symbolizes the importance of education and the role it plays in shaping the lives of children.

In his love for and commitment to his family, the child is living in a world of love and understanding. The Parmalee Medal is a symbol of the values that guide the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood in their work to bring peace and understanding to the world.

Newark — While theSep-ber—head—tshaped morning darkness lengthened for another day, the lights of New Jersey hospitals, in silence and service amongst because it mavens the life of the existence of hospitals. The sandwich and Red Cross drop also continues to work in black, public relations and Health. This was the Red Cross state leadership man responsible for

the New Jersey Junior Red Cross across that near 400 of these student workers. One of the students, a 15-year-old schoolgirl, is Dr. Dora B. Harding, director of the juvenile division of the state's health department. Dr.
Harding, who has been working with the group for three years, said, "We believe children should learn to understand and respect the worker. They are the future of society."

There are about 250
Red Cross chapters in Newark, and in each of them, Dr. Harding said, "we are trying to put into practice the principles of the Red Cross."

The New Jersey Junior Red Cross was formed in 1943. Since then, it has grown to include 35 chapters in the state. Each chapter is organized into committees and sub-committees to coordinate the work of the members. The chapters are also divided into age groups,
with the younger members working on community projects and the older members assisting in medical work.

The New Jersey Junior Red
Cross is a part of the American National Red Cross, which was established in 1881. The organization works to promote public health and safety, and provides aid to those in need.

The New Jersey Junior Red Cross is also involved in fundraising activities, such as selling Valentine's Day cards, to help support its work.

The New Jersey Junior Red

for the community, providing a platform for young people to learn about public health and to get involved in helping others.
Corsetto Moves Onward, Upward

by John Tesch

The Poughkeepsie Journal

Corsetto, the former All-American running back, is entering his third season on the Mohawk Valley All-Star squad. He led the team in rushing last year with 843 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Corsetto had a great season in 1963, helping his team win the Class B state championship. He gained 1,081 yards on 168 carries, an average of 6.4 yards per carry, and scored 14 touchdowns. His best game came against Batavia in the state championship game, where he ran for 224 yards and three touchdowns.

In addition to his running ability, Corsetto is a solid receiver and punt returner. He has caught 31 passes for 599 yards and six touchdowns, and he has returned 14 punts for 181 yards and a touchdown.

Corsetto is looking forward to a big senior season in 1964, and he hopes to lead his team to another state championship.

They Left Professions to Profess Faith

By WILLIAM E. MASON

FORTY-FIVE years ago, April 12 to 17 were held in Philadelphia the first annual diocesan Mission Congress of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, which was attended by thousands of laymen, priests and families. It was in this annual Congress that laymen took their first and tentative steps toward the service of God. The days were spent in meeting with the Bishops, and in the late evening they assembled in a number of locations in the many churches throughout the Archdiocese for catechetical instruction, in order to prepare them for the service of God, in the way of profession. The laymen were led in prayer by the Bishops, and in the evening they returned to their homes, and in the morning they assembled in the churches, ready to begin the work of profession.
